MARY PICKFORD RUSHES SUIT

PRESIDENT SEES MESSAGE DELAY OF DAY TO JAN. 4

Congress Expected to Start Slowly.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today announced his annual message to congress may not be delivered until Jan. 4, the day after the Seventy-fourth congress convenes. He anticipates that reorganization of the house of representatives may force the day's delay.

The President had planned to deliver his report on the state of the Union—which in all probability will be made in person—at the opening of congress, and his budget message the following day. He was advised today by Representative Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], who is seen as the next speaker of the house, that reorganization of the house necessitated by the overwhelming Democratic vote at the last election will take some time.

Budget Message Jan. 5.

At his semi-weekly press conference in response to a question on the state of the message, the President said it would not go up to "Capitol hill" until Jan. 4. Under the new arrangement the budget message will not be read until Jan. 5, he said.

He said the message is still in "scrap" form.

In the shortest press conference on record—two and one-half minutes—the President refused to comment on Senator William E. Borah's [Rep., Idaho] attack on Relief Administrator Hopkins' proposal to remove 4,000,000 unemployed from federal relief rolls and return them to the states. The President said he will have nothing to say on relief until his message is read.

Hopkins Tells of Plans.

Administrator Hopkins yesterday said that beginning Feb. 1 about 20 per cent of the total relief load will have to be borne by the states. The announcement was deemed significant in view of persistent urging by administration leaders of the adoption of a huge public works program under which unemployables would be returned to state care.

Borah assailed the proposal as forcing congress to consider old age pension legislation such as the Townsend plan which would give every one over 60 years of age an income of $200 a month. He declared that there is already great suffering among old people and the proposal will so increase such suffering that old age pension legislation will become a primary concern of congress.

States Not Ready, Borah Says.

"The states are not prepared to accept the relief burden which the proposal would return to them Feb. 1," Borah said. "And such a move to purge the relief rolls of old people can only be a strong argument for the Townsend plan."

In the course of his attack the senator remarked that "while the relief roll is being cut 20 per cent, I assume the administrative pay roll will be cut at least 40 per cent. I take it this is being arranged."

Inquiry at the relief administration's offices on pay roll reduction plans was met with the answer that this question would not be considered until later, probably not until after the cut is made.

Meanwhile it became known in spite of Mr. Roosevelt's reticence on the subject that he has under serious consideration a plan to more than double the size of the Civilian Conservation corps as part of a broad winter work relief program.

Summons His Advisers.

Though there were indications that his program is not yet complete, the President summoned cabinet officers and advisers, singly and in groups, to go over the plans. Both he and these officials held in close confidence any sections of the program that had been agreed upon.

The extent of the probable increase in the CCC, which proposal was considered likely of adoption, was said to have been not fully decided upon, but a figure of 1,000,000 men was mentioned frequently. The CCC now has approximately 350,000 enrolled.

A wide range of other activities also was embodied in the relief plans before the President. This included the suggestion that 500 million dollars be used in the field of work relief and public works for the elimination of grade crossings.

Woman, 79, Who Never Heard a Radio, Is Dead

Ottawa, Ill., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Funeral services for Miss Elizabeth Brown, 79, who spent her entire life on a farm fifteen miles from Ottawa, took place here today. Miss Brown never heard a radio.

U. S. SENATE MAY ORDER QUIZ OF SUGAR CORNER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Possibility of a senate investigation of the present corner on the sugar market loomed here today as it was learned certain senators are inquiring privately into government and private manipulations which led up to the spectacular sugar "squeeze."

Certain New Dealers and New Deal advisers, including some who helped the AAA devise its sugar program, are suspected by the senators to have used the government in rigging the sugar market for their own private profit. One senator expressed belief that a sugar investigation would "lead to something big."

Bare Aids to "Squeeze."

New Deal coddling of Cuba, a series of disagreements between the AAA and the state department, and government inaction even when the "squeeze" became apparent all helped a small group of speculators corner the sugar market and line their own pockets, inquiries by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE disclosed.

Government officials report that the firm which has the chief "long" interest in the market and which therefore stands to benefit most is the firm of Little & Christman, sugar brokers. Who the clients are that this New York firm represents could not be learned.

The fact that Charles W. Taussig, Wall street sugar operator and frequent New Deal adviser on sugar matters, frequently deals through Little & Christman at first excited some suspicion in official circles. Mr. Taussig explained here today, however, that he had seen the corner developing for some time, and, knowing the adverse publicity that would attach to it, was careful not to become involved in any way.

"Neither I nor my company [the American Molasses company], any of its subsidiaries, nor any of my relatives or anybody else associated with me has any 'position' in December sugar," Mr. Taussig said.

Invites Scrutiny of Records.

He added that the records in New York were open to anybody who cared to dig into them. At no time has he been in a position to benefit from the corner, he said.

It was learned that the "shorts" who are suffering most from the squeeze are Charles Hayden, senior partner in the investment firm of Hayden, Stone & Co. and chairman of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway, and B. W. Dyer, a sugar dealer.

Behind the sugar squeeze, however, lies a story showing that the speculators never could have rigged their corner had it not been for a series of government actions.

AAA Quota Aids Corner.

One of these was the new AAA sugar quota system itself. Another was the state department's desire to coddle Cuba and not to crack down on the island when its sugar trust entered into a price pegging arrangement. Still another factor was the government's failure to open the country to other available sugars, thus breaking the corner once it became evident.

Roots of the sugar squeeze run back into last summer. The Jones-Costigan act had set up a quota system under which domestic producers, Hawaiian, Porto Rican, Cuban, and other sugar interests were allowed to ship so much sugar into the United States during 1934 and no more.

The Cuban sugar trust, known as the Sugar Stabilization institute, was seeking assurance of the best possible price. They sought to hold off their sugar until late in the year, when imports from other countries had been exhausted. To do so required that some one extend the sugar trust money for expenses, taking warehouse receipts on the sugar as collateral.

N. Y. Banks Refuse Loan.

Big banks in New York, believing they had Cuba sewed up, refused the loan unless the sugar trust, a power in Havana politics, guaranteed that Cuba would make good her public works bonds and other securities held by the big banks. This the trust refused to do and was about to dump its sugar when a private banking house came to its aid with a loan.

Mr. Taussig, when asked about the identity of this private banking house,

BARBED WIRE ENTANGLEMENTS

Miss Alice Bradley, 19 years old, daughter of Herbert E. Bradley and Mrs. Mary Hastings Bradley, noted travelers and big game hunters, was married early today in Waukegan to William Davey, stepson of Cyrus McCormick Jr.

The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Henry F. Wallenwein at 2:30 p. m. The young couple had awakened him after obtaining a marriage license from Lew A. Hendee, Lake county's county clerk. They were unattended and requested both officials to keep the news of their wedding a secret.

Surprise to Relatives.

To the families of both the bride and bridegroom, it was learned, their plans were unknown. Mrs. Bradley, informed of the wedding, was reluctant to believe it had occurred.

"The young people have been devoted to each other," she said, "but this is an intense surprise. It sounds impossible."

Miss Bradley made her debut to Chicago society at a tea given by her parents at the Casino club on Dec. 20. Of that event the society columns related: "In her perfect poise and graciousness it was evident that a debut held few fears for Miss Bradley, who has penetrated the interiors of Africa and India on hunting safaris with her parents, dined with notables on a half dozen continents, and matched her artistic talents with the best at eastern boarding schools and colleges."

Bridegroom's Parents Sculptors.

Young Davey is 21 years old. He gave his residence as Nambe, N. M. He is the son of Randall Davey, sculptor, and of Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr., wife of the vice president of the International Harvester company. The Daveys were divorced in February, 1931, and Mr. McCormick and Mrs. Davey, who is herself a sculptor, were married a month later in Havana, Cuba.

NAZIS SEIZE U. S. GIRL; CHARGE SHE SLURS TROOPERS

WALDMOHR, Germany, Dec. 29 [Saturday].—(AP)—Miss Elsa Sittell of New York was under arrest here today as a result of derogatory remarks the young woman is alleged to have directed at the Hitlerite storm troopers and picked Nazi guards.

Miss Sittell disappeared while traveling in Germany near the French border. It was learned she stopped at Schoeneberg en route to Gangloff and entered a restaurant where she had the conversation which apparently resulted in her arrest.

While she was waiting for her train at the Schoeneberg station, police placed her under arrest. They accused her of uttering slanderous remarks.

The young woman is held awaiting possible transfer to the Sondergericht, a special court at Frankenthal, police said. The date for her hearing has not been fixed.

FILM DIRECTOR SHERMAN DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Sherman, who directed Mae West in "She Done Him Wrong" and Katharine Hepburn in "Morning Glory," was ordered to the hospital last Thursday from the Pathe studio, where he was directing an all color picture.

Sherman had suffered from laryngitis for the last year and had all but lost his voice. He had a habit of dressing lightly, wearing shorts and an open front shirt while he worked under the hot lights on the sound stages.

Sherman had been married three times, each time to an actress. His first wife was Evelyn Booth, his second Pauline Garon, who divorced him, and his third was Helen E. Costello, daughter of Maurice Costello, actor, and sister of Dolores Costello Barrymore. This marriage also ended in divorce. He lately had been reported betrothed to Geneva Mitchell, film actress.

Looks Helpful in Love, but Business Asks Personality

Mentality plus personality, not looks, is the foundation of success in careers and business, Mrs. F. E. Raymond of San Francisco told members of the National Commercial Teachers' federation, in convention at the Stevens hotel, yesterday. Looks may count in love, she said, but they are no other guarantee. As examples of "million dollar personalities" who do not count on facial perfection she cited Will Rogers, Andrew Mellon, Mae West, and Aimee Semple McPherson.

Mother's Love Puts an Erring Son in Jail Cell

A quarter of a century ago James Craver, who is now 30 years old, learned the ancient adage "Honesty is the best policy" at his mother's knee.

For a long time James remembered. But the times have been hard with him and he forgot on Dec. 17. He engaged that day in a burglary of the store of the Hagamann Jewelry company at 6904 Wentworth avenue.

With his loot he went to his mother's home at 205 East 70th street. Mrs. Della Craver, now 67, but alert in spite of her gray hair, found the box. Where, she asked, had James gotten the jewelry?

"A fellow gave it to me to keep for him," was the lame excuse.

Mother Upholds the Law.

"No," said the mother, "that is not the truth. You have forgotten to be honest, but I have not forgotten that you must obey the law. Give me that box."

"What will you do with it?" James demanded.

"There can be no compromise with dishonor," replied Mrs. Craver. "I shall take the box to the police and tell them you must pay the penalty for stealing."

Weeping, she handed the property to the Englewood police a little later. It was identified. The sorrowful mother explained that she was sorry she had been unable to bring her son with her.

Pride Transcends Love.

"But he'll be in later," she asserted confidently. "When he thinks it over he'll see his duty. He comes"—there was a flash of pride in her blue eyes—"of honest people."

Eleven days passed. The police assumed that James Craver had fled. He had, but not permanently. Last night Mrs. Craver walked into the Englewood station, and with her was James. She was weeping.

"It is awfully hard to do this," she said, "but there would be no peace for me if I knew he was still a thief at heart."

Head High, He Enters Cell.

Sergt. Joseph Condon questioned the young man.

"I stole," he said, "because I was broke. I haven't had a job in four years, and I was drunk when I pulled the job. Now I have repented. I would rather make good with mother than with the world; let me pay the penalty and be clean again."

His head was high and his shoulders square as he was led away to a cell. Mrs. Craver wanted to go into the cell and stay with him, but the police refused. They sent her home in a taxicab.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Lloyd Wright, attorney for Mary Pickford, movie actress, said today he had been instructed to go ahead immediately after Jan. 1 with her long pending divorce suit against Douglas Fairbanks.

Wright made the statement in response to questions after he filed in Superior court an affidavit showing that service on Fairbanks in the suit had been completed by mail. This completes the last legal step necessary to the setting of a date for trial.

Although Miss Pickford never has expressed any indication she might drop the suit, it has been pending more than a year—much longer than the average Hollywood divorce case awaits trial.

Told to Go Ahead.

"I have been instructed to go ahead with the divorce immediately after the first of the year," Wright said. He would make no further comment.

A few months ago in London Lord Ashley obtained a divorce from his wife, after trial of a suit in which Fairbanks was named co-respondent. Testimony was that Fairbanks and Lady Ashley had been seen together in many places on the continent and in the British Isles.

Meanwhile, Fairbanks had returned to Hollywood with his friend and business associate, Joseph Schenck. The latter put out statements expressing hope Fairbanks and his wife soon would be reconciled.

Calls on His Wife.

When Fairbanks came back he promptly went up to their one-time "dream house," called Pickfair, to see Mary. They were often seen together after that on long drives and at dinner parties.

But neither would affirm or deny conciliation rumors that floated about. They kept mum.

Only, it seems, Mary had been talking with her attorney from time to time, and today gave final instructions to press her suit for divorce.

Wright said he would go into court next week and ask that the divorce trial be placed on the calendar. Within two or three weeks it should be called for trial.

Unless something intervenes, Wright indicated, the interlocutory decree of divorce should be in his hands within the month.

Financial Settlement Made.

It was understood here tonight that a full financial settlement has been arranged between Miss Pickford and her husband, and that their only joint interest is in the property on which United Artists' movie studio is built in Hollywood. They are expected to retain their interests in this indefinitly. They have disposed of their interest in the United Artists' Studio corporation.

Doug Refuses Comment.

New York, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Douglas Fairbanks, reached tonight at the Waldorf hotel, said he had no comment to make and does not know what he will do in connection with the plans of Miss Pickford to press her divorce suit.

RUSSIAN TROOPS FIGHT PEASANTS; 2,000 CASUALTIES

LONDON, Dec. 29 (Saturday).—(AP)—A dispatch to the London Express from Warsaw today said 2,000 soviet soldiers and Mohammedan peasants were killed or wounded in a battle Thursday in the soviet republic of Turkestan, near the Afghan border.

The dispatch said that when the soviet police were resisted as they attempted to collect grain the soviet regiment's bombing planes were sent to the scene and crushed the Mohammedans after an all-day battle. Many of the latter fled to Afghanistan.

Later, the dispatch said, 14 Mohammedans were reported executed as a punishment.

CROP CUT PAST, SAYS WALLACE; EXPANSION NEXT

Urges Industries to Spur Production.

Discuss Many Issues

Leading economists, social scientists and business advisers discussed science, recovery problems, and governmental issues yesterday.

Need for drastic crop reductions under the Agricultural Adjustment administration is past and the time for controled expansion of farm production has arrived, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace declared here last night. He invited industry to join even more vigorously than agriculture in this expansion of production, hailing such an economy of abundance as the way to end the depression.

Members of the American Statistical association, who heard the secretary at their annual dinner at the Palmer house, a few minutes later heard John Dickinson, assistant secretary of commerce, criticize critics of the Roosevelt administration, and the first of the critical theories he assailed was one which fitted fairly exactly the proposal made by his fellow New Dealer, Secretary Wallace.

"Doctors" Differ on Cure.

The incident was the latest of a series observed during the present week in Chicago in which prominent New Deal doctors have disagreed on the proper prescription for curing America, their patient, of depression ills. Since Christmas the city has been clogged with dozens of meetings of learned societies at which members have read hundreds of papers analyzing the social, economic, and political ills of the nation and suggesting remedies. In all, there are more than 2,000 scientists in faculty consultation at the sickbed.

Criticism, often violent, of New Deal panaceas has been common among the social physicians outside the administration professoriat. But still more striking have been the radical disagreements among the official New Dealers themselves.

Assail Own Theories.

Thus last Wednesday evening Prof. G. F. Warren of Cornell university assured the American Farm Economic association that the dollar paring in which he was President Roosevelt's closest adviser was responsible for the rise in farm prices. He asserted further that, if the AAA corn-hog and wheat reduction programs did not actually hamper price raising, they certainly did little to help it.

Next day Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel, economic adviser to Secretary Wallace, not only paid his respects to Dr. Warren but said a few unkind words about NRA and PWA. The fundamental purpose of the AAA was to cure the disparity between high industrial prices and low agricultural prices, he pointed out, and this task was made more difficult when the NRA codes boosted industrial prices still higher, widening the gap which the farm policy hoped to narrow.

As for public works, he said that, while they were intended to crank the engine of industrial recovery, expenditures had been too slow to get it to the starting point.

Wallace Differs with NRA.

Secretary Wallace's proposal for industry last night was at direct variance with the NRA policy of keeping prices up by cutting production down.

Taking the automobile industry as an example, he said, it would be possible for the motor makers, if they cut prices radically, to increase their 1935 output from the 2,600,000 car level of this year to 4,000,000 cars, gaining in both gross and net profits and giving national income and prosperity a tremendous boost.

But Assistant Secretary Dickinson, himself an ex-professor, assailed critics of administration policies on the ground that they attempt to apply simple yardsticks, defective in that they are over-simplified. First on his list of these allegedly fallacious yardsticks was "the panacea that more and more production must come about, irrespective of the kind of increase in national wealth, therefore that any form of production control is barred."

Opposes Durable Goods Plea.

At the same time, Dr. Dickinson made a point of stating that he agreed with Secretary Wallace's contentions, and the secretary added further complication to the situation when he departed from his prepared speech to answer a plea by Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust company, for revival of the durable goods industries as a solution for unemployment. In that respect Secretary Wallace took the position that indiscriminate production of durable goods might be unwise.

In his prepared address Secretary Wallace said that the 1935 program for agricultural recovery seeks correction of "three important maladjustments." The first is the internal unbalance between live stock and stock food supply, and is fairly well in hand, the principal danger in that field being one of new and thoughtless expansion to pile up again the surpluses which the drouth and the pig killing campaign wiped out.

Urges More Imports.

He next touched briefly on development of foreign trade in American farm products, repeating his familiar thesis that export markets can be found only if the United States admits more imports from abroad, and stating that the nation must choose soon between economic nationalism, economic internationalism or a middle ground between the two.

"But it is the problem having to do with the needed balance between agricultural and industrial prices and production which particularly needs emphasis now, it seems to me," said Secretary Wallace.

"The gravity of the problem is suggested by the fact, too little stressed in business circles, that in 1934 agricultural production was roughly 15 per cent under that of 1929, whereas industrial production was about 40 per cent under 1929; that agricultural prices were still about 40 per cent above 1929, whereas industrial prices were within 15 per cent of 1929. Consequently the measure of our recovery in 1935, as I see it, will be determined principally by the price and production policies of industry.

Agriculture Watches Industry.

"Agriculture is more and more interested in this question of industrial prices and production because it has progressed about as far as it can in raising prices by reducing the supply. In fact, our adjustment programs for 1935 call for increases in supply. Any further increase in agricultural income, we believe, depends primarily upon a substantial increase in industrial production, which in turn means higher consumer purchasing power and greater national income."

Reiterating his proposal, Secretary Wallace said:

"Doubtless some further increase in farm prices could be obtained by further reductions of agricultural supplies, but to pursue this course at this time would surely not be in the public interest.

"Time Now to Expand."

"With most of the unwieldy, price depressing surpluses disposed of, the time for drastic reduction is over, and the time for controled expansion, for continuing adjustment, is here. If this is true of producers whose 1934 output was 15 per cent under that of 1929, it is doubly true of producers whose 1934 output was 40 per cent under that of 1929."

Total farm income for 1934 is estimated at 9.5 to 10 per cent of the total national income, whereas on the averages of the last 70 years the farmers should get 14 per cent of the national total, Secretary Wallace said. To adjust this disparity during 1935, farm income must be boosted 40 per cent, about $2,000,000,000.

Turns Arguments on NRA.

Then, while he did not mention by name the NRA policies of production restriction and price raising, Secretary Wallace adopted a diametrically opposite argument that many industries may not be able to increase their volume of production unless they cut prices. He argued that this is practicable for industry, more so than in agriculture, because in industry gross returns tend to be greater for larger volumes than for restricted volumes.

Taking automobiles as an example, he said that, while the wholesale price of the average car dropped $110 between 1929 and 1934, analysis of supply and demand factors shows that the theoretical price level based on reduced national income should have dropped $225 per car, and that only restriction of automobile production by 50 per cent prevented this price drop being accomplished.

Col. Ayres' Proposal.

Asserting that complete revival of the durable goods industries would give jobs to half of the 10,000,000 unemployed directly, and would make work for the other half in the service industries, such as transportation, which have slowed down because of lack of business from the durable goods industries, Col. Ayres argued:

"We have as a nation a brilliant opportunity to secure a natural recovery, if we are willing to give up trying to achieve a managed recovery for business. The opportunity consists in immense shortages in construction and durable goods that have accumulated during the depression.

"The statistical total of such accumulated shortages amounts to something between 85 and 100 billion dollars worth. They do not all have to be made up, but a considerable part must be if, as a nation, we are to return to our former standards of living. If all the shortages had to be made up the durable goods and construction industries would have to operate at 25 per cent above their normal levels of activity for ten years in order to supply them."

Sees Three Big Obstacles.

Three classes of obstacles, all artificial and political rather than natural and economic, must be removed before business can take advantage of the opportunity which he sketched, Col. Ayres said. These obstacles, he said, are the 5,000 new regulations for business embodied in NRA codes; fear of the future of the currency, based principally on huge governmental expenditures and budget deficits, and the securities act, which is a serious bar to the long term borrowings which business must have to finance its purchases of durable goods.

"It has long been a maxim of finance that you can't unscramble scrambled eggs," said Col. Ayres. "It may be that we shall learn in the not distant future that you can't unmanage a managed economy, and that in a democracy you can't persuade an economic nationalism to economize."

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Prof. Albert Einstein demonstrated again today his elementary mathematical proof that so-called matter is just a form of energy, but he is highly skeptical as to the practical value of this theory to mankind in its search for new sources of power. Perhaps when sun, tides, coal, oil, and water run out man may tap this cosmic power plant, but not now.

While energy is the basis of everything, including life itself, it is locked in the mysterious nucleus of the atom, and the attempt to get it out is likened by Einstein to shooting at birds in the dark. The target is too small for practical purposes.

"It is like hunting birds in a country where there are very few birds, and in pitch darkness," he said in the course of a press interview which preceded his lecture at the Carnegie Institute of Technology before the mathematical society of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Look Forward to Experiment.

Scientists in the meantime are looking forward to the results of the bombardment of the atom with the 10,000,000 volt Vam de Graaff generator, which will release electric bullets at a speed that is 100,000 times as great as that of a rifle ball. Even this, Einstein explained, is like taking a gun out in front of the hotel in the night and shooting in the hope of bringing down a duck. The universe seems to consist mostly of space.

Einstein is far less dogmatic and mystical in his views of relativity, the quantum theory, and toward the new concept of indeterminism in subatomic physics than many of his followers, and particularly the "back stairs literary scientists" who are springing new and disturbing thoughts about the fourth dimension, determinism, and indeterminism.

While the philosophical aspects of the new physics are cropping out in many fields of thought, Einstein prefers to cling to the old concept of regulation by law. He is not so sure that the universe is finite as he was in the earlier stages of his relativity concept. The new 200 inch telescope that is being made may show enough of a segment of space to prove whether it is curved or not, just as a giant photograph taken over the Andes has indicated the curvature of the earth.

Majority Abandon Idea.

The majority of physicists, Einstein said, are abandoning the idea of a strictly deterministic universe for one governed by statistical laws, in which events seem to happen by the laws of probability. That is the way that gas engines are run and the eclipse of the sun predicted. But there is something deeper than this, he admits.

"The Heinsenberg principle of uncertainty," he said, "comes close to proving that observation of a system in its initial state is impossible because it is influenced by the acts of observation is a way unknown to us. This does not necessarily disprove determinism. It makes it impossible to prove it. (Just as the existence of ether can neither be proved nor disproved.) If one cannot observe the state of a system at any time, how can he say whether it is determined or not? It is always possible to state a law of nature either in statistical or deterministic form, and it might be considered that the statistical is only a part of the expression of the non-statistical."

The upshot of his view as to whether the cosmos is constitutionally law abiding or filled with chaos and chance is that this is a matter of choice for the individual.

"A Matter of Taste."

"It is a matter of taste," he said, "I personally believe in a deterministic form."

From this it will be seen that if this basic uncertainty is carried, as it must be, into the biological field, and affects the mind of man, science such as he knows does not close the door to any form of ultimate belief. Such questions as free will or the existence of God may also be a matter of choice, so far as science is concerned.

Einstein is a hard working scientist. When asked what progress he had made on the construction of his unified theory, taking in gravitation and electricity and the dual nature of light, he said:

"I have worked many years on these problems and have certain hopes. Nothing sure, only hopes. If we try to solve deep scientific questions we must realize that the probability of finding anything is very small. We should always work and not despair."

"Nothing New" in Lecture.

There was "nothing new" in his lecture subject, he said. He explained this as follows:

"It is well known that the equivalence between energy and inertial mass is one of the most important consequences of the special theory of relativity. This principle forms at present a useful tool in the physics of atomic nuclei."

The equality of mass and energy is derived from an assumption and the proof is based on the consideration of an elastic and an inelastic collision between two identically constituted material particles.

Prof. Einstein arrived at Pittsburgh last night from the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J. He was the guest at the home of a Pittsburgh merchant. He spent some time in the Mellon institute, where hundreds of scientific exhibits are set up, including one that records the cosmic rays that come into the room.

SOME HIGHLIGHTS IN PAPERS READ AT SCIENTISTS' SESSION

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 28. — (AP) —Here are brief summaries of some of the many papers presented before the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

Lack of education plays a greater part in tuberculosis distribution than climate, according to Alfred N. Cowles III, and Dr. Edward N. Chapman, Colorado Springs, Colo. They found that various things influencing the amount of tuberculosis in any state were in the following order of importance: Illiteracy of white population, 40 per cent; hours of sunshine, 30; altitude, 13; money spent for schools, 11; annual rain and snow fall, 4; daily temperature range, 1; distribution of population by occupation, 1.

Dates when mounds and other structures were erected by Indian tribes in the middle west and southeastern states are now being determined by the tree ring method, each growth of old timbers in the mounds being characteristic of a certain year, reported Dr. F. M. Hawley of the Tennessee Valley authority. The earliest date so far determined is 1315 A. D. for an old timber on an Indian village site in the Norris basin.

Inhaling cigaret smoke and drinking black coffee have opposite effects on the human body. Coffee soothes the cigaret's effect. The best time to smoke cigarets—if you inhale and want to avoid increased unsteadiness of your hands and a much faster pulse—is right after drinking two cups of black coffee, it was reported by Prof. A. I. Winsor and E. I. Strongin of Cornell university.

New "weather maps" of the upper air, showing what's happening up to three miles above earth, are proving better weather forecasts for the United States than ever before, the chief of the weather bureau announced. The "sky maps" are the main feature of the new "air mass analysis" method of forecasting, in use by the weather bureau only six months. They give the forecaster a much more complete picture of the structure of the upper air, where weather is largely born, than has ever before been available.

The public is paying for a lot of sound it doesn't hear in big bands and orchestras. It would take 27 tenors of equal ability to double the volume and other material advantages of one, and 717 to treble it, stated a paper of John Redfield of Fairfield, Conn. Anything less than a 4 per cent increase in sound cannot be heard, Redfield asserted. He found a second voice or violin added 22 per cent of volume, a third 10 per cent, a fourth 6½ per cent, and a fifth 4.8. Since a sixth added but 3.8 per cent, he said it could be dispensed with and not noticed either by the conductor or audience.

AAA ABUSES ROB FARM WORKERS, SAYS EDUCATOR

Tenants Lose Jobs and Homes, Parley Told.

The New Deal as enforced in the crop production control program of the Agricultural Adjustment administration has operated to displace a considerable number of farm laborers and farm tenants, a section meeting of the American Sociological society was told by Prof. Wilson Gee of the University of Virginia at the Morrison hotel yesterday.

Regions most affected are the high tenancy ones in the cotton and tobacco growing parts of the south and those sections where considerable hired labor is used, Prof. Gee said. The net effect thus far, he stated, has been to augment the relief rolls in the areas concerned.

Defeat Intent of Controls.

"The crop reduction contracts for the year 1934," said Prof. Gee, "carry provisions which were designed to prevent such displacement in the case of tenant farmers, but various ways, ruthless and otherwise, have been devised to circumvent the application of these provisions.

"The AAA crop reduction program was fundamentally predicated upon an accompanying marked recovery of the manufacturing industries which has as yet occurred only to a limited extent. The underlying philosophy is that the farming industry of the nation will be improved by having fewer and more efficient farmers.

"If the urban industrialized interests can absorb its unemployed and the surplus farm population as well, such theory will work in practice.

"As matters stand, however, this seems unlikely in the near future."

Prof. Gee's opinion as to the displacement of share-croppers by the workings of the AAA was shared by Harold C. Hoffsommer of the Alabama Polytechnic institute.

Urge Control by States.

State control of unemployment reserves instead of a national system was advocated in a paper written by Elizabeth Brandeis, daughter of the United States Supreme court justice and professor of labor legislation at the University of Wisconsin. The paper was read by her husband, Dr. Paul Raushenbush, administrator of the Wisconsin unemployment compensation law, at a joint session of the sociological society, the American Association for Labor Legislation, and the American Statistical association.

"No doubt the advocates of national action believe it would produce a better quality of administration by making it more possible to keep politics out," read the paper. "Unfortunately, the record of past and present national administrations does not lend too much color to this belief. Slow experimentation by the states seems most advisable."

MRS. PINCHOT II. GETS A DIVORCE IN FLORIDA CITY

Dade City, Fla., Dec. 28.—(AP)—A divorce was granted to Mrs. Gifford Pinchot II., daughter of Gabriel Voisin, French automobile and airplane manufacturer, in Circuit court here Dec. 8 on grounds of infidelity, William M. Larkin, her attorney, announced today.

Larkin said Mrs. Pinchot filed her suit Nov. 22 and did not name a corespondent. After the divorce was granted he said Mrs. Pinchot went to New York, where she planned to return to a stage career she abandoned when she married Pinchot seven years ago in Paris. She was known on the stage as Jeanine Voisin.

The divorce granted by Circuit Judge John I. Viney gave custody of two children, Marianne, 5 years old, and Diane Rosamond, 5 months old, to Mrs. Pinchot, who also will receive an annual income from 70 per cent of a $500,000 trust fund belonging to her former husband.

Educator Stresses America's Need of Trained Statesmen

Government service is a means of self-expression, more basic than the profit motive in modern American life. The service needs the best brains available and its attractiveness as a career should be stressed early in the individual's education.

Prof. Samuel C. May of the University of California expressed these views yesterday at a luncheon of the American Political Science association in the Hotel Sherman. He praised the work of the federal civil service commission, whose latest methods were explained earlier by Prof. Leonard D. White of the University of Chicago, a member of the commission.

"We can't guarantee to produce a statesman by formal training," Prof. May declared, "but we can build a nucleus which some day will bring us these statesmen.

Opposes Wild Propaganda.

"The citizen must be protected from propaganda and wild experiments on theoretical bases. The ballot is only a means of prevention. But if we teach our young men and young women early in life that the political scene is a fascinating one, well worth attention, the day will come when we will not need tardy preventive methods."

In discussing civil service methods, Prof. White told of a recent general examination given to college graduates, which has given the commission a capable roster from which to fill positions in the future.

It must not be thought, however, that the service can absorb all qualified college graduates, he said.

Discuss Centered Power.

At round table meetings of the political science association there were discussions of the increasing centralization of power in the federal government and the necessity for reform of naturalization laws to do away with allegiance to more than one country.

The association elected the following officers for the coming year: President, F. W. Croker, Yale university; vice presidents, E. M. Salt, Pomona college, California, John Dickinson, assistant secretary of commerce, and Sarah Wambaugh of Cambridge, Mass.; secretary and treasurer, Clyde L. King, University of Pennsylvania.

The association will conclude its three day meeting today with a luncheon at which V. V. Obolensky-Ossinsky, vice chairman and member of the institute for economic research of the State Planning commission at Moscow, U. S. S. R., will talk on soviet planned economy.

DOCTOR URGES STERILIZATION OF UNFIT IN U. S.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—A biological New Deal which will segregate and sterilize the anti-social and the mentally unfit was asked tonight in an address by Dr. Ernest Albert Hooton of Harvard university. He spoke at a joint session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science with the society of the Sigma Xi.

His 10 years' research into the American criminal leads him to state that "the biological inferiority of the criminal is no less marked than his economic ineffectiveness and his general stupidity."

Assertions of racial inequality or equality are equally unscientific, he said, declaring he has been unable to find any marked improvement of man's evolutionary status since the end of the glacial period.

"We all admit that our social engine has stalled," he said, "and that a succession of political, economic, and sociological drivers have been pulling and pushing every movable gadget in a futile effort to make it start.

"What we must avoid is a regressive deterioration of mankind as a result of the reckless and copious breeding of protected inferiors. Let us cease to delude ourselves with the belief that education, religion, or other measures of social amelioration can transform base metal into gold. Public enemies must be destroyed—not reformed. Intelligent artificial selection should replace natural selection."

New discoveries in psychics, in which Einstein was the pioneer, the evolutionary concept, and new mathematics have forced a new mode of thinking upon scientists and non-scientists, according to Prof. Oliver L. Reiser of the department of philosophy, University of Pittsburgh.

URGES STUDENTS' RIGHT TO BARGAIN WITH OFFICIALS

Boston, Mass., Dec. 28. — (AP) — The right of collective bargaining with the trustees of their college by a student body was proposed today by Dr. Henry N. McCracken, president of Vassar college.

Addressing several hundred collegians at the first day session of the tenth annual congress of the National Student Federation of America, Dr. McCracken said the principle had been universally conceded that the students have the right to organize in their own name and that the only question was what their share was in the business of college government.

He also proposed that, through a student commission on the course of study, "undergraduates should have the right of free expression of opinion in all requirements for degrees, as to hours of study, number of courses, standards of work."

REVEAL WILSON'S SECRET ORDER TO PEACE ENVOYS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Woodrow Wilson's page in the history of the Versailles peace conference was clarified on his birthday today by unfolding of two hitherto unpublished volumes of state papers.

The shielded correspondence between the state department and the American commissioners in the Paris peace conference disclosed that Wilson instructed the American representatives not to participate in any decisions based on treaty provisions until after the pact had been ratified by the senate.

To keep fully informed on all developments in setting up machinery to carry out the peace terms, shape decisions for the protection of American interests, and still not entangle the United States in the proceedings Wilson instituted an "unofficial observer" diplomacy.

After the senate had refused to ratify the treaty, Secretary Lansing, on Wilson's advice, withdrew American participation from all commissions and committees except from the supreme council. The United States, the papers disclose, continued to be represented on that body.

HAILS MANKIND'S GAINS TRACED TO SCIENTIFIC MODE

Bacteriologists Hear of Important Advances.

A by product of science—the infiltration of the scientific method into the mode and thinking and attitude of the man in the street—was acclaimed last night by a noted scientist, Dr. M. J. Rosenau, professor of preventative medicine at Harvard university and retiring president of the Society of American Bacteriologists.

In the president's annual address following a banquet of the society in the Drake hotel, Dr. Rosenau told the several hundred distinguished bacteriologists and physicians that the growing tendency of the "man in the street," the "average" layman to decide his problems in the scientific mode of thinking may have a secondary effect of vastly more value than its primary aim.

Factor in Conquest of Disease.

"It has taught a frank facing of realities calmly and impersonally," he said, "and this attitude has had a profound effect upon society and its morality and its ethics. When the history of this speech is written the one outstanding recorded accomplishment will be the conquest of disease, in which bacteriologists have played an important part.

Late in the afternoon Dr. Fred O. Tonney, of the Chicago department of health, showed a motion picture completed six weeks ago after a year's arduous work in which living bacilli of the endameba histolytica type projected themselves across the screen. They were of five types, one of which is active in causing amebic dysentery. Dr. Tonney declared that Chicago is now "the safest place in the world" so far as this disease is concerned.

Safer Swimming.

Earlier in the day W. L. Mallmann, assistant professor of bacteriology of Michigan State college, described a new type of sodium thiosulphate treated bottle and its use in testing water in swimming pools. Coöperating with the Lansing department of health, he tested swimming pools there by the new method and found that bacteria were found in chlorinated swimming pools which previously had been considered absent. The result was that new standards were enforced there.

SAPIRO IS FREED, ROTH CONVICTED ON BRIBE CHARGE

New York, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Aaron Sapiro, the Chicago-New York lawyer who once sued Henry Ford for a million dollars for publication of anti-Semitic statements, was acquitted today in federal court of attempting to bribe a jury in a mail fraud case early in 1933.

His co-defendant, Samuel Roth, formerly a Jersey City banker, was found guilty on one count charging attempts to influence a jury. The conviction carries a penalty of a year in jail and a fine of $1,000.

Assistant United States District Attorney Jacob Grumet, who handled the government's case in a previous trial, tried to show yesterday that Sapiro had engaged Roth to offer bribes to relatives of three jurors in the trial of Murray C. Harwood, the attorney's client, Sidney Paris, and Kenneth C. Mierdiercks, all of whom were later convicted of mail fraud.

ROADS FACE U. S. OWNERSHIP, SAYS EASTMAN'S AID

Fight on Competition Ills Told to Economists.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Public ownership of railroads would entail many obvious hazards, but the United States may be forced to chance those hazards if consolidations and coördination of facilities fail to free the roads from the burdens of competition, Leslie Craven, counsel for Railroad Coördinator Joseph B. Eastman, stated in a paper read yesterday to a section of the American Economic association at the Palmer house. Mr. Craven was detained in Washington and his paper was presented by Prof. Leo Sharfman of the University of Michigan.

The railroad problem, he maintained, is fundamentally one of human relationships, resting on antagonisms to the carriers which arose half a century ago in the grange movement. These antagonisms, he said, have profoundly affected railroad regulation.

Apply Conflicting Theories.

"In the United States," said Mr. Craven, "we have concurrently and rigorously applied two theories of regulation to the railroads which are mutually contradictory. We have regulated them as a natural monopoly. At the same time we have enforced competition."

Reduction or abolition of competition between railroads and regulation of their competitors was the formula advanced by Mr. Craven for solving the railroad problem. Reduction of competition can be accomplished to some extent by pooling facilities and more extensively by consolidation into a few national trunk systems, while government ownership would solve the problem by eliminating competition entirely, the speaker pointed out.

If railroads will pool their freight cars they can save betwen 75 and 100 millions a year, Mr. Craven said. Pooling less than carload shipment business, at present largely unprofitable, would save another 100 millions, pooling of terminal facilities would cut expenses 50 millions, and similar treatment of shop facilities would mean a saving of 60 millions, he said.

Offers 300 Million Saving.

The Prince plan for consolidating the railroads of the country into seven systems would save between 300 and 400 millions a year, Mr. Craven believes, but he pointed out that consolidation can be accomplished only through government compulsion, and recommended coördination and pooling.

Mr. Craven admitted frankly the hazard of political spoilsmen invading the 26 billion dollar railroad system under public ownership, as well as the hazard of legislative interference with railroad economics through the demands of blocs representing labor and agriculture. At the same time he held that efforts at coördination and consolidation failing, the United States may have to face those hazards.

"In this railroad world," he concluded, "we are now in a transition from what is popularly called rugged individualism to that something which will emerge, possibly as a mere stage transitional to something else. In this there will be a higher expression, in what form we do not know, of the inevitable proposition that the railroads of the country must be operated for the common good; that whatever finds its inspiration in the individual good to the detriment of the common good must fall away.

Calls Future Uncertain.

"But as to what form it is to take, I suggest that you consult your clairvoyant."

On the same program Prof. Herbert E. Dougall of Northwestern university declared that solution of the nation's problem of transportation as a whole may be expected most confidently under the following conditions:

"Revision of the financial structure of the railways to accord with their true long time earning power; consolidation and coördination of railway property to avoid duplication; coördination between rail, highway, water, and air transportation in which each plays its proper rôle, regardless of past investment; and enlightened central regulation of all forms of transport."

Argentine Chamber O. K.'s 225 Million Budget Bill

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 28.—The Argentine chamber of deputies tonight approved budget expenditures of 904,939,546 pesos [about $225,000,000]. This sum is about 20,000,000 pesos in excess of the original estimates.

TAVERN BOMBED AFTER MYSTERY SHOT AT OWNER

"Red" Donovan's Kin Is Wounded.

Following a mysterious attack on Edward [Red] Donovan and his brother-in-law, James Burke, in which Burke was wounded, last night, a bomb was exploded early today at the Strand taproom, 6325 Cottage Grove avenue. The taproom had not yet been opened for business. Donovan told police that he was to be a partner of Arthur J. Ball, to whom the place had been leased, in its operation, but that they had not yet been able to obtain a license.

Arm Shattered by Bullet.

Burke was at the Jackson Park hospital, his arm shattered by a bullet. Donovan received a wrenched knee in his efforts to escape his assailants. Donovan when found by police a mile from the shooting scene first declared he had been alone when a sedan pulled up beside the automobile he was driving near Maryland avenue and 78th streets, and let go a blast of shotgun slugs. Donovan said the car he was driving belonged to Burke, but that Burke was in Florida.

Later, however, Burke was taken to the hospital by a doctor to whom he had gone for treatment. Burke said he had been driving the car in which Donovan was riding, but told the same story otherwise.

Donovan, police said, has a record as an associate of Danny Stanton, south side gangster. He owned several "speakeasies" during prohibition, police said.

Linked with Movie Union.

Police said both Donovan and Burke were connected with the Motion Picture Operators' union. This was denied by Thomas E. Maloy, czar of the union.

Donovan, who is 34 years old, gave his address as the Pershing hotel, and Burke, 26, lives at 8210 Loomis boulevard.

Damage caused by the bomb was estimated by police at $400. Windows of several nearby stores were shattered. Sergt. Marshall Pidgeon of the bomb detail went to the Burnside police station, where Donovan was held, to question him. The taproom is in the room formerly occupied by the Banzai café, where Michael [Bubs] Quinlan was shot to death last July.

IRISH RECEIVE $1,095,000 IN YULE CASH FROM U. S.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

DUBLIN, Dec. 28.—Official returns today revealed that money order remittances from persons in the United States to residents of the Irish Free State this Christmas were heavier than last year. Nevertheless, the total amount shows a decrease over the peak years of 1924 and 1925.

A total of 85,000 money orders, to the value of $1,095,000, was received by Free State families from relatives and friends in the United States this Christmas, as against 75,000 orders, to the value of $1,010,000, last Christmas.

The remittances were distributed among a larger number of persons this year, and the average amount of each order showed a decline in value.

CONTROL OF LAW ENFORCEMENT BY U. S. IS OPPOSED

Impossible, Prosecutors' Convention Is Told.

Federal control of law enforcement in this country is impracticable and impossible, Prof. Justin Miller, dean of Duke university law school, told Illinois state's attorneys at their 38th annual convention in the Morrison hotel yesterday. Other speakers included Prof. Roscoe Pound, dean of Harvard university law school; Attorney Floyd E. Thompson, former Illinois Supreme court justice, and former Judge James A. Baldwin, president of the Illinois Bar association.

Prof. Miller declared that the attorney general realizes the impossibility of federal control of law enforcement and for that reason does not plan to organize a federal Scotland Yard. Mr. Miller is a special assistant to the attorney general and chairman of the law enforcement committee of the American Bar association.

Points to Varying Concepts.

"Different communities have different ideas of the seriousness of crimes, and for that reason should determine for themselves the penalties to meet them," he said. "The national prohibition law was a failure for this reason."

Dean Pound, reviewing the historical background of the office of public prosecutor, suggested that law enforcement could be improved by lifting a number of burdens from the shoulders of the prosecutor. He urged three recommendations in order to accomplish this: First, reduce the threefold duties of the prosecutor which consist of crime investigation, suppression of vice and immorality and prosecution of crime; second, modernize the present court procedure, and third, awaken the public to a realization of the importance of general security.

Would Remove Some Checks.

"We can modernize our present court procedure by getting rid of the checks on private prosecutions, which were the only prosecutions under the old common law, and still retain the checks insuring fair trial," he said.

Mr. Thompson in his talk before the group at the noon lunch, declared that crime conditions in this country are not as bad as public speakers say.

Pointing to the quick methods of procedure in Nazi Germany and soviet Russia, Mr. Thompson said:

"I am satisfied that we would not relish a hair trigger law enforcer behind every light post."

Officers Are Elected.

A resolution was adopted referring to the executive committee for study a proposal to supplant county sheriff police work with a centralized state police. Another resolution congratulated State's Attorney Courtney for his drive against criminals.

Edwin V. Champion of Peoria was elected president to succeed Guy E. McGaughey. Lester Geers of Madison county was elected secretary-treasurer.

The two day conference was adjourned after the election, but this morning the prosecutors will inspect the central police headquarters.

Husband Shoots Himself While His Wife Looks On

As his wife looked at him in horror, Kenneth Anderson, 24 years old, a railway clerk, shot himself early today while seated in their home at 4433 North Winchester avenue. Police who took Anderson to Ravenswood hospital said his condition appeared to be critical. While Anderson had threatened suicide in the past, he fired the shot so suddenly that his wife was unable to interfer, she told Lieut. Patrick Knox of the North Damen avenue police.

DIES OF EXPOSURE.

Albert Mann, 82 years old, who was found unconscious Thursday in a shack at 1841 Van Buren street, where he had taken refuge, died of exposure in the County hospital yesterday.

Library Group to Request Millions in Federal Aid

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Federal aid for libraries throughout the United States in annual appropriations of from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 will be sought by the American Library association. The association's council, in midwinter convention at the Knickerbocker hotel, voted yesterday to request the government for the appropriations and for a federal library agency to allocate the funds.

This will be the first time in the history of American libraries that aid has been asked from the federal government, according to Carleton B. Joeckel, chairman of the committee on federal relations, who introduced resolutions recommending federal aid.

Outline Plan of Distribution.

As outlined in the resolutions, the federal funds would be allotted to the states and territories through such state library agencies as are approved by federal authority and after approval of state programs for library development.

"Fifty per cent of the fund should be distributed to the states on the basis of population and the other 50 on the basis of need," the resolutions stated.

The principle of federal aid for libraries was one of several indorsed by the association several months ago. A national planning committee was appointed to further nation-wide service for libraries. The request for federal aid is one of its chief objectives. The committee is headed by Harry M. Lydenberg, dean of the graduate library school of the University of Chicago.

425,000 in City Lack Service.

At an afternoon sectional meeting of librarians from the larger libraries, it was disclosed that 425,000 persons in the Chicago metropolitan area are without library service. This was told by Leon Carnovsky, instructor in the graduate library school of the University of Chicago, who made a survey of 78 libraries in metropolitan Chicago.

"Some libraries are housed in makeshift quarters, others have meager book stocks, are open only a few hours and at such times patrons are unable to make use of them," the speaker said.

Mr. Carnovsky ranked the public libraries of Evanston, Highland Park, and Oak Park as first, second, and third, respectively, in book resources. The main library of Chicago was not included in the survey.

PROF. DAWSON WARNS OF PERIL OF INFLATION

The disruptive results of inflation and the difficulty in remedying these results in the courts were reviewed yesterday by Professor John P. Dawson of the University of Michigan school of law. Mr. Dawson, who fears inflation in an aggravated form is on the way in the United States, spoke at the annual meeting of the Association of American Law Schools at the Stevens hotel.

"Lawyers should be the first to see the swiftly disruptive effect upon private contracts certain to be caused by the capricious forces set in motion by any disturbance of the monetary system," Mr. Dawson said. "The strains that appear must be corrected by legal agencies."

But just how private enterprise is to be protected during inflation, the speaker was less certain, especially in the light of previous inflations and attendant court cases, both in this country and abroad.

INTERSTATE EXPERT SEES HOPE FOR END OF DUPLICATED TAX

Complaints of duplication of tax levies have aroused the government to the need of eliminating these unfair burdens, James W. Martin, research director of the Interstate Commission on Conflicting Taxation, declared yesterday. He spoke to the members of the Tax Policy league at their meeting in the Hotel Sherman.

"An especially favorable sign," he said, "is the federal action within the last week ordering a treasury investigation of the entire federal, state and local tax situation from the point of view of eliminating duplicating assessments. The budgets of the states and their subdivisions suffer even more from the unnecessary conflicts now existing than do the taxpayers."

The conflicts bring about misunderstandings in technical provisions of the tax laws, Martin asserted.

FARTHING, BLIND JUSTICE, HOLDS CHICAGO SESSION

Humor and Philosophy Creep Into Hearings.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday morning Justice Paul Farthing of Belleville, member of the Illinois Supreme court, laid his cane on the broad desk in the chambers of the late Justice Frederic R. De Young in the county building and seated himself. Briskly ignoring proffered assistance, he snapped open a thick gold watch, felt its uncovered hands, and began work.

Throughout the day he heard motions, as downstate justices will continue to do on Fridays, taking turns except during court terms, until an election is held to fill the vacancy caused by Justice De Young's death.

Justice Farthing is blind. When he was 12 years old his eyes were shot out in a hunting accident. He is said to be the only blind member of a court of review in the country.

Second Youngest Member.

A man of vigorous physique, with a clear, resonant voice and a harty handclasp, he is second to the youngest member on the Supreme court bench. He is 47 years old. Justice Elwyn R. Shaw of Freeport is 46 years old.

With homely humor and hints of sage advice, Justice Farthing counseled the lawyers who appeared before him, and in turn freely asked them for help when he wanted to sign an order.

"Just put a little ink on this pen and show me where to sign," he would say.

"You'll Get It Done."

To a lawyer who pleaded for an extension of time for filing an abstract to the April term of court, telling Justice Farthing that he was so busy "that my mother hasn't seen me at supper for two weeks," Justice Farthing replied:

"Well, she sees you for breakfast, doesn't she? I'd like to give you that much time, but you'll get it done. Just get done what you have to do, you can. We can't let this woman stay out of jail too long—that is, if the conviction is to be affirmed. I'll give you 10 days more."

Hears Objection to Finding.

To a criminal lawyer, once an assistant state's attorney, who asked for a stay of mandate to allow him to file a petition for a rehearing of his client's case, and who objected to the court's findings, Justice Farthing said tolerantly:

"I don't know what we can do—not much, if you people in this county don't quit trying cases the way you do. You've been on both sides. You know that neither side gives a lawsuit the attention it deserves. Well, we can't reverse all of 'em."

Prefers to Be "Human."

His philosophy crept into another statement to a lawyer: "There isn't any sense in a judge not being human, in not remembering he was a lawyer once. Go right ahead and say what you want to. It isn't embarrassing to me at all, even if I did write the opinion you're alluding to. A judge who pretends to any special superior wisdom isn't much good. I think I was all right, though."

Several old friends from downstate dropped in during the day before Attorney General Otto Kerner came in to take Justice Farthing to lunch. One of these asked him about "the boys from East St. Louis." Justice Farthing told how they were.

"I don't get to play poker with them much any more, though, Joe," he said. "I don't have the time, with all the reading I have to do."

"Reading" Done by Secretary.

His "reading" is done by his secretary. The secretary did not accompany the justice here. He reads aloud to Justice Farthing during the day. If any work is left over which must be done at home at night Mrs. Farthing reads aloud to her husband. They have two daughters and a son.

Justice Farthing was born and reared in Odin, Marion county. He attended the public schools there until he became blind. He attended the State School for the Blind at Jacksonville and later received his J. D. degree from McKendree college, Lebanon. He went into the practice of law in East St. Louis in 1919. He is a former county judge of St. Clair county.

$13,567,259 SET AS STATE RELIEF NEED IN JANUARY

Establishes New High Peak for Month.

With only $7,111,937 available, the Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday fixed its requirement for relief in the state during the month of January at $13,567,259. The previous high peak was that of November, when the state's total relief figure was $12,366,707.

State funds now available to meet the record high January figure include $6,000,000 from the Federal Emergency Relief administration, which sounded a warning one month ago that the state must find substantial relief funds of its own by Jan. 15. If the state complies with the FERA demand that it act to assure at least $3,000,000 monthly for relief in 1935, it is expected that the government will make up the remaining January deficit of several millions.

Rely on Sales Tax Surplus.

The state administration, it has been indicated, would like to utilize the estimated $10,000,000 surplus piled up by the state sales tax before enacting additional tax measures for relief purposes, but the federal administration has not yet qualified its ultimatum that the assembly must act next month. With restoration of the general property tax now definitly decided against, an increase in the sales tax and broadening its base apparently is the most likely eventual source of necessary revenue.

The $13,567,000 January figure covers regular unemployment relief needs totaling $12,772,478 and other activities, such as educational projects and drouth relief, totaling $794,781. Included in these figures is $1,050,881 for administrative expenses. The designation "unemployment relief" as used here includes the support of "unemployables"—the chronic indigent—whom the state must arrange to carry alone next month.

$7,437,589 for Direct Relief.

Striving toward placing an ever larger number of relief "clients" on work projects, the commission fixed $4,284,008 as the amount to be used for this purpose and $7,437,589 for direct relief.

Cook county's share of these amounts, subject to the availability of funds, as always, will be $7,380,442 for regular relief, plus $180,000 for special activities. Administrative cost alone for this county will be $577,295, according to the estimates presented to the commission.

There was one bit of good news concealed in the anticipated increase from 301,207 to 316,892 families on relief. This is found in the fact that this increase—termed "conservatively high"—would be only 5 per cent, as compared with the December to January increases in the last four years, which average 15 per cent.

Chief Statistician Robert J. Myers said he believed he was justified in making the lower estimate because the trend in recent months, although continuously upward, has lagged far behind the comparable monthly increases of former years.

Approve Nonshelter Plan.

The commission authorized Leo M. Lyons, Cook county administrator, to proceed with his plan to take 500 nonfamily male clients out of the shelters in Chicago and place them on work relief. This will enable the men to live in rented rooms, buy their own food with work relief pay, and otherwise approach a more normal mode of existence. The plan will cost about $20 per man more than the cost of shelter care.

In an attempt to "businessize" the relief headquarters work R. J. Chesbro, former Civil Works administration executive, has been placed in charge of all purchases, it was revealed yesterday. Hereafter all bids must be submitted sealed and all will be opened in public.

Fines Owner of Poolroom Used as Bandits' Hangout

Invoking the seldom used charge of "keeping a house in which misbehavior is encouraged," Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the South State street court yesterday imposed a $200 fine on Jack Mayleo, 38 years old, owner of a poolroom at 3544 Ohio street. Police alleged the poolroom was the hangout for the bandits who have been identified in the robbery of the Aetna State bank and many others.

COUNTY'S INCREASED RELIEF BURDEN MEANS BONDS OR TAX BOOST

Either a new county relief bond issue or a tax rate increase will be necessary to supply funds for supporting Cook county's 33,350 "chronic indigents" in compliance with the request by relief officials that the county again assume the burden.

This was the declaration yesterday of County Commissioner Peter M. Kelly, chairman of the public service committee, after he received a letter from Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, formally making the request.

There are nearly $5,000,000 in unsold relief bonds remaining from an issue of several years ago, but at the estimated expenditures of $1,026,750 monthly, this amount would be exhausted in less than five months. It is believed the bonds could be sold to the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The matter will be presented to the county board next week.

2 YOUNG ROBBERS FLEE UNDER FIRE AFTER 6 HOLDUPS

Two young robbers escaped under fire of a detective bureau squad after taking $329 and jewelry valued at $1,250 in six holdups early yesterday.

The youths committed the robberies in rapid succession on the north side as police sought them. Sergt. John Fogarty and his bureau squad sighted the bandits in a car at Sheridan road and Pine Grove avenue. The youths sped west in Sheridan road and escaped as the detectives fired a dozen shots. The automobile in which they fled, which had been stolen from Jack Kimball, 7025 Oleander avenue, was later found blazing in the street in front of 2817 North Oakley avenue. There were a number of bullet holes in the car.

Victims of the bandits were: James C. Canepa, 3100 Sheridan road, who surrendered $100 and his watch; Jack Kimball, who lost $3 besides his automobile; Joseph Goesman and his wife, Pauline, 3327 North Hamilton avenue, $3; Jack Ozanne and his wife, Fanny, 1372 Sedgwick street, who were robbed of $201.50 and jewelry valued at $1,250; Donald Ruggenberg, 420 Surf street, $7 and Daniel Wax, 511 Greenleaf avenue, Wilmette, $15.

Kidnaping Is Just a Trip to Psychopathic Hospital

Hurrying to 116 South Michigan avenue yesterday after receiving a kidnaping report, the Central police learned that the "kidnapers" were men who had called for Dr. Bertram B. Maier, 5550 Kenmore avenue, a physician with offices in the building, with a warant committing him to the psychopathic hospital for observation. Other occupants of the building heard the physician's cries and notified the police.

Snow Plow Team Rescued After Plunge Through Ice

In a rush to pay their 1933 taxes before the penalty date next Wednesday, 12,000 taxpayers jammed the county treasurer's office on the first floor of the county building yesterday and paid a total of $1,083,518 in delinquent and current real estate and personal property taxes. So great were the crowds that they choked the corridors about the treasurer's office and overflowed into the lobby, necessitating the posting of police guards.

Treasurer Sweitzer estimated that this was the most intensive pre-deadline rush since 1929. The payment of $844,791 in 1933 real estate taxes brought the total collection of current real estate taxes to $7,025,592. The collection of $156,309 in 1933 personal property taxes brought the total of these taxes paid to $2,885,790. The remainder of the tax payments was in delinquent taxes.

Most of the 1933 tax bills were sent out a month ago and those taxes are due before the deadline. Taxpayers who received their bills after Dec. 1 will have 30 days' grace. The treasurer's office will remain open all day today and until noon tomorrow.

TEACHERS' TEST TAKEN BY ONLY 500; SHARP DROP

A sharp decline of youthful interest in the teaching profession was reflected yesterday in the fact that only 500 applicants reported for the teachers' tests at Tilden High school.

Of the total, only 200 were high school graduates seeking admission to normal colleges to qualify as public school teachers, and most of these were girls.

"Usually there are 700 or more in this classification," said Henry S. Crane, secretary of the board of examiners. "The reason is evident. The supply of teachers is greater than the demand. Prospective teachers face a five year wait after their graduation."

Of the other 300 taking the examinations, which will end today, 100 are high school teachers seeking to qualify for the three junior colleges in the city and 200 are normal school graduates who are being examined for their high school teaching certificates. They, too, face a long wait, Crane said.

U. S. HOLDS YOUTH IN $2,500 BOND ON EXTORTION COUNT

William Howard Bowen, 20 years old, 1423 Jackson boulevard, was held to the grand jury yesterday by United States Commissioner Walker in bond of $2,500 on a charge of sending an extortion letter through the mails. The government charged that Bowen demanded $1,200 from Miss Eleanor McClements of Topeka, Kas., on the threat that he would reveal her "indiscretions" with him.

The extent of the indiscretions, Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher said, consisted of making a fourth at bridge in Bowen's room at a summer resort in Manitou, Colo., last summer.

Bowen, who was attending the Coyne Electrical school in Chicago, was arrested last week after Miss McClements complained to federal agents.

INMATE OF SHELTER DIES.

Kazmir Osharynski, 65 years old, an inmate of the municipal shelter at 2420 South La Salle street, died of a heart attack in front of the building yesterday.

WARNS TYRANNY CAN'T LEAD U. S. TO PROSPERITY

Col. M'Cormick Addresses Advertising Staf.

THE TRIBUNE'S corps of advertising men met last night in a Stevens hotel banquet room posted with charts bearing upward curves. The graphs represented the newspaper's gains in circulation and advertising during the last six months. It was the closing session of the department's twenty-ninth semi-annual convention.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor of THE TRIBUNE and the only speaker, warned the gathering of 350 of his employes that the depression was not ended, notwithstanding the upturn of recent months.

"Cheered as I am by this spurt of business during this early winter," he said, "I cannot foresee any general boom. A tyranny has never brought prosperity to the people it ruled. And it will not now."

Improved Product Cited.

Col. McCormick then pointed to the walls where, among the graphs, hung enlarged tear sheets illustrating the accomplishments of this newspaper in its efforts to improve its product during the depression. There hung samples of distinctive front page makeup, color advertisments, cover pages of sections from the rejuvenated Sunday paper, comics, rotogravure, and the pictorially decorated classified section.

The publisher complimented his department heads, guests at the banquet, ink plant superintendent, shipping receiver, editorial executives and others for their ingenuity and their co-operation in making this newspaper better during this era of difficult selling.

Hopeful for "Those That Excel."

"Sympathetic as I am for those institutions that cannot survive the storm and anxious as I am to temper their fate," Col. McCormick concluded, "I cannot hide from myself the fact that the more difficult the going the less competition for those that excel.

"THE TRIBUNE, by developing a better newspaper during this depression, will continue to excel."

I'M ALONE OWNED BY AMERICANS, ARBITERS TOLD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—The I'm Alone, rum running schooner sunk by the coast guard March 22, 1929, was owned by American citizens at time of its destruction the United States claimed today at the opening of arbitration hearings here.

The commissioners, the Rt. Hon. Lyman Poore Duff, P. C., senior puisne judge of the Supreme court of Canada, and Associate Justice Willis Van Devanter of the United States Supreme court, called on President Roosevelt before today's session began. They were accompanied by the agents of the two governments, Hon. John E. Read for Canada and George Wharton Pepper for the United States.

Mr. Pepper consumed today's hearing with introduction of evidence to establish the ownership of the I'm Alone by Marvin J. [Big Jim] Clark, Daniel Halpin, alias Dan Hogan, and Frank H. Reitman, and of the American citizenship of these men. Halpin is now serving a prison sentence at Lewisburg, Pa., for conspiracy to violate the prohibition and tarif laws. Clark has been murdered.

ICY STREETS GET NO SAND; DRIVERS LOSE PATIENCE

Curtailed Trafic Cuts Gas Tax Revenue.

BY HAL FOUST.

With more snow forecast, motorists yesterday were losing patience with state, county, and city officials responsible for the failure to protect busy street and highway intersections and railroad grade crossings from the hazards of skids on icy pavements.

The Chicago bureau of streets and the Cook county highway department have done nothing toward sprinkling sand or cinders on the icy approaches to stop signs and trafic signal lights. The state highway department has done nothing in this respect on state routes within the city and little on the rural roads.

Cut Revenue Offsets "Saving."

Statistics indicate that economy cannot be cited as an excuse for this negligence. The curtailment in trafic and the reduction in the consumption of gasoline due to the ice, with consequent lessening of gasoline tax revenue, more than offset any saving.

Chicago motorists last December paid $1,200,000 in gasoline taxes. The Chicago Motor club estimates that the busy intersections on the main thoroughfares could be protected with a sprinkling of sand and calcium chloride for $25,000. If this would increase automobile usage 10 per cent it would boost gasoline tax collections $120,000 for the month.

Other Taxes Available.

City wheel tax collections are also available for protecting the streets from ice. The council is now working on a $6,049,000 budget of this fund assigning $4,500,000 for pavement improvement and repair, $500,000 for signs, signals, safety islands, and trafic engineering, and spreading the other million through various city departments.

Illinois this year, unless plans are modified, will use between 65 and 70 tons of calcium chloride with sand and cinders for icy hills, curves, intersections, and railroad grade separations. Other states, including Wisconsin, Michigan, Massachusetts, and New York each uses from 400 to 2,000 tons of the salt in a season. The figures indicate the weakness of highway maintenance in Illinois in this respect.

Detroit Streets Protected.

On a visit to Detroit this week, this reporter found the highways of Wayne county protected with salted sand and cinders at the approaches to all stop signs and trafic signals. The same was true on the thoroughfares in the city.

In Chicago, the Motor Coach company is the only agency doing this work. It has spent $3,500 this year fighting ice and snow. The rural highways are fit for skating. This deprives thousands of automobile owners of the use of their cars. Other thousands, forced to drive, are exposed to dented fenders, broken bumpers, and personal injuries. There have been a few deaths.

Megan to Leave HOLC; Will Be Counsel to Bar

Charles P. Megan, regional counsel for the Home Owners' Loan corporation, is resigning to become general counsel of the Chicago Bar association, which he twice headed, it was announced at a meeting of the association yesterday by Henry A. Gardner, president. Mr. Megan will represent the association as counsel in all of its many fields and will have charge of the prosecution of all disbarment proceedings. He was formerly a member of the state board of law examiners and has practiced law in Chicago for more than 25 years.

CHRISTMAS RUSH IS FATAL TO 43 IN WEEK IN LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 28.—The Christmas shopping rush cost 43 lives and injuries to 1,221 in street accidents in London. It was a record for the year. The next highest toll for a week was a period ending July 7 with 37 killed and 1,362 injured.

In issuing the figures today for the week ending Dec. 22 the transport ministry blamed the sudden rise in deaths on the crowded streets. The toll was 17 higher than in the previous week.

There was a drop in deaths for the whole country, however, as 160 were killed and 4,305 injured against 167 killed and 4,195 injured in the previous week. The record toll occurred in the week ending Nov. 3, in which 178 were killed.

New York Society Woman Granted Divorce in Reno

NEW JURY PLAN SAVES $8,925 IN SUPERIOR COURT

A new system of selection and supervision of prospective jurors in the Superior court resulted in a saving of $8,925 to the county during November as compared to the previous month, when the old system was in effect. This was revealed yesterday in a report made public by Superior Judge James J. Kelly.

Under the old system each judge called and examined his own veniremen, keeping many of them idle while a trial was in progress. Under the new program, all jurors are examined by one judge and kept in a central room from which they can be summoned by judges needing jurors. Judge Kelly estimated that the new system would result in a saving to the county of $100,000 a year.

COUGHS

ARMED ROBBER PAIR SEIZE $777 PAY ROLL CASH

Two men, armed with revolvers invaded the fifth floor office of Meyer-Paul & Co., Inc., neckwear manufacturers at 119 South Wells street, yesterday and escaped with $777 after forcing 12 women employés to lie on the floor.

Miss Caroline Cooke, 6283 Sheridan road, the cashier, had distributed $164 of the $941 pay roll of the concern when the bandits entered. The women were ordered to lie on the floor and Walter Brooks, 15 years old, 2044 North Wood street, who had come to get his mother's pay, was forced to join them.

One of the bandits stood guard while the other seized the cash box from Miss Cooke. The pair fled into the hall, ran down the stairs and escaped.

Wife of John L. Markham Sues for Maintenance

John Larvin Markham, 7800 Lake Shore drive, an official of the Markham Coal and Supply company, 310 South Michigan avenue, was sued for separate maintenance yesterday in Superior court by Mrs. Wanda D. Markham. In her bill Mrs. Markham charged that her husband was cruel and inhuman and that she left him on Oct. 1. The Markhams were married July 19, 1928. Mrs. Markham's bill stated that she began divorce action in January, 1931, but abandoned it after her husband promised to reform.

WORKER KILLED IN FALL.

STATE WILL CALL LINDY'S WIFE AT SLAYING TRIAL

Flemington, N. J., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—The disclosure that Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh will be a willing state witness at the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the kidnap-murder of her first born son tonight climaxed the brisk preparations for the sensational trial which will begin next Wednesday.

But her famous aviator husband was also in the limelight of the swiftly moving developments. Accompanied by high officials, Col. Lindbergh hurried out to his former Sourland mountain home and reenacted his part in events that occurred on the night of March 1, 1932, when his son was knd-naped.

Retraces Path of Search.

The flyer retracted his footsteps over the path he trod with a loaded rifle after his son's absence was discovered. The nursery in which Betty Gow, the child's nurse, last placed the infant in his crib was given special scrutiny.

The officials and the aviator also closely examined the window through which the abductor entered the nursery and viewed again the spot where the kidnap note was found.

The purpose of today's visit to the former Lindbergh home, it was learned, was to familiarize two of the accompanying prosecutors with the surroundings and with events on the night of the kidnaping.

Note of Mystery in Plan.

Among those in the party that met Col. Lindbergh for a first hand inspection of the crime scene were Attorney General David T. Wilentz, chief of the prosecution staf; Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck Jr. of Hunterdon county, Assistant Attorney General Robert Peacock, and former Judge George K. Large, a special assistant.

A note of mystery was given Mrs. Lindbergh's proposed appearance as a witness against Hauptmann. A high prosecution official who declined the use of his name said:

"Something has arisen which makes it imperative for her to be called as a witness."

The official refused to amplify his statement or to give any indication concerning the new and apparently sensational development. However, an authoritative source said that Mrs. Lindbergh will "testify willingly."

Decision Reached Suddenly.

The decision to call Mrs. Lindbergh was reached suddenly. The state had wished to spare her the ordeal of facing the Bronx carpenter who is accused of killing her 2 year old baby. It is believed the necessity arose from the fact that the mother and Betty Gow were the last known persons to see the infant alive.

Hauptmann was served in his cell today with a copy of the murder indictment and a list of the forty-eight veniremen drawn to provide the jury that will hear his case in the Hunterdon county courthouse here before Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard and Common Pleas Judge Adam O. Robbins.

It was learned today that Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, heatl of the New Jersey state police, will be the first witness called by Hauptmann's defense attorneys.

Defense to Charge "Bungling."

From the same source it was learned that J. Edgar Hoover, director of the division of investigation of the department of justice, will be the second witness called by the defense.

They will be called, it was said, in support of the defense contention that police bungling immediately after the kidnaping prevented the capture of the real kidnaper and murderer.

It already has been hinted by defense attorneys that Col. Lindbergh will be called as a witness in an effort to prove that he hampered the work of the police by insisting on taking charge of the case himself.

The important witnesses will be put through "dress rehersal" interrogations today and tomorrow, it is understood.

Among those expected to "reherse" their stories during the next two days are Albert S. Osborne and his son, Albert D. Osborne, handwriting experts; Dr. John F. [Jafsie] Condon, Lindbergh intermediary; Betty Gow; Millard Whited, the woodsman who says he saw Hauptmann near the Lindbergh home several days before the kidnaping, and the four "surprise" witnesses, whose names never have been divulged.

These four also are reported to have told police they saw the Bronx carpenter suspect.

Secrecy Veils Questioning.

The state has prepared huge photographic reproductions of the sixth rung of the ladder used in the kidnaping and a piece of the molding taken from Hauptmann's home.

Several weeks ago Arthur Koehler, wood expert of the United States forestry service, reported to Wilentz that the rung matched the molding perfectly. A piece of the molding was missing and this, the state says, was used as the sixth rung.

The photographs show that the saw filings, nail holes, and grains in the wood of the rung and the molding piece match exactly.

Hoaxer Reëniers Case.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—John Hughes Curtis of Norfolk, who was sentenced to a term in the Flemington jail for hoaxing Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, is prepared to swear that he negotiated with Bruno Richard Hauptmann over the kidnaping in the spring of 1932, it was disclosed today.

Curtis, though convicted of handicapping the search for the kidnapers by pretending he had negotiated for the return of the colonel's son, always has insisted he acted in good faith and really thought he could aid in bringing about the baby's return.

He has notified Jersey authorities that he can identify Hauptmann as a man with whom he talked and who showed him some of the ransom money after Lindberg's $50,000 was tossed over a Bronx cemetery wall by Jafsie Condon.

NORTHWEST LINE BUYS UP HANFORD AIR MAIL RIGHTS

Means New Complete Service to Seattle.

Northwest Airlines has purchased all rights to carry passengers and air mail between Chicago and Pembina, N. D., via Minneapolis and St. Paul, from Hanford Tri-State Air Lines, it was announced here yesterday by operating officials of both companies. Northwest will take over the postoffice contract to carry the mail now held by Hanford.

This move will bring to an end the ruinous competition between the two lines, both of which had continued to fly regular passenger schedules over the route although Hanford alone was receiving the steady and sustaining income from the postoffice department. Although the official transfer of the mail contract will not become effective until Jan. 1, Hanford is to stop carrying passengers immediately.

Chicago-Seattle Hookup.

Under the new setup Northwest Airlines will carry air mail and passengers from Chicago to Seattle, unifying control of the northernmost of the transcontinental airways. At present passengers are carried between Seattle and Great Falls, N. D., only by day but beacons are being erected along the airway and night passenger flying will begin in the spring. Between Chicago and Great Falls passengers are already carried by night.

Plans for expenditure of $400,000 by May 1 for new equipment were announced yesterday by Croil Hunter, vice president and general manager of the airline.

Northwest Airways, now reorganized as Northwest Airlines, was a pioneer air transport company and until last spring held the Chicago-Pembina mail contract. It was lost in the general air mail contract debacle and when in June new contracts were awarded Hanford Air Lines was successful in obtaining the job with a bid of 19½ cents a mile. Northwest's bid was 39½ cents a mile.

When Hanford began flying trimotor Fords over the route Northwest continued to fly Lockheed Orions and within a few months began using Lockheed Electras, twin motored ten passenger planes which cruised at 190 miles an hour. The Hanford Fords cruised at 120.

Competitive Survivor.

There is sufficient business over the airway to support one operator if he holds the mail contract, but with both companies bidding for the light passenger trafic both suffered severe losses. Northwest, flying passengers all the way to Seattle and with the mail contract from Great Falls to Seattle already in its hands, was able to hold out longest.

Hanford will continue to operate its Bismarck-Sioux Falls line, and its Minneapolis, Sioux Falls, Omaha line.

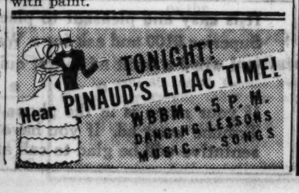
Braniff Airways yesterday purchased the Dallas-Brownsville air mail contract from Long and Harmon Airlines, it was announced yesterday. Braniff already is flying the mail from Chicago to Dallas. The purchase has been approved by the postoffice department, it was stated.

JUDGE NULLIFIES ART SUIT VERDICT; ORDERS RETRIAL

The $500 verdict a Municipal court jury awarded Boris Lovet Lorski, a sculptor, against Martin C. Schwab, consulting engineer and art connoisseur, was set aside by Judge Jay A. Schiller yesterday. The court held there was insufficient evidence on which to base a verdict and set Jan. 28 as the date for a new trial.

Lorski sued Schwab for nonpayment of $500 on the $1,500 purchase price of three art objects sculptured by Lorski. Schwab filed a counter suit demanding repayment of the $1,000 he had already paid Lorski, on the ground that the artist had misrepresented the objects.

One of the objects in dispute is a man's head cut in marble. The other two are miniatures of two horses, cast in metal. Schwab testified at the trial that a duplicate of the marble head was being used for advertising in a Chicago beauty shop. The horses, he said, instead of being of burnished bronze, were really of brass covered with paint.



Assured of Job

Mrs. Frances E. Seyferlich, widow of Arthur R. Seyferlich, former fire commissioner, visited Mayor Kelly yesterday and received his assurance that he would find a job for her as soon as the 1935 budget is passed, probably Jan. 4. Several club representatives who have become interested in Mrs. Seyferlich's case accompanied her on the visit.

2 MAIL FLYERS, LOST IN FOG AT ROCKFORD, LAND

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—A Hanford airline plane carrying a cargo of mail and express from Chicago to Minneapolis-St. Paul was grounded at the airport here early this morning by dense clouds of mist after the heavy ice incrusted ship had narrowly avoided striking local church steeples and office buildings in the heart of the city. Two hundred pounds of mail on the plane was transferred to a train here.

The pilots, Richard W. Pears and James Harper of Minneapolis, had chosen to fly to the northwest via Rockford instead of Milwaukee because of reported poor flying conditions over Wisconsin cities on the regular route. They were forced to land in almost total darkness when a transformer at the airport blew out.

Unable to determine the direction of the airport, the pilots flew blindly over the city for several minutes. Hearing the roaring motor and realizing the ship was lost, police officials guided it to the airport by ordering squad cars on the streets and highway leading to the flying field and mustering early morning motorists onto the street to show the way with their lights.

The airport manager, Fred Machesney, drove his car in short circles about the center of the field to attract the pilot's attention.

Rockford Boy Dies When Sled Crashes Into Auto

NURSE 'DEFENSE OF HONOR' PLEA WINS ACQUITTAL

After deliberating one hour and 28 minutes a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Walter P. Steffen yesterday found Miss Bernadine Dunning, 26 years old, a nurse, not guilty of the murder of Policeman Louis Kolb of the Chicago Lawn station.

The speedy verdict was in keeping with the pace of the trial. Evidence was taken, closing arguments heard, and the case submitted for verdict 25 hours after jury selection began.

The jurors apparently were convinced of the truth of Miss Dunning's statement that she killed the detective in "defense of her honor." Kolb, who lived at 7552 South Wood street, was shot to death in his parked car at 74th street and Irving avenue on Sept. 28.

Unmoved by Verdict.

Miss Dunning, who lives with her mother at 6417 South Wood street, listened to the verdict without a change of expression. She smoothed the skirt of her brown dress, adjusted her chic black hat, and accepted congratulations of her attorneys with a brief smile.

Widow Silent on Verdict.

Apparently typical of the attitude of spectators in the courtroom was the demonstration of a large, florid fellow when the verdict was returned. He rose to his feet and bellowed a lusty cheer before he could be quieted by a bailif.

One spectator did not join in the jollification. Mrs. Kolb, widow of the policeman and an expectant mother, left quietly as the verdict was read.

Defense Gets a Scare.

The defense, confident of a not guilty verdict, had received a jolt when the jurors, after deliberating a few minutes, asked the judge for further instructions as to the minimum sentence that could be imposed if a guilty finding were returned. It was learned later, however, that one of the jurors felt that Miss Dunning should be imprisoned for "a year or two" as atonement for taking a life.

The verdict was returned before Judge Steffen in the absence of Judge Cornelius Harrington, who heard the case. Judge Harrington was called away Thursday by the death of a sister.

QUINTUPLETS 7 MONTHS OLD; ALL ARE PLUMP BABIES

The famous infants, plump and normal babies now as compared with their appearance at the time of their birth in the early morning of May 28, observed the milestone in their lives in their own private hospital 100 yards from their home.

Yvonne weighed in today at 13 pounds, clinging to her laurels as the heavyweight of the troupe. She tipped the scales at 2 pounds 6¼ ounces at the time of her birth. Annette now weighs 12 pounds 10½ ounces; Emile, 11 pounds 4¼ ounces; Cecile, 12 pounds 10 ounces, and Marie, 10 pounds 10 ounces.

Admits Peculations of $72,297 in 8 Years.

Miss Bertha C. Burnham, 41 years old, 1513½ Hinman avenue, Evanston, was indicted yesterday by the Cook county grand jury on a charge of embezzling $23,552 from the real estate concern of Quinlan & Tyson, 1571 Sherman avenue, Evanston, where she has been employed as bookkeeper and cashier for the last eleven years. The indictment was returned before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court.

Arrested at the real estate offices, where she was still at work, Miss Burnham expressed surprise when the state's attorney's police took her into custody.

Voices Suicide Threat.

"If I'd known you were coming today you would never have found me," she told the detectives. "I would have killed myself. Life isn't worth living, anyway."

She told police that she used the money to send to a "sick brother" who "sometimes used as much as $800 a month." Miss Burnham said that she had kept the books correctly until eight years ago when she began appropriating collections for her own use.

State's attorney's investigators said that Miss Burnham had confessed taking a total of $72,297 during the eight years. The total amount was not included in the indictment, as many of the embezzlements were outlawed by the statute of limitations.

Keeps Account of Thefts.

State's attorney's investigators revealed that Miss Burnham had kept a neat account book in which all of her thefts were set down item by item. When her embezzlements were discovered ten days ago by an auditor of the company she presented the book to the firm to save officials trouble in tracing and totaling the shortage.

Howell Tyson Jr., treasurer of Quinlan & Tyson, declared that none of the money involved was that of clients of the firm, and there was no need for fear that clients would be losers because of the embezzlements. He added his belief that by the time the present audit is completed the sum embezzled may be less than is now supposed.

DR. BUNDESEN WARNS AGAINST PNEUMONIA AND FLU INFECTION

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, warned Chicagoans yesterday to be on guard against pneumonia and an infection which resembles influenza. During this month, he said, three times as many influenza cases have been reported as in last December.

Symptoms of the infection during the present outbreak, Dr. Bundesen said, include a red, sore throat, followed by aching pains, weakness, and depression. Fever and other symptoms of a severe cold are also present. After a temperature drop below normal, in many cases, there is a relapse, with a repetition of the symptoms in more severe form.

At the first symptom, Dr. Bundesen said, the patient should go to bed, and if there is fever, a doctor should be called. The patient should avoid contact with others, he warned.

Patients are cautioned to remain in bed for at least two days after the fever disappears, and should then leave their beds for gradually increasing periods. Rooms should be kept warm but well aired. Light diets containing fruits, vegetables, cereals, and milk are advised, and the patient should take plenty of fluids, including water, or the juice of lemons, oranges, or grapefruits. Infections of the middle ear or of the nasal sinuses should be suspected, Dr. Bundesen said.

EDUCATION HOPE OF SOCIAL IDEAL, SAYS BREASTED

Recalls Futility of Old 'New Deals' by Law.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Growth of social idealism, of which the New Deal is one more manifestation, is an "appallingly slow process" with 5,000 years of history behind it, and its continuance involves a responsibility resting on the whole people rather than on government or legislation, Prof. James H. Breasted of the University of Chicago told the American Historical association at its meeting here last night. The Chicago Orientalist was a principal speaker at the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the association.

"The Egyptian social sages preached help for the 'forgotten man' and proclaimed the 'new deal' over 4,000 years ago," Dr. Breasted said.

"Each Starts from Scratch."

"Changes in man are appallingly slow. Each new generation starts from scratch. The 'changed human hearts' which Secretary Wallace proclaims are not permanently based on some physiologically enduring trait which can be physically transmitted from generation to generation like red hair or a black skin."

Earliest known written records reveal ideals of conduct already developing as far back as the 35th century B. C., Dr. Breasted said. "When the secretary of agriculture tells us that the Hebrew prophets were the first people in recorded history to cry out in a loud clear voice concerning the problem of human justice he is under a totally false impression.

"An Unfinished Process."

"These ancient New Dealers believed that social justice could be established by government. That has a familiar sound.

"The growth of social justice is an unfinished historical process. It is the recovery of the lost civilizations that has enabled us to demonstrate that we have barely emerged from pre-moral darkness, that the dawn of conscience as a social force is just behind us, and that we still stand in the sunrise of the age of social idealism.

"The new deals of the future will be no more new than the present one. In this ever broadening process wise admonition enlightened by full knowledge of human experience will carry us on far more safely than a great complex of government action.

"The high noon of that ethical day, which history now shows is dawning in the life of man, is still very far away. We may hope that the right kind of education will accelerate the advance, but the effort to perpetuate idealistic sentiments by legislation has been shown by history to be utterly futile."

HITLER AND DUCE BEGIN STRUGGLE TO RULE EUROPE

Nazis Depend on Aid of Japan and Poland.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 28.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini have started a race for power in Europe. Their representatives are feverishly negotiating for pacts with new friends in all capitals.

The agreement on the question of the disposal of the Saar which was reached in Rome a few weeks ago, ended, for the time being, the tension between France and Germany. Diplomatic circles believe it paved the way for Germany's return to the league of nations. They expect such an adherence will take place in the spring. But in the background, Mussolini's and Hitler's friends are working most assiduously to make their countries the strongest powers when the "family of nations" again is gathered in Geneva.

Hitler Counts on Japan.

Hitler counts on the friendship of Poland and Japan. Diplomatic circles assert that an agreement has been reached between Germany, Japan, and Poland in the shape of a definite military alliance.

Mussolini has signed a pact with Austria, a pact which was drafted by Engelbert Dollfuss and which he had in his pocket when he was assassinated. In itself this would not be an important development, since Austria is a weak country, but the Austro-Italian pact aims at the creation of a strong new Catholic union in the heart of central eastern Europe, possibly under Otto von Hapsburg. Negotiations for this objective are being carried on with Hungary which is much more in sympathy with the plan than diplomats first expected.

As price for her coöperation Hungary wants the Catholic provinces which were taken from her after the world war and given to Czechoslovakia.

When Chancellor Schuschnigg of Austria was in Rome a few weeks ago to sign the pact with Italy a number of high Catholic church dignitaries were there, too. They included Bishop Bares of Berlin, the archbishop of Vienna, the archbishop of Prague, and a high dignitary of the Catholic church in Hungary. They conferred with Mussolini and with Schuschnigg.

Favor Otto's Return.

The two archbishops and the Hungarian dignitary are known to be in sympathy with Otto von Hapsburg. Young Otto himself has not been lazy. Visiting on the estate of a friend, conviently located near the Austrian border, he managed to visit Austria, Czechoslovakia, and Germany. In all three countries he talked with high Catholic churchmen.

Close friends of Otto assert these conversations were "most satisfactory." The Catholic church wants the claimant to the throne to insist less on the rights of the anointed. It feels his position will be stronger if he pays greater respect to democratic ideals, and that the people of the countries in which he is interested will then follow him with greater eagerness than they are showing now. Otto has retired to the castle of a friend to consider these suggestions and discuss them with emissaries of Mussolini.

Franz von Papen, Hitler's aid, has reported these activities to the German dictator from his vantage point as special ambassador to Vienna. To counteract them, he is helping a Catholic monarchistic organization—the Knights of St. George, which is extremely active in Austria at the present moment.

Seek to Weaken Republic.

The Knights of St. George, according to Von Papen's scheme, are to weaken the republic, and at the same time draw royalists away from Otto, who, Germans fear, would make Nazi victory impossible in Austria and eastern Europe.

Prague asserts it is not worried by all these negotiations. It refuses to believe that France would allow the surrender of the formerly Hungarian provinces to Hungary regardless of Mussolini's wishes. Hated by Germany, Poland, Hungary, and Austria, little Czechoslovakia is in the most precarious position of all countries in Europe, but she banks on the support of France, whose most faithful ally she is, and on soviet Russia which just signed an agreement with Paris.

Jugo-Slavia, which has the best fighters of eastern Europe, is being courted by Germany, Italy, and France. Diplomats declare recent negotiations showed that Jugo-Slavia will not oppose active resistance to Mussolini's plan of a new Austria strengthened by close alliances with Italy and Hungary and able to withstand the onslaught of Nazi propaganda.

Hohenzollerns Win Support.

While Otto von Hapsburg is gaining support in Austria, royalist sentiment is increasing in Germany despite Nazi terrorism. The quiet, dignified reserve displayed by the young Hohenzollern princes, especially Louis Ferdinand and Friedrich, is aiding their cause.

Both princes are studying aviation. They both belong to the "Air Protection association." Their mother, former Crown Princess Cecilie, is welcomed with radiant smiles—specially by women. Her simplicity and cordiality is a relief to the thousands who are repelled by the "new rich" attitude of many of the Nazis, and specially of the Nazi wives.

Former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm has some misgivings about the popularity of his sons. He complains he cannot see why the people are "ignoring him."

The unhappiest of all members of the Hohenzollern family is former Kaiserin Hermine, wife of Wilhelm. Living most of the year in Holland, she becomes depressed upon visiting Germany. To observers, she seems almost terrorized.

Her friends are wondering if Nazi authorities are bringing to bear some kind of pressure upon her.

Then, too, Hermine's annual charity bazar for Christmas was not as successful as in years past.

Naturally Hermine and her family are in a serious predicament. Most of their money is in Germany, and if they fail to step just the way Nazis want them to, Nazis will refuse to send more money to Holland. The republic was generous to Wilhelm, but Hitler's friends are beginning to get jealous of the popularity of his family.

Ordeal of Nazi Inquisition Related by Isobel Steele

BY HAL BURTON.

[Copyright: 1934: By News Syndicate Company, Inc.]

New York, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—The ordeal of a Nazi inquisition, the meeting with the Geheimstadts-Polizei, the secret police of Germany, was described today by Isobel Lillian Steele, an American girl.

The 24 year old artist, a pure Aryan, baptized a Presbyterian, shuddered as she looked back on the cross-examination which preceded four dreary months in prison as a suspected spy.

"And," she recalled today, "the only thing I could think to do was to offer them a drink of vermouth. I was hysterical."

Her heart skipped a beat, she said, when she recalled that, in her pocketbook, was a letter from an American in China which denounced the Nazis.

Attempts a Ruse.

"I thought, 'Lord, I'll compromise him and myself, too, if I don't get rid of that letter,'" she said. "I asked to be allowed to wash my hands and started out of the room with the pocketbook.

"Just then the phone rang. One of the plain clothes men answered it. 'O, Baron Gumpenberg?' he said. 'You want Miss Steele? Well, Miss Steele has gone to South Germany and won't be back until next winter.'

"One of the men stopped me and said: 'But your pocketbook, you must leave here.' So we went downstairs and got in the car.

"I sat in the back seat. They were in front. They let me have my pocketbook and I held it tucked close to me. I felt inside, until I pulled out a heavy piece of paper. I tore it up and shoved it under the seat.

Pocketbook Is Rifled.

"They rifled my pocketbook when I got to Alexanderplatz. I was just congratulating myself on my escape when one of them called out:

"'Now we see! Look here! Here's some one who is crazy about the Jews!'"

She had torn up a library card.

An innocent interest in the flaming affairs of Baron Jurek Sosnowski, the Pole who used money and his wiles as a lover to learn military secrets had trapped Miss Steele. A movie scenario, picturing the Sosnowski affair under fictitious names was one of the chief pieces of evidence against her.

Von Bronsky, a detective, flourished it in her face and said: "Well, your game's up, Miss Steele. Here's your film nicely taken care of by the Geheimstadts-Polizei."

"I don't see that the film is doing any harm," the girl replied.

Chauffeur Brought In.

"No," he sneered, "but just a minute"—and a trembling, little man, the chauffeur for Her Bucher, a movie producer for whom she was writing a script, was shoved into the room.

"He's one of those stinking K. P. D. [communist party] men—aren't you?" Von Bronsky snarled. The chauffeur hung his head.

"And you," he shouted, wheeling on Miss Steele, "are a communist, too!"

"You'll have to have more proof than that," she answered.

"Proof?" he screamed—"we have proof." He hit the chauffeur a terrific clout on the back.

"Isn't she a communist?" he demanded. "Is she a communist or isn't she?" The little man nodded his head.

Appeals to Accuser.

Miss Steele recalled her appeal to the chauffeur: "Listen, I've never spoken to you of communism, have I? The only thing I've ever done is talk about your family; how your wife is, and how your children are getting along? Be truthful. Am I a communist?"

"He said: 'Well, I don't know. . . .'

"Von Bronsky again spoke up. 'Is she a communist?' he demanded.

"'Well,' the little fellow finally responded, 'I—I suppose so.'

"Von Bronsky whirled on me again. 'You see?' he asked triumphantly. 'You're a communist!'

"Well," I said, "if that's the way you try people in Germany, I guess you can try me for almost anything."

She spent that night in a cell so tiny she could barely move. The next morning a luxurious auto bore her to the office of the Geheimstadts-Polizei. A Herr Patzschowsky was in charge. He said to her:

"There's no use lying any more, Miss Steele. We know very well you've been dealing in military secrets. Here in my hand, I have proof that you are a spy! You told some people that the students in certain colleges were told to prepare for regular military service, and you told somebody that Prince Von Hessen was killed in an airplane crash."

Deaths Kept Secret.

The significance of Von Hessen's death was deep. A navy officer, he had been transferred to the secret German aviation force, which, according to Miss Steele, masquerades as a group of sportsman-pilots. Deaths of these aviators never are made public.

"It's from your very good friend, Baroness von Biel," he said.

She had been betrayed, and by a friend she trusted the most. She had confided in the baroness her frank opinions of Germany under Hitler and the baroness had written them all down.

"Miss Steele," began the first page of the twenty sheet dossier, "must be a spy because she has connections with various government officials and has often told me of preparations which are being made in various parts of the country for military drill.

Letter Indicts Her.

"Moreover, Miss Steele is acquainted with Baron S——" [A vice consul formerly in Moscow. For venturing to criticize the Nazi bureaucracy he was jailed, and almost committed suicide:]

"Moreover," Patzschowsky went on reading, "she must be a communist because she is always defending those of whom our Fuehrer disapproves. Once she said: 'Hitler has only been in power two years and so many have been killed for what he calls treason. Why can't he be just and fair?

"Moreover she is in a clique with Brigitte Helm [the film actress suspected of friendships with Jews], and her friends are those in the reichswehr who favor a reichswehr dictatorship and a return of the old aristocracy."

"O, it was a beautifully written thing," Miss Steele said. "She took the things I said in confidence and decorated them all up with beautiful lies. Every time I talked to her, apparently, she would run out and jot down what I said.

Offers Integrity Witnesses.

"I told my questioners: 'It's a terrible thing that my best friend would write down such lies, but I can give you the names of at least six people who will stand witness for my integrity.'"

Hours passed. Finally she was allowed to go; but as a prisoner. Her destination was a cell in Alexanderplatz, the mammoth old prison that shelters Berlin criminals.

In it she was to meditate on the fate that permitted her to be charged with hochverrat [treason], handesverrat [espionage], and military spying.

Thousands of Foreigners Quit France; Work Permits Curbed

PARIS, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Thousands of foreigners, including many refugee German Jews, are being forced to leave France as a result of inability to obtain working permits.

Poles and Italians are among those particularly affected. More than 100 Germans have been notified since Nov. 1 that they must depart unless able to prove themselves self-supporting.

The promise of Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin to curtail the employment of foreigners in France led to restrictions against the issuance of new working cards and refusal to renew many old ones which had expired.

Many Germans Move On.

About 25,000 German refugees have flocked to France, approximately 11,000 eventually reaching Paris. Many ultimately moved on to other countries.

At first France welcomed the refugees as a gesture against the Nazis, but the enthusiasm was quickly quenched when it appeared Germans who had received working permits were taking jobs away from Frenchmen.

The situation resulted in vehement protests and considerable sharp criticism in parliament. Objection was voiced particularly because even a foreigner with a working permit is entitled to a dole.

Must Support Selves.

Officials said today it was not the government's policy to drive out German Jews or other foreigners, but that if they are to remain, they must behave and be able to support themselves. Working permits, they said, will be renewed only in rare instances.

Since most of the refugees are poor, the policy operates to compel a large majority of the foreigners to seek residence elsewhere.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Dec. 28.—Figures of the registered fully unemployed passed the 400,000 mark in official statistics today. The total for the week ending Dec. 22 was 404,932. This is an increase of 9,252, compared with the previous week and 101,011 or 33 per cent compared to the corresponding week of 1933. The latest figure is far above all records for previous years, and many observers predict a figure of 500,000 before the seasonal lower level is reached in February.

Continuance for President's Son Asked by White House

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 28.—(AP)—David N. Torrance, prosecutor of the town of Orange, today said he had been requested over the telephone by a secretary to President Roosevelt to grant a continuance in the case of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., slated for Dec. 31. The President's son Franklin, who was accompanied by his brother John, was arrested Saturday while speeding through Orange on the Milford turnpike.

TROOPS TO GUARD SAAR BALLOT BOXES WITH GUNS

Nazis in "Diet" Ridicule Foreign Soldiers.

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The League of Nations' international army tonight made ready to protect with their rifles ballot boxes to be used in the plebiscite Jan. 13, as Nazis in the Saar's "parliament" heaped scorn on the foreign soldiers.

Under arrangements completed by the plebiscite commission, the soldiers will collect the boxes immediately after the polls close at 8 p. m. and bring them to Saarbruecken in army trucks. Counting will begin the following morning.

Troops to Guard Trucks.

Heavy guards will accompany the trucks transporting the boxes along lonely roads at night. Some must travel the wooded, muddy routes along the German frontier where holdups could easily be staged.

Despite the bitterness of the party battles raging in the Landesrat—the Saar's "parliament," which has only advisory privileges — and the party newspapers, Saarlanders today appeared to be growing more friendly to the foreign troops.

Saar youngsters were beginning to salute officers as they passed, and the football squad of the British regiment at St. Wendel engaged a local team there. A British band gave a concert in the public square at Neuenkirchen.

Minor incidents, nevertheless, were reported. One civilian ran afoul police when he complained that two Italian soldiers had arrested him. Investigation proved the charge false and the man was jailed for false accusation.

Bomb Jewish Butcher Shop.

A bomb in a Jewish butcher shop in the center of Saarbruecken gave anti-Nazis an opportunity to assert that was what would be happening after Germany, as expected, wins the plebiscite. Customers were thrown into a panic when the bomb, tossed from the street, went off in the crowded shop. It proved to be a stench bomb. A 14 year old boy was arrested.

To charges voiced in the anti-Nazi press yesterday that another "blood purge" had taken place in Germany, with 100 or more dead and thousands arrested, Nazis in the Landesrat today replied with bitter counter attacks.

Nazi speakers unanimously wanted to know why the peoples of Danzig, Memel, Eupen, and Malmedy were not given an opportunity to express their wishes as to their national sovereignty, asserting all would return to Germany.

The league's governing commission came in for criticism for its asserted "lack of energy" and its president, G. G. Knox, was assailed for requisitioning buildings for the troops.

Hunt American Dissenter.

Nazi leaders, meanwhile, were hunting assiduously for an anonymous American Saarlander, who joined the anti-Nazi Catholic party. He was being sought in the New York delegation, for some of the New Yorkers, the Nazis heard, expressed anti-Nazi and anti-Hitler views before sailing from the United States.

"It's certain this man is not from Milwaukee or Chicago," Joseph Martin, president of the Chicago Saarlanders' society, said, "for I've photographed, X-rayed and thoroughly examined all my troops.

"I know none would do such a terrible things. This is a disgrace. None of us is a Nazi, but the plebiscite is not a Nazi question."

Adds Insult to Injury.

The anonymous American, adding insult to injury, not only joined the Catholic group, the German people's party, but contributed 100 francs to its fund, "with thanks for free trip to homeland." German Nazis paid the Americans' way across.

The Americans admit they are getting homesick.

"What can I do here?" asked Marie Schroeder, 21, of 222 Chamber street, Milwaukee. "Just what the Saarlanders do—stay home and listen to grandfather and grandmother. It's awfully dull here."

Ludwig Schloesser of Chicago said. "It's nice to get back again but I wouldn't want to remain. These American cigarets I buy here don't taste the same as they do in Chicago."

Flood Buries Cornstalks; Plan Harvest from Ice

Benton, Ill., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Several farmers of this county, prevented from gathering their low land crops because of high water, are considering the possibility of going out on the ice to bring in the grain. Many bottom land fields are flooded from two to five feet deep and the ears of corn barely show above the water in some places.

Mission Families Win Race with Brigands; Lose to Stork

CHANGSHA, Hunan Province, China, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Fifty fugitive missionaries, who arrived here from bandit threatened regions today, revealed that while they successfully evaded brigand armies they were unable to outdistance the stork.

They brought with them two newly born Americans, who came into the world under difficult conditions at a little Chinese village where the refugees paused briefly in flight from Changteh, 120 miles to the west.

The first to arrive was a girl, born to Mrs. Nettie Loomis Graham of Carbondale, Pa. A few hours later a son was born to Mrs. W. N. Wagner of Waterford, Mich.

Cannonading Close.

The party, which included most of the Protestant missionaries in Changteh, was ordered by authorities suddenly to evacuate that city when cannonading became ominously close.

They set out in junks for Changsha, hopeful of getting the expectant mothers to a hospital before the birth of the children. After half a day's travel, however, the junks were obliged to tie up alongside a country village, where the children were born in a rude Chinese house. Dr. George Totell of Chicago, one of the party, attended them. The mothers and infants are in good condition.

Among other foreign missionaries reaching here were Fathers Anthony Maloney of Louisville, Ky., and W. F. Berard of Cambridge, Mass., both of the American Passionist Procuration. They escaped through the gates of Hofu, seven miles from Changteh, at the same moment the brigand army entered the village on the other side.

No Time to Get Belongings.

With no time even to obtain food or to collect their belongings, all of which were lost to the invaders, they walked to Changteh, where they joined Fathers Timothy McDermott, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Francis Flaherty of Cincinnati, O., and A. J. Fogarty of Winchendon, Mass., and escaped in junks to Changsha.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Caswell of Vancouver, B. C.; W. N. Wagner and family, Waterford, Mich., all of the Canadian Holiness missions.

E. F. Steward and family, Wheat Ridge, Colo.; Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Graham of Carbondale, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Birkey of Milford, Neb.; P. H. Bartel and family of Hillsboro, Kas., all of the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Dr. and Mrs. Totell of Chicago; E. J. Bannan and family, and Miss Nettie Dejong of Holland, Mich.; Miss Muriel Boon, all of the American Presbyterian mission.

A. J. Dieffenbacher of Erie, Pa.; W. W. Moore of Charlotte, N. C., both of the China Inland missions, and Miss Rachel Craig of Washington, D. C.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS.

TO SELL OR RECOVER YOUR DOG USE A TRIBUNE WANT AD

"OUR FAMILY PET, a wire haired terrier, ran away," says Mrs. A. Bird, 3719 Octavia Street, "so we placed a want ad in the Sunday Tribune. At 7 p. m. Sunday the finder of the dog returned him to us. We also had a number of calls from people who found other dogs of similar breed."

"'PHOENIX,' OUR FAMILY PET, got lost recently," says Mrs. Petrine Petersen, 7124 Cornell Avenue, "and we placed a want ad in the Tribune Lost & Found column. Our dog was returned the day after the first ad ran."

"I ADVERTISED IN THE TRIBUNE Want Ad Section to sell three toy Manchester puppies at $10.00 each," says Mrs. A. Aldridge, 2914 W. Madison Street. "Eight prospects answered the ad, and I sold all three puppies."

"WHEN 'BESTO,' OUR PET TERRIER, strayed from home, we placed a want ad in the Chicago Tribune Lost & Found column describing him," says Mrs. Dorothy Engelhard, 5801 Warwick Avenue. "The evening of the day the ad ran a Tribune reader called to say he had found the dog."

"AFTER USING WANT ADS in another newspaper to find buyers for my dachshunds, and getting no results, I ran a want ad in the Tribune on three successive Sundays," says E. Erfurth, 2841 N. Whipple Street. "The first time the ad ran in the Tribune I sold five dogs at $35.00 each. So far my ads have pulled 40 inquiries."

It is easy and pleasant to place a Tribune want ad. Call Superior 0100 and ask for a Want Ad-Viser. She will help you word a want ad to get quick results.

If your name is in the phone book, you can charge your Tribune want ad. If you have no phone, a Tribune representative will be glad to call at your home, store or office.

DERN CALLS QUIZ ON ARMY OFFICER GRAFT CHARGES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special!]—Secretary of War Dern has ordered an investigation into the conduct of several high ranking army officers and war department officials in the awarding of department claims and contracts.

One officer is suspected of having accepted bribes for swelling claims and another of having supplied valuable contract information in return for a loan from a lobbyist.

This was revealed tonight in the final report of the subcommittee of the house military affairs committee investigating war department transactions. The report does not mention the names of either of the suspected men.

Foulois Case Action.

The report also discloses that its recommendation in a preliminary report last June for the removal of Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the army air corps, has been turned over to the inspector general of the army. This is the usual step preliminary to placing such a matter before a military tribunal, the report states.

Foulois is not one of the men under suspicion. The preliminary report charged him with "misconduct and gross inefficiency" after an inquiry into the disastrous management of the air mail by the army early in the year.

This phase of the subcommittee's investigation, it has been charged by friends of the general, was nothing more than an attempt on the part of the administration to avoid responsibility for the results of its cancelation of air mail contracts with private companies. Cancelation of the contracts disrupted air mail service and cost the lives of more than a dozen army flyers.

Charge Committee Sought "Goat."

When the administration was forced to admit the hasty transfer of the handling of the air mail to the army was a blunder by returning contracts to private companies, the subcommittee was created to find a scapegoat, according to supporters of the general. The committee found the sacrifice to the administration's vanity in Foulois and proceeded to make its recommendations in full knowledge that the army was not prepared to take over the service on the short notice given, the general's defenders said.

This interpretation was strengthened, in the eyes of impartial observers, by the fact that the committee went out of its way in the report released tonight to bring in Gen. Foulois' name. The subcommittee was seen as gloating over a mere formality following its recommendation. This attitude was expressed particularly in one sentence of the report which said the subcommittee was glad to report the general "had been stripped and shorn of much of his power" since its first report.

Foulois Alone Mentioned.

Supporters of Gen. Foulois made the further point that it is significant the subcommittee is abandoning its investigation in the submission of a final report as it enters on the threshold of a scandal in war department purchases. And no names were mentioned other than that of Gen. Foulois.

Unofficially several of the subcommittee, headed by Representative William Rogers [Dem., N. H.], gave the name of one of the army officials under suspicion. Although they were free in this whispering, they declined to say why the name and the names of the others, who had been questioned, were not included in the report.

One unnamed officer, said to be attached to the judge advocate general's office, is alleged, among other things, to have sanctioned "puffed and inflated" claims. These authorizations are said to have cost the government seven million dollars on one class of claims alone. The report assumes this was done in return for "gifts."

Charge Contract Copy Burned.

The other, also unnamed, is said to have given a lobbyist for an automobile dealer information relating to contract specifications. These specifications, it is said, were written in the office of the assistant secretary of war to eliminate from competition one of the leading automobile dealers.

The officer is said to have taken a copy of these specifications to his home, where he showed them to a lobbyist for the dealer against whom the elimination was sought. The copy was burned after it was shown, the report states.

A short time later the officer who supplied the copy is alleged to have given a six months' note for $2,500, payable to the lobbyist. The report states there is considerable evidence, based on sworn testimony of four witnesses, that the note was given for cash in that amount.

Note Never Paid, Is Claim.

"The officer has at no time offered to pay said note," the report states, "either when due or since, but on the contrary has endeavored to repossess himself of said note without paying the same."

On one occasion the officer in question met with the holder of the note in New York City when the latter was a fugitive from justice. The officer made no report of the fugitive's whereabouts to the police or the department of justice, according to the report.

In a general way the report states that several others connected with the war department are involved in these and other suspicious transactions and also are to be subject to investigation.

RAILWAY ENTERS CHINA'S HINTERLAND

SIAN, Shensi Province, China, Dec. 28.—(AP)—A pipe line was driven into China's vast northwest hinterland today as the new Tungkwan-Sian branch of the Lunghai railway was opened. Simultaneously new life flowed through Sian, ancient seat of China's northwestern empire, giving promise of restoring some measure of the glory that was hers in centuries long past.

Thousands of passengers rode over the 82 mile extension stretching westward from Tungkwan, while thousands flanked the right of way to watch in amazement as the first trains many of them had ever seen rolled past.

With the completion of the latest section, the Lunghai railway now stretches 650 miles across central China from Haichow in Kiangsu province, giving the nation's great northwest, heretofore isolated behind mountain barriers, an outlet to the sea.

To China's national government, however, this is only the beginning of its campaign to open China's uncharted interior. Already complete are plans to extend the Lunghai line 400 miles further westward to Lanchow, capital of Kansu province, with work of the Sian-Paochi section scheduled to start immediately.

CHICAGO'S MILK LICENSE CREATES NEW SPLIT IN AAA

Wallace-Davis Action Irks F. C. Howe.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—A controversy with the Agricultural Adjustment administration, in which both policies and personnel are said to be at stake, has developed as a result of the amendment to the Chicago milk license imposed on Dec. 2.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace signed the amended license at the request of Chester Davis, AAA administrator, over the vehement objections of Frederick C Howe, AAA consumers' counsel. Dr. Howe, it became known today, filed a dissenting opinion., holding that the new license gives the Pure Milk association a monopoly, discriminates against all other farmer-producers, and destroys wholesome competition.

License Restricts Area.

The amended license restricts the area from which milk may be delivered to Chicago distributors to Cook, Lake, Du Page, and parts of Kane, Kendall, and Will counties. It is estimated that the sales area is reduced from 4,400 to 2,400 square miles.

Both Dr. Howe and Administrator Davis were out of town today and their offices refused to discuss the controversy between them or to make public Dr. Howe's written protest. It was learned authoritatively, however, that the protest was filed and that the resulting controversy has since reached serious proportions. There were even reports that the AAA was threatening to abolish the office of consumers' counsel.

Called Confidential.

The AAA officials refused to make Dr. Howe's dissenting opinion public on the ground that it was a confidential and purely departmental matter. No public hearings were held in arriving at the decision to impose the amended license.

The officials also sought to discount the stories of a clash between Howe and Davis, declaring that it was not extraordinary for the office of consumer's counsel to disagree on matters of policy with the economists and the legalists. They refused to say whether any other license had been imposed summarily over Dr. Howe's objections and without a public hearing.

Fine Is Set Up.

Under the provisions of the new license any distributor who ships in milk from the area outside the limits defined by the secretary of agriculture would have his license revoked. He would then be subject to a fine of $1,000 a day for operating without a license, as well as injunction proceedings such as the cases already prosecuted against independent dairymen in the milk shed.

Dr. Howe's contention, it was understood, was that the granting of a monopoly to the Pure Milk association would place them in a position to dominate the Chicago market, with the prospect of increased prices the consumers would eventually have to pay.

WON'T DISCUSS REPORT.

Dr. Frederick C. Howe, AAA consumers' counsel, who is in Chicago attending the convention of the American Economic association, said yesterday that while he had formulated a report on the new Chicago milk licensing code, there had been no particular controversy over it. He declined to discuss the nature of his report, which had been construed in Washington as a vigorous protest against the provisions of the code.

MOVE TO QUASH KEHOE AND TABER MURDER CHARGE

Defense attorneys appeared yesterday before Judge William V. Brothers in the Criminal court and moved to quash the murder indictments against William Taber, secretary, and Joseph Kehoe, recording secretary of the street car men's union.

The union officials are charged with murder in the deaths of James Kelly, bus dispatcher who was shot to death, and Mrs. Mary Kennard, who died after she was struck by a ball bearing while riding on a bus during the bus strike. Judge Brothers announced that he would hear arguments on the motion on Jan. 3. The trial has been tentatively set for Jan. 7.

MORGAN GIVES PARTY FOR GRANDDAUGHTER; GUESTS NUMBER 500

New York, Dec. 28.—(AP)—As a doting "granddaddy" and not as a financier, J. P. Morgan tonight opened his immense town house for the first large entertainment given there since the death of his wife eight years ago. He was host at a dance for his debutante granddaughter, Louise, daughter of the Junius Morgans.

About 500 were invited. Not more than half the number, however, were young people. The others were "chaperones" and old friends of the family.

The entertainment was given in accordance with the strictest old fashioned customs. No announcements were made at all—no list of guests was sent out as is the procedure followed now in most instances.

A canopy was erected from the door to the street and a red carpet was laid down on the sidewalk—just as in the days of the old "400." But the crowd that used to gather about the house of Morgan and about the other great houses of the neighborhood to watch guests arriving was absent.

INDICT QUARTET ON INCOME TAX FRAUD CHARGES

2 Treasury Employes Named in Bill.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Four persons, two of them treasury employés, were indicted today by a District of Columbia grand jury on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with income tax cases.

The indictment resulted largely from testimony given the grand jury by Thomas N. McCarter, president of the New Jersey Public Service corporation and of the Edison institute. He was the government's chief witness.

List Those Indicted.

Those named in the indictment were: John W. Hardgrove, formerly associate chief conferee of the internal revenue bureau, who was dismissed by Secretary Morgenthau after an investigation.

McCarter was the man whom Morgenthau recently described as a "public spirited citizen" for reporting the case. McCarter protested to Morgenthau about activities of the tax consultants and the treasury head instructed an investigation.

Bill Lists Charges.

The indictment charged that during the period from January to August of this year the accused men "unlawfully, wilfully, knowingly and feloniously did conspire, combine, confederate and agree together and each with the other to defraud the United States of America by impairing, obstructing and defeating the lawful functioning of the treasury department and the bureau of the internal revenue and to interfere with its lawful, orderly and usual functions."

The indictment named numerous laws and regulations prohibiting divulgence of confidential information contained in income tax returns and alleged that Hardgrove and Nelson violated these regulations and conspired with the New York tax consultants to settle certain cases.

MOVES TO SHEAR POLITICAL RULE IN POSTAL DEPT.

Vandenberg Drafts Career Service Bill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Senator Arthur Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] announced today he has drafted a bill to take the postoffice department out of politics and to establish a permanent "career service."

Under such a system, the senator said, "the pavement pounding letter carrier could look forward to ultimate graduation to the high post of first assistant postmaster general."

Senator Vandenberg's proposal to take the postoffice department out of politics is in line with his oft repeated demand that James A. Farley resign either his job as postmaster general or that of chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Opens Road to Promotion.

"Under the terms of this bill," Vandenberg said, "politics and postal affairs at last are separated as far as possible in a democracy. All local postmasters are put squarely under civil service, with emphatic and effective priorities given to the 'postal grays' themselves.

"Even the highest places in the postal administration, with the single exception of the postmaster generalship itself, are within the reach of this proposed new career system. The positions at Washington of first, second, third, and fourth postmasters general, and purchasing agent and controler are put under civil service, through the same primary system of promotion and graduation. Thus we create a public service corporation to all intents and purposes, and eliminate the dark hand of politics."

Exempts Postmaster General.

Vandenberg said his bill was drawn after numerous conferences with the civil service commission and with service organizations in the postoffice department. The measure will have widespread support from the latter organizations, he declared.

The bill would exempt the postmaster general from civil service regulations. Vandenberg said the postmaster general should continue as a presidential apointee, subject to confirmation by the senate, because the administration is entitled to a final connecting link with so vast a service.

18 GO TO PRISON, 11 FOR NARCOTIC LAW VIOLATIONS

Lloyd Coates and Edward Gladstone, recently sentenced to two years in prison for conspiracy to impersonate a government officer in a "badger game" fraud, were among 18 federal prisoners taken to Leavenworth penitentiary last night. Eleven prisoners in the shipment were convicted and sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes on charges of possessing and selling narcotics.

John Daniels, 41 years old, 1039 North La Salle street, said to be a big dealer in narcotics, received the longest sentence, five years. The others in the prison shipment are:

Thomas Gregory, 39 years old, 1008 Madison street, three years; Burt Pearson, 52 years old, 910 Madison street, two years; Amos Wilson, 29 years old, colored, 3027 South State street, two years; Leo White, 38 years old, 949 Madison street, two years; Harry Hill, 32 years old, colored, 2958 South State street, two years; Edward Redfern, 24 years old, 2149 Wilson avenue, two years; Wesley Johnson, 27 years old, colored, 3520 Prairie avenue, a year and a day; George Scott, 50 years old, 1124 Madison street, a year and a day; Walter Turner, 53 years old, colored, 4704 South Wabash avenue, a year and a day, and Leo Alexander, 50 years old, colored, 4704 South Wabash avenue, a year and a day.

Charles Jackson, 23 years old, 2911 South Wabash avenue, was sentenced to three months in the county jail.

PRESS WIDE HUNT FOR FIVE FLEEING FROM CHAIN GANG

Macon, Ga., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Five shackled chain gang convicts were being hunted throughout central Georgia tonight following their escape in the automobile of a veterinarian whom they abducted after overpowering their guard.

The break occurred while nine convicts were at work on a highway 13 miles south of Macon. Six shackled prisoners suddenly attacked Guard B. A. Bishop after one of their number had jumped on him from a steep embankment.

They pummeled and beat the guard and took his gun.

A few minutes after the attack, Dr. T. M. White, Cochran veterinarian, drove up with his wife and two children in an automobile. The convicts forced Mrs. White and the children out of the car and made the doctor drive away with them in the direction of Macon.

One of the six prisoners was captured within a few hours after the escape.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—James J. Morris, 77, whose life was spent between his telegraph key in the Milwaukee Board of Trade building and his modest room at 812 North Cass street, accumulated a fortune which may total nearly a quarter of a million dollars and left it chiefly to charity. He died Dec. 21 and a search of his possessions today revealed his great wealth and his disposition of it.

The will, valuable securities, and $50,000 in currency, were found today by Harvey E. Kaiser, appointed by County Judge John S. Karel as guardian of the estate; Harry Disch, attorney for the estate, and A. S. Houghton, public administrator.

They learned Morris had safety deposit boxes in the Marshall and Ilsley bank, three in the First Wisconsin National bank, and one in the Wells building. One box revealed $50,000 in currency, mostly in $1,000 bills. The others were filled with mortgages, certified checks, and certificates of deposit.

Will Written in 1916.

The will was written in 1916 and carried a codicil of 1918. It left a total of $3,000 to relatives, mostly cousins; directed that $1,000 each be paid to the Associated Charities, St. Vincent's Infant asylum, the Milwaukee Children's hospital, and the Milwaukee Orphan asylum, and directed the formation of a trust fund for a brother, Patrick. After the brother's death, the will directed the residue should be distributed among charitable institutions.

The brother died about two years ago, so the trust fund will not be established, and the estate will be probated immediately.

A bequest of $500 was made to James Morris, 1213 West Highland avenue, a nephew. Morris bequeathed $500 to Mrs. Catherine Morris O'Halloran, County Tipperary, Ireland, and $500 to each of her four children.

"I have other relatives, but have purposely omitted them," the will stated.

Charities Will Share.

The Little Sisters of the Poor, the House of the Good Shepherd, the Milwaukee Protestant Home for the Aged, and Marquette university will share the estate, the university to administer its share for the poor of Gesu parish.

Morris' fortune was started by his thrifty Irish parents, early settlers in Milwaukee, who bought and held property in the Third ward. Morris built it to larger proportions by economy and careful investments. For nearly fifty years until his recent retirement, he worked at his telegraph key.

Associates in the Board of Trade building said he was not a speculator but a careful investor. He inherited $35,000 from his brother, Patrick.

Patman Accepts Debate on Payment to Veterans

Texarkana, Ark., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Congressman Wright Patman today telegraphed Donald A. Hobart, national commander of the American Veterans' association, accepting his challenge to debate the immediate payment of veterans' adjusted service certificates. Patman, author of bonus legislation, said he would take up definite arrangements for the debate upon his arrival Jan. 2 in Washington.

FIGHT TO LEARN STATE'S CASE IN DAICHES' MURDER

Defense attorneys appeared yesterday before Judge Walter P. Steffen in the Criminal court in an attempt to force the state to disclose the strength of its murder case against Irving Weitzman, head of the Dotty Lee bakeries.

Weitzman, Walter Murphy, and Jack London are charged with the murder of Eli Daiches, advertising executive, who was shot to death last March 3. Weitzman is alleged to have hired the other two men to kill Daiches, who was an official of the Thomas M. Bowers agency, headed by Louis J. Weitzman, brother of Irving.

Defense Attorneys James M. Burke and Harold Levy yesterday moved for a hearing to fix bail for Weitzman. They also announced they had subpenas for service on Murphy and Arthur Emblem, who is under indictment.

U. S. ENVOYS SEE HOPE TO REVIVE NAVY PACT TALK

Last Minute Parley Is Sought by Japan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 28.—American delegates to the adjourned tri-power naval conversations here sail for home tomorrow, a few hours after Japan notifies the United States of the abrogation of the Washington treaty of 1922. However, they expect to be back again. There is every indication the Japanese may find a way to satisfy their pride and agree upon a reasonable ratio of naval strength.

With characteristic stubbornness the Japanese attempted today to induce the Americans to stay over and continue the talks. It was announced during the holidays that the Nipponese had received new instructions from Tokio which would change the whole situation.

Plea for Parley Fails.

Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to London, telephoned Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador at large and chief American delegate, attempting to get an appointment with him for 6 p. m. tomorrow. As the Americans leave London to catch their liner at 8 p. m. Matsudaira was told this would be impossible. Thereupon Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, who was having a farewell luncheon with Admiral W. H. Standley of the American delegation, was authorized to disclose a little of what the Japanese had in mind.

What Yamamoto said to Admiral Standley is a secret until the state department is informed of the conversation. Nevertheless, the Japanese "message," it was learned, was negative. While it indicated a dawning in the Japanese mind that the Americans and the British mean what they say when they deny Japan's right to global tonnage equality, it did not form a basis for continuing the discussions.

No More Formal Meetings.

The Japanese are remaining in London for some time and wish to continue bilateral conversations with the British. The British will not engage in such conversations unless the Americans agree. The American delegates have not yet decided whether they want the Japanese to carry on the talks when they are not on the ground to meet their arguments, although they have confidence that the British are playing the game with them according to the rules.

There will be no more formal meetings before the Americans depart. They have said good-by to every one, including King George, and they do not want to confuse the issue by last minute inconclusive talks. When the Japanese are in a more reasonable frame of mind they will be ready to return and talk business.

Japanese Assail U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 28.—With formal notification of Japan's abrogation of the Washington treaty set for tomorrow, the Tokio Nichi Nichi and its sister newspaper, the Osaka Mai Nichi, today published a sensational article blaming the United States for wrecking Japan's hope of obtaining naval equality by treaty. These newspapers have among the largest circulations in the country.

Japan, the article announced, will get parity, treaty or no treaty. It continued:

"The two months' overtures at London availed notning, as the United States could not see Japan's situation. There is very little hope of getting the Americans to see Japanese claims at the next conference, so it is doubtful if an accord can be reached. Therefore, after 1936 the world will be without a naval treaty."

"Everything to Gain."

Japan fortunately has practically nothing to lose and everything to gain by abrogating the Washington pact, the report said.

"Japan's national defense will not be endangered in the least and a naval race can be entered without the slightest misgivings," the article asserted.

Destroyers	77	60
Submarines	35	24
Aircraft carriers	5	5
Capital ships	9	15
Heavy cruisers	12	17

"As will be seen," the article went on, "although Japan is slightly inferior in capital ships and heavy cruisers, it is on a par in light cruisers and decidedly superior in destroyers and submarines. Furthermore, the imperial navy always has attached utmost importance to the manipulations of its auxiliary craft such as destroyers and submarines and has demonstrated matchless skill in their construction.

"It possesses vessels vastly superior to the corresponding craft of other navies so that even though the American navy is slightly stronger in larger units Japan's superiority in the smaller craft offsets the deficit in the larger vessels.

"The next thing to consider is how the two navies will be faring after 1941 when the United States completes its Vinson building program. Inasmuch as the Vinson plan calls for replacing a majority of cruisers, destroyers, and submarines, and doubling plane carriers, the United States must build 100,000 tons yearly."

(Chairman Vinson [Dem., Ga.] of the congressional naval affairs committee on Nov. 27 warned that if existing treaties are scrapped he will insist, in an ensuing naval race, upon American construction of "five ships for each three laid down by Japan.")

Sees Reserve Strength After 1937.

The Japanese writer reasons that the United States cannot do this, much less launch additional programs unless it orders a wartime mobilization.

"In striking contrast, the imperial navy will have considerable reserve after 1937, for by then all vessels under first and second replacement programs will have been launched. This will enable shipyards to begin fresh construction.

"Besides, the science and skill accumulated by Japan's builders and mechanics is something, according to naval authorities, that builders abroad can hardly expect to duplicate. Consequently, all the navy has to do is adjust the defense scheme after 1937 unhampered by treaty shackles and it will have actual parity."

COMMON FRONT URGED

LONDON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—A general European security pact welding all continental powers into one common front against war will be Great Britain's new year contribution to the cause of peace, it was learned authoritatively today.

The proposal, to be advanced soon after the Saar plebicite Jan. 13, was considered another major development in Britain's newly acquired rôle as umpire and pacifier in the continent's quarrel. Diplomatic circles, which revealed the government's plans, expressed the belief the move stood an excellent chance of success.

It would be the biggest step toward guaranteeing peace since the world war, they asserted, involving as it probably would satisfactory solution of the old Franco-German hostility and settlement of the Jugo-Slav-Hungarian controversy over terrorism.

Austria's Freedom Is Aim.

While there was no official comment on the plan available in British quarters, it was learned Prime Minister MacDonald discussed it some weeks ago with various diplomats in London.

A major consideration of the scheme, it was stated, is to assure continuance of Austria's independence.

The five countries surrounding that tiny central European power—Hungary, Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia, Italy, and Germany—would be the first asked to sign the convention, along with France and England, it was said.

While diplomatic quarters were inclined to believe soviet Russia might not be interested particularly in the question of Austria's independence, they said she might come into special sections of the pact if invited.

Laval to See Mussolini.

These special sections, it was understood, would pertain to regional or general European security. Later Rumania and the other Balkan nations, as well as Poland, would be invited to participate in general or particular parts of the pact.

The proposal still was vague in outline, it was stated, and it was impossible to formulate its definite provisions until after Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France visits Premier Benito Mussolini in Rome, probably some time next week.

France and Italy, it was said, would coöperate directly with Great Britain in putting forward the proposal at Geneva, seat of the league of nations, where the league council will meet two days before the vote in the Saar.

SEVEN CANDIDATES FILE PETITIONS FOR ALDERMANIC RACE

Seven candidates for alderman filed petitions for the February election yesterday. It was the first day for filing but since the names are rotated on the ballots of the various precincts in the wards there is no advantage in early filing.

Those who filed petitions included: Ald. Roger J. Kiley, 37th ward; William J. Baker, 25th; Bernard J. Petka, 12th; Thomas B. Rawls, 16th; George F. Hagenauer, 8th; Ald. Thomas P. Keane, 31st; and Ald. Walter Orlikowski, 35th.

Hagenauer is a candidate for the aldermanic seat now held by David L. Sutton. In his ward a three cornered fight for ward committeeman was staged last spring in which James F. Sullivan won over Sutton and William D. Meyering, former sherif.

The Democratic city committee indorsed City Clerk Peter J. Brady as a candidate to succeed himself and Gustave A. Brand, well known artist, as a candidate for city treasurer at a meeting yesterday at the Morrison hotel. Mayor Kelly was also formally indorsed as the party's candidate for mayor, an action that had been taken previously by the ward committeemen.

The mayor has not yet announced his decision to seek nomination. The ward committeemen, however, have been circulating petitions in his behalf and they hope to have more than a half million signatures for Kelly for filing Jan. 2.

17,000 Sign in Twenty-fourth Ward.

Workers in the Twenty-fourth ward, of which J. M. Arvey is alderman, were said to have obtained 17,000 signatures, and it is said that 15,000 names have been collected in the Thirtieth ward, where Edward J. Upton is Democratic committeeman.

The Republicans could not reach agreement on indorsing candidates for mayor, clerk, and treasurer during all-day negotiations. The city central committee of the party, headed by Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th], held a closed meeting at the Bismarck in the afternoon. Emil C. Wetten, an attorney, the only avowed Republican candidate for mayor, talked to the group. It was agreed that the committee would aid him in the circulation of petitions.

The Republicans also adopted a platform. The principal planks called for immediate solution of the traction question with unification of the lines and lower fares, reconstruction of the sewer system, intelligent planning to create employment and higher rates of interest on deposits of city money. The committee will meet next Thursday to receive names of candidates for city treasurer and clerk.

Hotel Men Meet Mayor.

One development of the mayoral race was the visit of a delegation of hotel executives to Mayor Kelly. The group gave him a resolution urging him to run, declaring that the "high standing of Chicago today compared with the reputation it had a few years ago" was due to his guiding hand. The mayor said that he could not tell them anything definite at the present time.

Included in the delegation were Leonard Hicks, Morrison hotel; Frank Bering, Sherman; Walter Gregory, Palmer house; James L. Smith, La Salle; Dan Goldberg, Shoreland; Earl Thornton, Great Northern; Ernest Roessler, Atlantic; B. A. Sullivan, Drake; Ward James, Windermere; John P. Harding and Ken Williams, Harding; Harry Solomon, Strauss hotels, and J. K. Blatchford, secretary of the Chicago Hotel Men's association.

The hotel men were followed by a group from the International Union of Operating Engineers, who called on Mayor Kelly and proclaimed him as "the greatest mayor Chicago ever had."

Artist's First Political Step.

The indorsement of Gustave Brand for city treasurer marks his first step in politics. Brand was born at Parchim in the German grand duchy of Mecklenburg in 1863. He studied art at Berlin, Munich, and Dusseldorf, coming to this country and Chicago in 1891.

Following work on the German building at the 1893 World's Fair, Brand served as manager of the decorating department of Marshall Field & Co. for ten years, afterward going into the decorating business with his own firm. He decorated the Oriental and Roosevelt theaters.

Brand's best known works of art include the Battle of Gettysburg panorama, murals in the Indianapolis courthouse and the Medinah temple and Steuben club in Chicago. He is chairman of the German Day society, a member of the Shrine and the Art institute. Brand is married and lives at 2916 East 77th street.

MRS. VANDERBILT'S PLEA FOR MONEY FOR DAUGHTER DELAYED

New York, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—The question of how much money Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt shall have for the support of her 10 year old daughter through 1935 was adjourned by Surrogate James A. Foley today until Jan. 3. On that date also the surrogate will hear arguments on Mrs. Vanderbilt's petition that she be appointed guardian of the child's estate along with Thomas B. Gilchrist and George W. Wickersham.

The argument on the allowance for little Gloria's maintenance for 1935 was postponed because of the death yesterday of Benjamin Burkan, brother of Nathan Burkan, counsel for Mrs. Vanderbilt.

After the brief session before the surrogate today Mr. Frohlich told reporters that Mrs. Vanderbilt will ask the surrogate to direct the guardians of the child's estate to give her $48,000 for the child's support in 1935—the same amount allowed in 1934. Mr. Frohlich explained that, although Mrs. Vanderbilt will have but partial custody of her daughter, it will be necessary for the mother to maintain a proper residence and servants for the child and that the cost will be no less than as though the mother had complete custody.

FIND SKELETON IN A CAGE; MAY BE A PIRATE'S

Hempstead, N. Y., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Two small boys stirred up a deep mystery today in this 250 year old village when they dug up a skeleton in an iron cage from a vacant lot in the center of the town.

No one recalled ever hearing of a burial in this particular lot and the theory was advanced that perhaps the boys had found the remains of a pirate who had been tortured to death. It might even be one of Captain Kidd's men, some said, as legend has persisted in reporting the presence on Long Island of that freebooter.

The cage, badly rusted, fitted the form of a man's body and apparently had been welded together.

Four iron bands were fitted around the head and bent inward at the neck and out again to take in the shoulders. They narrowed again until they met at the feet. Three bands were welded around the cage—one at the neck, another about the chest, and another about the waist.

U. S. Liner Grounded Off Germany; Fog Is Blamed

Hamburg, Ger., Dec. 28.—(AP)—The United States liner George Washington was grounded tonight 30 miles off Cuxhaven near the fireship Elbe. A thick fog was blamed by Commander Schuyler F. Cumings, who hoped to refloat the ship with the high tide. The liner of 24,289 gross tons left Hamburg for New York at 7 a. m. today.

SOUTHERN GROUP FAVORS DRASTIC CHANGES IN NRA

Survey Shows Demand by Industrialists.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Southern industrialists today were told a survey of 6,000 manufacturers indicated NRA should be "drastically modified and abandoned altogether."

John E. Edgerton, president of the Southern States Industrial council, which sponsored the meeting, said the small industries under the national recovery act were in a helpless position "to protect themselves against majorities" and that they especially are hurt by price fixing and production control.

Woman Describes Findings.

"It is the composite opinion of this group," she said, "that NRA must be drastically modified or abandoned altogether. Specifically, 34.2 per cent want it modified, 43.4 per cent want it abandoned altogether, and 22.4 per cent are for the NRA as it is."

The question that brought the figures was "whether NRA should be continued to June 16, 1935, and after that date."

"Want Section 7A Clarified."

Mrs. Mager's report said further:

"Those who were in favor of some sort of federal supervision of industry were especially favorable to the following provisions:

"Maximum hours, minimum wages, southern wage differential, and fair trade provisions of the code. Collective bargaining also received approval, but every manufacturer was emphatic in his insistence that section 7A be clarified."

She said modifications desired included:

Urge Wage Flexibility.

Greater flexibility in minimum wages and that the amount of wages paid locally be governed by prices which the manufacturer in that area is able to receive for his goods in open competition.

China Boy Scout Official Visits Chicago on Tour

Hsu Kwan Yu of Nanking, China, secretary of the Boy Scout movement in his country, who is making a year's study of Scout work in America and Europe, visited in Chicago yesterday. He was accompanied by T. K. Li, dean of the industrial department of Oberlin-in-China, who will do graduate work at Ohio State university, and C. H. Lou, who will take graduate courses at the University of Minnesota. They were welcomed to Chicago by Mrs. Henry K. O'Young.

MOODIE MUST PROVE HE IS A CITIZEN TO BE SEATED AS GOVERNOR

Bismarck, N. D., Dec. 28.—(AP)—His inauguration as governor ten days hence at stake, Thomas H. Moodie denied tonight he was an alien and began a hunt through musty records of fifty-five years ago for proof that his father was naturalized.

Political foes, battering away steadily in efforts to keep Moodie out of the executive chair, yesterday flung the charge that the Democrat is Canadian born and still subject to the British crown. He scoffed at the charge tonight, asserted his father became a citizen of the United States and said he'd prove it.

The late David Moodie came to the United States from Wroxeter, Ont., where the governor elect was born, when his son was a year old.

Attorney General P. A. Sathre raised the citzenship question yesterday in quo warranto proceedings in the state Supreme court. Mcodie's right to office had previously been questioned on the ground that he voted in Minnesota in 1930 and was thus unable to fulfill a state constitutional requirement of five consecutive years of residence in the state before his election.

MRS. ROOSEVELT DEFENDS SELF ON BOOK CHARGE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt today defended herself against a revised and extended version of her allegedly radical activities circulated in the capital in the publication of a new edition of the Red Network. The book, the work of Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling of Kenilworth, Ill., is subtitled "'A Who's Who' and 'Handbook of Radicalism for Patriots.'"

In the new edition Mrs. Dilling draws upon the communist Daily Worker for a report that Mrs. Roosevelt and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins made speeches over the Socialist radio station, WEVD, in behalf of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union. It also makes the implication that Mrs. Roosevelt and her friends influenced the radio commission in behalf of the station.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she had never spoken to the radio commission or influenced their decision for any station. She added that she had never made a radio speech for the garment union, although she had attended meetings concerned with the NRA label in women's coats and suits. She said as far as she knew she had never spoken over station WEVD.

In earlier editions of the work in passages also contained in the present edition, Mrs. Roosevelt was said to number many radicals among her friends and named as a member of such "Socialist" bodies, as the National Consumers' league, and the National Women's Trade Union league.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

John Barron, 60 years old, a retired railway postal clerk, died yesterday in his room at 5540 Magnolia avenue. Death apparently was due to heart disease.

HUEY IS MAESTRO AT INVESTIGATION OF NEW ORLEANS

His "Private" Session Is Broadcast by Radio.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—In a "private" session which was broadcast by radio, although the public and press was excluded, Senator Huey P. Long personally directed a special legislative committee today in conducting a one day investigation into the affairs of the New Orleans city government.

The hearing was held in a barricaded office on the 18th floor of a downtown skyscraper. Long referred to it as "the inner lodge of the Kingfish." He came to the meeting surrounded by a squad of armed bodyguards.

Does Most of Talking.

As was expected, Long did most of the talking, though the object of the session was to take testimony. A few witnesses were put on the stand, but the senator interjected his opinions and conclusions, and made frequent speeches. He declared he was acting as counsel for the committee.

The testimony which the committee did succeed in taking was against Long's political enemies, whom he has charged with committing graft.

The press made no effort to obtain or print the testimony, since legal authorities were undecided as to whether an investigation conducted under such circumstances produced privileged testimony, and since it might be libelous if it was not privileged.

Wages Fight on Press.

Senator Long has waged a fight against the Louisiana newspapers for a considerable time. Last fall he had the legislature levy a tax on gross newspaper advertising. The act is now being tested in the federal courts by the publishers.

YOUNG TRAPPER SUCCESSFUL.

Aledo, Ill., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Vinten Colclasure, son of Charles Colclasure of Aledo, with only three steel traps has caught a red fox, a muskrat, an oppossum, and nearly a dozen cats so far this winter.

Beware of Colds NOW!

With Flu in the Air
Colds Are Doubly Dangerous

COLDS—always treacherous—are doubly dangerous now, with flu reported in many sections. Colds lower body strength and often pave the way for flu and other serious ills. Heed even the slightest sniffle as a danger signal. It's no time to take needless chances.

The safest course to follow is that outlined in the famous Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds. The Plan's effectiveness in helping its followers to greater freedom from colds has been clinically tested by practicing physicians—and proved in every-day home use by millions. Full details of the Plan are in each Vicks package. Briefly, it is this:

TO HELP PREVENT COLDS: At the first sniffle, sneeze or nasal irritation—quick!—use Vicks Va-tro-nol . . . a few drops up each nostril. The timely use of Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off other colds in their early stages.

TO HELP END A COLD: If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, vigorous measures are necessary. At bedtime rub on Vicks VapoRub, the modern external treatment for colds. Its double direct action—by Stimulation and Inhalation—soothes inflamed membranes—loosens phlegm—eases the breathing—helps breaks congestion.

(NOTE—FOR ADDED PROTECTION: When flu is in the air, it is a wise precaution to gargle, night and morning, with Vicks Voratone Antiseptic. Voratone thoroughly cleanses the oral cavity, and aids in defense against infection which enters through the mouth.)

Follow Vicks Plan for better CONTROL of Colds

NASAL IRRITATION due to colds
Relieve the dryness and irritation by applying Mentholatum night and morning.

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1935

INTRODUCED TODAY

A New Ford V-8 That Brings New Beauty, New Safety, and a New Kind of Riding Comfort Within Reach of Millions of People

The New Ford V-8 for 1935 is the biggest and roomiest Ford car ever built. It is a strikingly handsome car, with modern lines and new, luxurious appointments.

But most important of all it is especially designed to give you smooth, easy riding over all kinds of roads—"a front-seat ride for back-seat riders."

COMFORT TO MATCH MODERN PERFORMANCE OF V-8 ENGINE

This ease of riding is achieved by the use of three basic principles never before combined in a low-price car.

1. Correct distribution of car weight by moving engine and body forward eight and a half inches.

2. New location of seats by which the rear seat is moved forward, toward the center of the car, away from the rear axle and away from the bumps.

3. New spring suspension which permits the use of longer, more flexible springs and increases the springbase to 123 inches.

The result is Center-Poise—which not only gives you a new riding comfort but adds to the stability of the car and its ease of handling. You can take curves with greater safety.

There are many new features in the Ford V-8 for 1935 which make the car still easier to drive.

NEW BRAKES—NEW CLUTCH—EASIER STEERING

New brakes give more power for stopping quickly with far less foot pressure on the pedal. A new type of easy-pressure clutch employs centrifugal force to increase efficiency at higher speeds. New steering mechanism makes the car still easier to handle.

The New Ford V-8 for 1935 retains the V-8 engine which has demonstrated its dependability and economy in the service of more than a million owners. There are refinements—including crankcase ventilation, cast alloy steel crankshaft and copper-lead floating connecting-rod bearings—but no change in basic design. You buy premium performance when you buy this Ford V-8—full 85 horsepower and capable of 80 miles an hour.

SOVIET OFFICIALS MUM ON FATE OF KIROV ASSASSIN

Won't Comment on Report His Trial Has Begun.

MOSCOW, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Soviet officials tonight refused either to confirm or deny reports that the trial of Leonid Nicolaieff, accused of assassinating the communist leader Sergei Kirov at Leningrad Dec. 1, had begun.

Turned Over to Army Court.

With 13 alleged associates in the terrorist plot, Nicolaieff this week was turned over to the military collegium of the supreme court for trial. A purported confession in which he assertedly confessed his guilt and implicated the anti-Stalin group headed by Gregory S. Zinoviev and Leo Kamenev, was made public.

[Warsaw dispatches to the London Express Thursday said Nicolaieff and the 13 others were being secretly tried at the old Smolney institute in Leningrad, scene of the crime.]

19 Tried for Sabotage.

The central executive committee of the communist party ordered the name of the city of Zinovievsk changed to Kirovo, in honor of the slain leader.

Soviet justice struck today at 19 alleged saboteurs, employés of the Omsk railway, who were given prison sentences for counter-revolutionary tactics, carelessness, and inefficiency.

Their crimes, it was charged, caused 35 accidents on the Omsk section of the trans-Siberia railway between Dec. 10 and Dec. 15, damaged 87 locomotives, broke up 18 trains, and caused property damage totaling 1,500,000 rubles [nominally $750,000].

Report Zinoviev Exiled.

LONDON, Dec. 29. — [Saturday.] — (AP)—Gregory Zinoviev and Leo Kamenev, once high in the councils of the communist party, already have been sent into exile, said reports published in London newspapers today. The reports said the exile was generally expected because the official announcement from Moscow last Sunday said the two former leaders had been turned over to the commissariat of home affairs with a view to administrative exile.

Conflicting reports that the men were executed were ridiculed in well informed soviet circles here as contrary to the long established soviet methods of dealing with "higher-ups of the communist régime."

ERICKSEN WIDOW AND 2 MURDER AIDS ARRAIGNED

CRIMINAL COURT.

PERCY WATTS, CLEM LEBUSTREE, and GEORGE SPRIGGS, robbery, sentenced to one year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Hugo Friend.

JOHN LICHNER, larceny, sentenced to one to 20 years; WILLIE BRADLEY, robbery, sentenced to one year to life; PAUL BUTOFOCO, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the county jail by Judge Harry B. Miller.

RAYMOND MORGAN and CHARLES WAGNER, robbery, sentenced to one to 20 years each; STALEY KORTAS, robbery, sentenced to one to 20 years; FRANK HYNOUS, larceny of an automobile, sentenced to one to 20 years by Judge Denis E. Sullivan.

Mrs. Anna Ericksen was arraigned before Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court yesterday to answer a charge of hiring two youths to kill her husband so she could collect his $2,500 insurance. She was indicted for the murder on Thursday, as were James Sencse, 19 years old, who confessed firing the shots that killed George Ericksen after being promised $500 of the insurance money, and Elmer Krueger, 21 years old.

Behind her stood her daughter, Geraldine, 19 years old, and her son, George Jr., 17 years old, and her attorneys, Emmet Byrne and Harold Levy. Because of the indictment this case was to be dismissed, jurisdiction having gone to the Criminal court, but as the indictment had not yet been returned by the grand jury to the chief justice, Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle asked Judge Hartigan for a continuance to Jan. 3.

When the court granted the request Mrs. Ericksen kissed her daughter and was taken back to a cell. Prosecutor Boyle said she would be tried in the Criminal court within three weeks.

INDIAN GETS ALL WRAPPED UP IN BLANKET OF LAW

Fred Lawson, 2838 West Washington boulevard, was standing outside the state license bureau at Ashland and Ogden avenues yesterday, waiting to get his automobile plates, when an Indian with a blanket draped about his shoulders walked by.

It was not Mr. Lawson's Indian, but it was his blanket, so he halted the Poor Lo.

"Ugh," replied the Indian. "Ugh. Great White Father, him give."

Mr. Lawson was unconvinced and the redskin was arrested by Policeman Emmet McNamara, who was nearby. He had taken the blanket after breaking into the parked Lawson car.

At the Warren avenue station it was found that the Indian, an Oneida, had been convicted 19 times for theft. Among the names he has given in the past are Frank Rising Sun, Frank Woods, John Lone Deer, Eli Red Eagle and Dennison Wheelock.

Lightfoot Summer Cottage Burns with $45,000 Loss

The summer cottage of Mrs. Jessie Lightfoot, near St. Joseph, Mich., was destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss was estimated at $45,000. Mrs. Lightfoot and her husband, Street Lightfoot, 2256 Lincoln Park West, said the cottage had been locked since September and added that the insurance on the building and contents would not cover half the damage.

U. S. SENATE MAY ORDER QUIZ OF SUGAR CORNER

said that, because he had learned it in confidence, he did not feel free to divulge it. He emphasized, however, that he had no connection with the bank and that the bank was not interested in the present sugar corner.

Assured of the necessary financing the Cuban trust went forward with its plans. Probably, after conversations with the American state department, where Assistant Secretary Sumner Welles, a close friend of Mr. Taussig, is in charge of Cuban affairs, the Cuban trust persuaded President Mendieta of Cuba to sign a special decree law in September. This law provided that Cuban sugar for December delivery would not be sold in the United States for less than $1.85 per hundredweight nor to any one except refiners.

AAA Protests Cuban Move.

The AAA protested this Cuban move to the state department. In conferences the AAA pointed out that it considered this price unreasonable and the restriction of sales to refiners only most unusual. Mr. Welles explained today that he considered the Cuban price pegging a necessary and desirable step. He pointed out that the price of $2.185 was arrived at by taking the prevaling price of $3.08 for duty free sugar in the United States and deducting the 90 cents tarif which Cuba must pay.

Mr. Welles' method of figuring the differential, however, varies from that advanced by the AAA. AAA experts argue that the correct Cuban price should be figured by taking the world sugar price, then varying between 80 cents and $1, and adding the Cuban tarif of 90 cents. This would give a price of $1.70 to $1.90 instead of $2.185.

Prices Drift Lower.

As the sugar prices drifted lower, it became evident that the price which the Cubans had pegged and which Mr. Welles had approved was so high that it would effectively keep any Cuban sugar from being sold in the American markets during December.

Meanwhile the domestic sugar producers and importers from all other countries had exhausted their quotas under the Jones-Costigan act. They could ship no more sugar. Cuba could sell little sugar because her pegged price was unreasonable. With all sources of supply shut off, the speculators were ready to strike.

Hayden, Dyer, and others who had expected the government to interfere and break up the Cuban price pegging so that Cuban sugar would be available had sold the December market shorts. They suddenly found no sugar was available and that the state department was not going to crack down on Cuba. They were squeezed. The specualtors who had played for a corner and who were "long" on the December market had them at their mercy and could sell them sugar at monopoly prices.

ANNAN GOES FREE IN PARTY SLAYING OF WOMAN GUEST

A charge of manslaughter against Albert Annan, 49 years old, was nol prossed yesterday by Judge Walter P. Steffen in the Criminal court on motion of the state. The action was taken after Annan, who was convicted by a jury two weeks ago for the death of Mrs. Ottila Griffin, 45 years old, was granted a new trial by Judge Steffen.

The state charged that Annan, whose former wife, Beulah, was acquitted of the murder of her sweetheart ten years ago, beat the Griffin woman to death during a drinking party in their apartment at 1048 West 79th street. The state agreed with the defense, however, that there was no legal evidence on which to convict Annan.

The only evidence produced by the state was the confession of Annan that he struck the woman. This was offset by the report of a physician that the woman died of natural causes and that blows may or may not have been a contributing factor. Attorney William Scott Stewart, who successfully defended Beulah Annan in 1924, also appeared for Annan.

COURT CRITICIZES RECEIVERS OF SURFACE LINES

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday criticized the failure of the receivers of the Chicago Surface lines to work out a plan for lifting the receivership, and announced that he would, if necessary, take action himself to this end. The receivership has been in his court eight years.

Attorneys James M. Sheean and Harry P. Weber were directed by the court to submit in a short time a report on the situation of the lines, and to include suggestions of the receivers for working out the difficulties.

The incident that led to the judge's criticism was a hearing on the petition of Arthur M. Kracke, an income tax lawyer, for approval of a $330,000 fee for two years work on income tax matters for the street car companies. The petition was taken under advisement after bond trustees' lawyers opposed the fee as excessive.

In ordering the report, Judge Wilkerson declared the court could not "take on the burden of the receiverships indefinitly."

FATHERS, SONS ATTEND SCHOOL ALUMNI MEETING

One hundred fifty fathers and sons attended the annual alumni luncheon of Lake Forest academy yesterday in the Union League club. The occasion was also a celebration of the 35th anniversary of Edmund J. Rendtorff as a member of the school's faculty.

Brief talks were made by George W. Young, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, whose son, George Jr., is a student in the academy; George Van Santvoord, now of Hotchkiss school, Lakeville, Conn., a student in 1908, and Headmaster John W. Richards, who reviewed events of the current year. Ernest Palmer of the class of 1903 was toastmaster.

HOLLAND HUNTS MATE FOR FUTURE QUEEN; SHE SAYS 'NEVER MIND'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Dec. 28.—"I don't see why I should marry—Queen Elizabeth was the best queen there ever was and I can be just as good a queen to my people without matrimonial entanglements."

Thus spoke Princess Juliana, future queen of Holland, to the wife of a high official who had taken it upon herself as her patriotic duty to remind the princess that the country would like to see her married and provide heirs to the throne of The Netherlands.

Holland officials were deeply stirred by Juliana's sudden enthusiasm for Queen Bess. They renewed unofficial activities to try to find a husband for the lovable but not beautiful princess, who is so disappointed at not finding the right mate that she is thinking seriously of regal spinsterhood.

Court circles have started whispering again with some dignitaries claiming that the hereditary prince, Friedrich Franz of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, is a new candidate for Juliana's hand. He is 24, just a year younger than Juliana. Through Juliana's late father, Prince Consort Henry, he is her second cousin.

Others again insist that Prince Carl of Sweden, a nephew of King Gustav, is still in the running as prince consort. They claim his papers are in the hands of Dutch lawyers who have been studying the legal steps necessary to make him a Dutch subject in case he marries Princess Juliana.

NO STATE LEVY ON REALTY FOR 1935, IS PLEDGE

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—The elimination of the state tax on general property will be continued next year, it was announced today by Gov. Henry Horner.

The action, which is a continuation of the 1934 policy, will effect a saving of 70 million dollars in the two years for the 1,750,000 general property tax payers in the state, the governor said.

Last year, for the first time since Illinois became a state, the property tax was abated and replaced with revenues from the 2 per cent sales tax. The announcement that the property tax would be waived for a second year was made after a brief session of the state levy board had been held.

Action Not Unexpected.

Although the action was expected, some administration opponents had suggested that the property tax be resumed this year to raise money for unemployment and school relief.

The governor has not indicated the method he favors for raising the funds necessary to meet the demands for large appropriations from the next legislature for unemployment relief and state aid for the common schools.

The governor called the fourth special session in November with the announced intention of extending the sales tax so that a property levy would not be necessary next year.

No Pay on '34 Assessments.

The result of the second abatement is that property owners in 1935 will not pay a state tax on their 1934 assessments.

The meeting of the state levy board today was held in the executive mansion. John Stelle, state treasurer-elect and assistant state auditor, represented Auditor Edward J. Barrett and State Treasurer John C. Martin was represented by his assistant, P. K. Wimsey.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29 [Saturday].—(AP)—An American Air Lines passenger transport plane with four persons aboard was missing early today, presumably between Albany and Syracuse.

State police were making a check along the route, which traverses rough and thickly wooded country in sections. The search was concentrated in the vicinity of Oneida, midway between Utica and Syracuse, where the plane last was reported.

William L. Garrett, Albany manager of the air line, said searching planes would not be sent out until the weather cleared. Pilots at the airports both at Syracuse and Albany reported a low ceiling and poor visibility.

Officials of the line said they are convinced the plane is down.

It was piloted by Ernest Dryer of Cleveland, O., and carried three passengers, R. D. Handbrook of Washington, D. C., who is connected with the federal bureau of education; Dryer's brother, whose first name was not available, and Co-Pilot J. H. Brown of Boston, who was traveling as a passenger.

The plane left Boston late yesterday for Cleveland, but halted at Syracuse because of unfavorable weather. It refueled and started back to Boston at 7:30 p. m.

TIRES OF PAYING ESCORT'S BILLS, SHE SAYS; SUES

Mrs. Theresa Lee Pittman, 1389 Estes avenue, paid the checks while William F. Oberkoetter, 3431 Elaine avenue, was her escort during her separation from her husband and now she wants her money back. This was her testimony yesterday in her suit to collect $437 she says she "advanced" Oberkoetter, who is an examiner for the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation. Mrs. Pittman said she is a member of "one of the first families in Kentucky."

"He was always broke when we went to taverns," Mrs. Pittman said. "I lent him money. In return he gave me the redemption ticket for a $250 ring he had pawned for $20, but when I went for the ring I found he had reclaimed it. I'm reconciled with my husband and I want my money."

Oberkoetter testified he had not given Mrs. Pittman the pawn ticket. "I had lost it," he said, "and I don't know how she got it. Furthermore, I don't owe Mrs. Pittman any money."

Municipal Judge John J. Rooney continued the case until next Thursday on Mrs. Pittman's promise to produce a witness who saw Oberkoetter hand her the pawn ticket.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Wilder Creates Prize Boob of Modern Letters

But Satire Has Essence of Idealistic Youth.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Heaven's My Destination," by Thornton Wilder. [Harpers.] To be published Jan. 2.

THE first emotion that will stir readers of "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" [four hundred thousand of them bought it and half the literate English-reading public read about it at least] when they start Thornton Wilder's new novel is almost shocked surprise. The exquisite prose which was as integral a part of the beauty of "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" as was its deep human understanding and tenderness and the rich overtones of implication, and which was essenced into an attar of beauty in "The Woman of Andros" is not only absent in the new book but conspicuously so.

There isn't one sentence, one phrase even, of the kind of fine writing that have made Thornton Wilder's reputation as one of the great stylists of our day. And the world had rather taken for granted that he was a stylist imprimus.

However, the reader soon realizes that while Mr. Wilder has chosen an utterly new medium of expression the qualities which have made his previous books so rich a part of so many human lives are all inherent in "Heaven's My Destination." There is sharper, unadorned by lovely prose, the same deep human understanding, tenderness toward mankind and the rich overtones of implication.

In this new novel, Mr. Wilder's language exactly the opposite of his classically pure and beautiful English, is pure Americanese. The characters talk it and Mr. Wilder in his narrative and description writes it and thus heightens his very original concept.

For "Heaven's My Destination" is original. It proves Mr. Wilder an originalist and not, as so many even great novelists have been, a literary Narcissus who so admires it that he can create only in his own image. The book is the record of one year in the life of a young American who is a caricatured composite. He is an American Don Quixote, as absurd, as comic, as tragic, as bootless, and as endearing as that other logical traveler.

George Brush is a traveling salesman. He sells textbooks out of Kansas City. He is a graduate of a small midwestern college, where he got religion from a girl evangelist who had a hypodermic needle to help her in her good work, and he is determined to give the world the best textbooks for this world and the best religion for the next. He is at the opening of the book writing Bible texts on hotel blotters, trying to talk God to the men in a smoking car.

George is so earnest that he has determined to try voluntary poverty [which is pretty hard because he's a good salesman and earns a more than adequate wage] and he draws out his savings from a country bank and lands in jail for his refusal with too convincing talk to take the interest which his beliefs will not allow him to take. He has a comic scene with the man who takes his Bertillon statistics and his pictures, in which he asks in all seriousness to buy one of the pictures for his mother.

Free of the charge, but hustled out of town, his adventures pursue their tragic-comic way through his first tasting of whisky, administered by his practical joking roommates as the remedy for a dread disease, and through his visit to a bawdy house where he goes believing that it is one of the finest homes in Kansas City and from which he emerges with a bevy of girls whom he escorts gallantly to the movies, a sadder and a wiser man only when he finds out the next day where he has been for Sunday dinner.

George's chivalrous journey through the pages has that quality of the best American comic strips. It is a caricature to make one laugh and cry at the same time. George is the prize boob of modern literature, but he is a heroic boob. Youth. America. Earnestness. Logical Courage.

There is no George Brush in the world, but there are thousands of George Brushes. I suspect that Mr. Wilder found in himself the bones of George Brush. When Thornton Wilder was a young man his, and many others, feelings about girls smoking cigarets might well have been George Brush's who believed that no girl who smoked was fit to become a mother. Many a young man like him has taken a vow of voluntary poverty. He might well have believed like George in the power of passive resistance, he might have gone silent and hungry for days for the good of his soul. He might have been willing to die for his beliefs. I do not say that he ever did any of those things. But I do say that the same American passion to be right and to do right, which is exaggerated in George Brush, is inherent in Thornton Wilder and in hundreds of thousands of his generation.

If you care to you can see in George Brush not only a young American, but America itself, full of passionate ideals, guyed by more sophisticated nations, tragically taken advantage of at times, but always somehow [even in what seemed a mortal sickness] holding on to something—ideals, beliefs, its youthful strength. Perhaps that is far-fetched, but "Heaven's My Destination" is far-fetched enough to mean to any of us what we wish it to mean.

To many, perhaps most, it may mean a priceless tale of a priceless boob, to others, the tragedy of idealistic youth. To this reader behind a mask of hard-boiled writing it is fantasy, the kind of fantasy that great satirists create.

"Heaven's My Destination" is the January choice of the Book of the Month club and was the December choice of the English Book society, one of whose committee, J. B. Priestley, declares it "Thornton Wilder's best book."

Heroic Stand of Armenians Becomes Epic

Werfel Writes Magnificent Novel of Christians.

"The Forty Days of Musa Dagh," by Franz Werfel. [Viking.]

OCCASIONALLY there happens a novel so richly, so deeply, but so simply chronicling human courage in the face of supreme odds that it assumes the proportions of an epic created before one's very eyes. The reader finds himself in some almost mystic fashion remolded nearer to the heroic standards.

Many years ago we had a deeply religious seamstress who, not content with the saying common in those days that "angels can do no more," always declared with passion "angels can do more." There are certain circumstances—rare, but history has offered them—when men became, in a sense, as angels and could do more and more and more, when courage and strength, of spirit and body passed all human bounds. Many of the great novels of all literatures portray such circumstances and such superlatives of character.

Franz Werfel was obviously fired by the heroic stand of a small band of Armenian Christians on Musa Dagh [the Mount of Moses] against the Turks in the summer of 1915—a news item which few readers even noticed in the greater drama of a world at war. He set himself the thrilling task of recording those forty days of tragedy and glory.

With the usual German meticulousness of detail, he assembled every known fact about those epic days, he assembled data about the physical and social life of the Armenians, the Turks, the villages around Musa Dagh, Istanboul. He made an intimate and detailed study of the political situation, he knew Enver Pasha and his plans as intimately as if he were writing a biography of one of the first modern dictators.

With that historical and factual material all collated, he began creating characters to supplement those with which history had already provided him. That care is apparent in the book.

His main character he made an Armenian bred in Paris, married to a Frenchwoman, with a son so obviously French that the bursting of his patriotism as an Armenian had a more powerful influence than a native zest would have had. Thus he achieved two points of view in his hero, that of the native fired by injustice to his people and of the alien fired by abstract injustice.

With his superb historical and factual material and his created characters, Herr Werfel was able to write a novel which for passion and adventure and implication is rare even in these days when readers demand interpretation as well as delineation of human character. He not only delineates the strange life of a strange people, he not only implies the tragedies of oppression, and chronicles its actual horrors, but inherent in his pages is the power of man to be magnificent. Magnificent is the only adjective that seems to fit the material, the characters and the resultant novel.

"The Forty Days of Musa Dagh" was the December choice of the Book of the Month club, the Christmas choice of the Catholic Book club [although it was written about members of another church by a Jew], and the December selection of the Book Guild in London.—E. B.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK

If you read too hastily "The Clew of the Forgotten Murder" [Morrow], by Carleton Kendrake, you will stop to wonder once in a while what it is all about. It is one of those closely knit stories in which every incident counts, and, in my opinion, is a very apt performance. Mr. Kendrake has that special ability to kindle and keep smoldering suspicions which burst into flame only at the very end, thereby conferring that greatest boon to mystery story fans—a solution which surprises but also conforms with certain lurking convictions, harbored throughout the book at the back of what he may allow himself to believe is a keen and logical mind.

Sydney Grift is the criminologist who modestly storms his way to a satisfactory solution which is the equivalent to a novel's happy ending. He is employed by a newspaper publisher who is threatened with what seems to him a rather fishy libel suit. There are assorted murders, and if you think you are separating the sheep from the goats as you go along, you're the goat yourself. It's all kind of hard-boiled and journalistic, but on the whole pretty swell—a good starter for the bristling crop of 1935.

Which brings me to the hope that mystery story writers are turning over a few new leaves. We who read these modern shilling-shockers would like a little more intelligence and a modicum of intellectuality in our detectives. It would give us pleasure if their creators were definitly literate and if they assumed literacy on the part of their readers. We would like a good story as well as a baffling mystery, and if crimes could be kept down to three a book we would still feel that we had our money's worth. "Not how dastardly but how neat" is our slogan, and the good little writer who is plausible but astonishing will ever be our choice.

Charming Book Burdened with Cumbrous Title

"The Desire and Pursuit of Whole" Is Name.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Following upon the success of A. J. A. Symons's experiment in biography, "In Quest of Corvo" [Cassell], which has been as widely read in the United States as it has been in England, there should be a considerable public interest in the first publication of Corvo's [or Father Rolfe's] long unpublishable novel, "The Desire and Pursuit of the Whole."

Perhaps it is a pity that the book should still have so cumbrous and metaphysical a title, for it is a really charming story about a girl rescued from the Messina earthquake and taken to live in Venice. True, the book is largely an autobiographical work, in which highly colored accounts are given of Rolfe's early life, but these are but preliminaries to the romance, "The Desire and Pursuit," of which the copyright now belongs to Mr. Symons, will be published by Cassels.

Mr. Symons is a very active instigator in that good work known as the Wine and Food society, of which the president, M. Andre Simon, is now in the United States. This society publishes a delightful quarterly devoted to good food and wine in which experts chat about gastronomy, vintages, the delicious meals they have enjoyed during the year [with full menus], and other related matters.

It is called Wine and Food, and is published from the society's offices at 6 Little Russell street, London, W. C. 1. It has already contained contributions from an astonishing number of well known writers.

Miss Margaret Irwin scored a success with her last novel, "Royal Flush," which was a Book society choice, and she is doing the same with her new book, "The Proud Heart" [Chatto & Windus], which is also a Book society choice. It is the story of the life of Montrose, one of the greatest of all Scottish soldiers, and one of the noblest of Scotsmen.

Montrose fought brilliantly for King Charles I, and tried vainly to raise Scotland for Charles' heir, so that of all the men of that troubled era he stands supreme as a great royalist. Miss Irwin acknowledges her debt to John Buchan's great biography of Montrose, but it is also interesting to learn that her own book, after it was written, was carefully read by one deeply learned in Scottish history. This is Alistair Tayler, who was Arnold Bennett's executor.

Mr. Tayler and his sister have written several books dealing with Scottish history [all Scotsmen are historians], of which the latest are a new biography of "The Old Chevalier: James Francis Stuart" [Cassell], and a work of more local interest, "Jacobites of Aberdeenshire and Banffshire in the Rising of 1715" [Oliver & Boyd, Edinburgh]. They passed "The Proud Heart" as being as authentic as it is alive. It is one of the most admired novels of the year.

Published in New York as "The Proud Servant."*

Ship's News Reporter Pens Story of a World Cruise

Alan Maurice Irwin, ship's news reporter for a Montreal paper, took a busman's holiday—at the orders of his editorial boss—and circled the globe in the Empress of Britain. His travel comments, informal but informative, lively and well written, have been published in an attractive volume called "—— and Ships and Sealing Wax" [Macmillan].

Print Record of Pioneer on Trip to West

"The American," by Louis Dodge. [Messner.]

SOMETHING of what the commemorative tapestries were to the middle ages, with their one-dimensional records of adventure typifying but not pretending to be living portraits of the heroes of the day, "The American" is to the history of the generation of Americans who sought either the actual gold of the California hills or the metaphorical gold at the end of the rainbow of pioneering.

It is a long, slowly unreeled panorama of Leander Calvert and hundreds of others trekking as much for the sake of the trek as for the material rewards of adventure, purporting to be "from the late Adam Carmichael's unpublished writings, now in the possession of Eli Calvert Jr., grandson of Leander Calvert, of Hebron, Illinois: freely edited, revised, and cast in narrative form."

It resembles more than anything else the inarticulated records of that day a couple of generations ago when men had time to, and did, set down on paper voluminous words which often enough said little. There isn't one of us with an attic that has not come across such a diary, or journal, replete with details of weather, minute records of transactions and scenery, but practically no record of any of the inner springs of the outer act.

Just such a record is "The American," and, as a record of a period, set down in the manner of the period, it is an interesting book. Something literally happens on every page of "The American." The frontier passes before the reader's eyes as typically as a modern news reel, with the same sort of action, and is just as fragmentary and piecemeal and uninterpretative a comment on the spirit of the time. The characters do not think in the book; they act. Which, again, is of the period which it records, but which makes the narrative something less vital than a more interpretive one might have been.

For one (and perhaps I am the only one, for unless such books were popular and financially successful they could not be published in such numbers), I am getting pretty well fed up with novels that go on and on like the dormouse's tail, that take six and seven hundred pages to tell a story which in the days of the higher costs of printing and living used to be told in three hundred.

"The American," despite its almost overwhelming mass of material, seems to me to have that present day literary infirmity, obesity. It, like a good many people, could reduce for its own health and attractiveness.

REPORT FROM THE REAL FRONT.

Underlying the political conflict of 1934, and no doubt obscured by it, a real war was in progress between the two systems with which the political discussion was concerned. The discussion engaged attention because it had definite and perceivable fronts, political objectives to be gained or lost, also perceivable. The more momentous struggle was between the actualities of the two systems, the one of individual enterprise and the other of government planning and control. Probably the evidence is insufficient for a full realization of what has been the outcome, but some is available and it is worth taking into account for what it shows.

Private enterprise was not free in many of the fields in which it made its largest advances. When the automobile industry was preparing for its take-off with new models it was confronted with the NRA code, which proved detrimental by creating uncertainties and imposing conditions which some of the manufacturers were willing to accept or improve upon in fact, but which they could not adopt as workable governmental theories. In spite of this discouragement the automobile industry demonstrated the ability of private enterprise to meet a depression by producing a more desirable product on terms which attracted purchasers.

American aviation, in spite of the body blow intentionally given it by the cancelation of air mail contracts, came to the front and astonished the world with new types of commercial machines superior to anything else in the air. Inasmuch as aviation promises to develop industrial and commercial possibilities as yet only vaguely outlined, the American stride ahead was one of the most notable achievements of the year, and it was accomplished against every discouragement which politics, supposedly planning an improved industrial and social order, could give it.

In the other field of transportation, the rails, the depression brought a revival of private initiative and enterprise which had been so long benumbed by government control that doubt existed as to its possible recovery. Emergency acted as a tonic upon many railroads whose managements, fairly shocked out of their imposed lethargy, again returned to pioneering with improvements which may prove to be the solution of the railway stalemate. To do this it was necessary for the railroad brain to escape from the burocratic repressiveness and intellectual benumbing.

This has been a real warfare, because the pressure of government has been against private enterprise and the purpose of government has been to destroy the system of free society in which such work is possible. In some fields private initiative has been the loser temporarily in the contest. In electrical power, an industry which also is in a transitional stage, the government has made an impressive attack against private investment and management, of which the results cannot be clearly seen, although it is fairly plain that failure with large loss both to investors and to taxpayers is the probability.

On the planned society front of this conflict the chief showing is one of great expenditures without fruit. Whereas the successful efforts of private enterprise have been producing needed services which will pay out and contribute to national well-being, the governmental projects have entailed expenditures whose immediate benefits were absorbed without changing general conditions. The public works for the most part will remain monuments of public folly. They have taught the lesson, if they have taught anything thus far, that spending, however lavish, merely for the sake of spending is a drain and not a benefit. It is estimated that some eight billion dollars has been devoted to what the planners consider measures of recovery, and no national assets can be discovered to account for these public moneys. The expenditure has interfered with the progress of a sound economy, and it has been for the most part just so much money going over the dam to be lost.

The planners find themselves after nearly two years of unstinted effort facing conditions which are as they were at the beginning except as they have been changed by the efforts of private citizens working in accordance with proved principles and opposed at nearly every step by the governmental agencies which have been getting nowhere except into debt.

Although the evidence in this conflict going on beneath the heat of political controversy may be insufficient for a complete judgment, all that is available proves the soundness of the order which the government seeks to destroy and the unsoundness of the order which it seeks to establish.

36,000 AUTOMOBILE DEATHS.

Insurance statisticians report that at least 36,000 persons were killed in the United States in automobile accidents in 1934. The death rate increased 16 per cent in a year. One person was killed every fifteen minutes. In no previous year was the mortality from highway accidents so heavy.

The record is an appalling one. About fifty thousand Americans were killed in battle or died of battle wounds in the nineteen months of the last war. The automobile killings are proceeding at about the same rate now and, unless a means is found of preventing the casualties, the annual deaths from automobiles will in a few years considerably outnumber the annual losses in war.

Needless to say, many and no doubt most of the automobile accidents could have been prevented. All of the grade crossing collisions in which automobiles were struck by trains were avoidable and would have been avoided if the crossings had been separated. Many of the accidents on city streets would have been avoided if the same engineering principles had been employed in the construction of elevated highways.

Government officials may wring their hands over the record, but as long as they refuse to build elevated highways which would prevent crossing accidents they cannot regard themselves as guiltless. As long as it is necessary for one stream of human beings on foot and in vehicles to cross the path of another stream of human beings on foot and in vehicles, accidents are going to be numerous. The only sure and permanent way to make the highways safe is to build them safe.

GEN. FRANK McCOY.

Chicago, or, more strictly speaking, the Sixth Corps area, has been exceptionally fortunate lately in appointments to that command. Gen. Frank Parker, who left us for the Philippines, is one of the most distinguished officers of the army with a record for gallantry which gilds his intellectual attainments. He was succeeded by Gen. Preston Brown, another soldier of marked personality and fighting record. Gen. Brown is now to be succeeded by Gen. Frank McCoy, one of the outstanding officers of the American service.

Maj. Gen. McCoy has a fighting record which extends from the Spanish war through the world war. He first smelled powder as a second lieutenant in the Santiago campaign, and thereafter distinguished himself in responsible commands in the wars of the Philippines, most notably as leader in the campaign against the Moro chieftain, Datu Ali. In this service he had his first experience in the difficult diplomacy and administration which our responsibilities in politically backward and disturbed regions impose upon the officers of our army, navy and marine corps. This experience no doubt served him well when after the war, in which he had both commanded a brigade of infantry at the front and served with ability on the general staf of the A. E. F., he was appointed to several important international commissions. These included missions to Armenia, to the Philippines, to Japan as head of the military mission of relief after the earthquake, on the commission of inquiry on the Bolivia-Paraguay situation. In 1928 he was appointed by President Coolidge with the approval of the Nicaraguan government to supervise the elections in a revolutionary crisis of that country and accomplished this so ably that all parties expressed their gratitude and a constitutional government was established with promising prospects of peace and stability. His experience and achievement in this and previous service of the diplomatic order clearly recommended Gen. McCoy as American member of the international commission in the Manchurian controversy headed by Lord Lytton.

It is a good thing for the American public, constantly subjected as it is to pacifist and radical propaganda, to know more of the services of army and navy men to the cause of peace and justice among nations. Gen. McCoy has contributed more than his share of these honorable accomplishments and Chicago will welcome him with the high esteem his exceptional qualities as soldier, administrator and diplomat deserve.

Editorial of the Day

[Des Moines Register.]

One of the stories with which the Hungarian propagandists aroused the most fury toward Jugo-Slavia during the recent tension was that concerning a 4 year old girl, deported across the border with nothing but a placard pinned to her skirt telling where to deposit her.

The Hungarian official press bureau broadcast photographs of the girl and the placard, labeling it an example of Jugo-Slav heartlessness.

Now, the deportations from Jugo-Slavia were inhuman enough in some respects, probably. But the New York Times correspondent at Belgrade, knowing well enough that the official press bureaus of neither country were to be trusted, made an independent inquiry as to this 4 year old girl. And he discovered she had not been deported at all. He goes on to explain:

> She was being sent by her grandfather to her mother, who had gone back to Budapest carrying the passport which covered the child also. The grandfather sent her along to her mother, devising the placard in case the mother should miss her at the frontier. This happened to coincide with the general deportations and became heaven sent material for Hungarian propaganda.

There are at least two lessons that ought to be driven home to us in this country by this incident—an incident, by the way, which is being duplicated in the news all the time.

One is that there is a vast difference between the sort of news reporting provided by the New York Times correspondent, for example, or by any of the reputable newspapers and press services in this country, and the sort provided by "official press bureaus" that are simply propaganda tools for some government.

The other lesson is that, despite all the exposés as to the rubbish our passions were fed during the war, a good part of the world is just as susceptible to that sort of feeding as ever. As skeptical as we Americans think we have become, would we scrutinize it any more closely than the Hungarians, even now, if we were equally inflamed about something?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

PLENTY OF SNOW and more snow coming! Looks like a snowy winter. There's a lot of nonsense in the minds of most people about snow. It started a long time ago when a misguided poet wrote "Snow, snow, beautiful snow," and everybody believed it. The thing became a fixed belief and has passed on from generation to generation right down to our own day. What's beautiful about snow? Try to guide your car when it's doing a wild-eyed shimmy on the snow or sliding straight for a telephone post and then think of "Snow, snow, beautiful snow!" Slip on the beautiful snow when you're walking carefully home and sit down so hard your back teeth rattle and you hear all the bottles in the package go crash, and then try to murmur something about how beautiful the snow is. Or get a large snowball in the ear from some cunning little boy across the street. Beautiful snow! Tut tut tut! Snow is beautiful in pictures because it stays that way, but when it hangs around in town for only a few hours it looks like crêpe on the front door. Beautiful snow just rollics in smoke and soot and dirt and gets its face as dirty as it can in the least possible time. Beautiful snow! Bah!

A SONG FOR MEN.

O men with tired eyes and heavy hearts,
Bewildered in a world of sudden change
Wherein what you have striven for seems lost,
Wherein old truths appear awry and strange,

If you could know the deathless tenderness,
The yearning love that women feel who see
The long harsh struggle and your many wounds,
It would uphold you till the victory.

ADELAIDE LOVE.

ANYHOW, IT DOESN'T look a bit as though 1935 was going to be in the least dull. Japan is going to do what she pleases regarding the number of warships she will build, treaties or no treaties; which, of course, carries a very definite hint that Japan isn't going to make any violent effort to avoid war. And Europe seems to be popping all over the place with war rumors. So far as real excitement went, 1934 hasn't been so hot, but 1935? Oh, la la la! Keep your seats, folks; the big show is about to begin.

THE CHRISTMAS DOG.

He is a small creature, a cocker spaniel, named Feathers, because of his feathered paws. He looks slightly like a pig with red-brown fur and ears with a wingspread of eleven inches. He dotes on shoes, ONE of each pair; today's newspapers, new magazines, the fringes of rugs, and traps in the precise middle of the kitchen floor. Buttons, the brown-eyed yellow Persian kitten who insanely and quietly paces like a horse, regards him gravely, tussles with him, sleeps and eats with him, and, on occasion, washes his face, slapping him with a practiced paw when he will not lie calmly under such ministrations.

Clyde says he looks like a cross between a dachshund and a Missouri coonhound. Clyde says, fondly, What good are you? STOP chewing my boots. Do you want to be scratched? Do you want to come outdoors? But WHAT good are you? David examines him patiently, investigating his baby teeth, the fringes of his flopping ears, the seam that runs on his stummick, showing him unfinished.

Feathers walks on a wagging diagonal, blissfully sure that everybody loves him. He eats the kitten's meat; the kitten eats his puppy food. He digs imaginary holes in the rug to sleep in. He lies on his back, begging for scratchings, a grin running along his jaws, his dark eyes wistfully, unbearably, meltingly sad.

Anybody can pet him. Anybody can romp with him. But when I call him he comes. He will leave his dinner, his romps in the lovely wet snow, his reserve bones under the radiator, the fascinating kitten, EVERYTHING, when I call him. Clyde goes off to his occupations, whistling slightly off key; David goes out to play with the Kane twins, and Walter and Freddy; the kitten looks blandly toward my voice, but the puppy races to me. He's my dog. He's mine. For this New Year I shall try to be a fit person to be his human—his.

NANCY SHORES.

NEW YORK DANCING MASTERS insist that at last a foolproof dance called the Americana has arrived. They claim it is elephant and fool proof because even the big, clumsy men who waltz like a fireproof safe will not step on their partners' feet. It's too good to be true. You can't any more invent a dance in which some men won't step on their partners' feet than you could fly to the moon in your automobile. This is one case at least where science is helpless.

This shall be
My immortality:
Some slender wisps of song
Careening down the wind
Of future circumstance;
A not unkind
Remembrance of my singing;
And a friend or two
Who knew me as I was—
A man who found life good,
Who dreamed of brotherhood,
Who walked through joyous days
With love for man,

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

THE AUTOMOBILE SAFETY COUNCIL is working hard to devise ways of reducing accidents on the slippery streets this winter. I've figured it out myself and I think I've got the only sure fire way of handling a motor car which makes for absolutely safe driving. Of course, it sounds pretty vain to say that I can absolutely guarantee that I will have no accident with my car this winter. But I do say just that. My plan is to hunt up an automobile storage house, drive the car in, and tell 'em to put it on jacks and keep the darned thing there till summer comes again. R. H. L.

CANCER: DISCOVERY VERSUS CONCEALMENT.

CANCER is a disease of the human family that all of us should know more about. It causes each year a huge monetary loss, great suffering, and wields its scythe of destruction at a time in life when the individual is or should be more active, more productive, and of the greatest value to society.

Apparently the disease is on the increase. The growing number of reported cases cannot be laid entirely to better diagnosis or to earlier recognition. More often than not it is attacking people in the prime of life, frequently after successful victories over numerous other diseases have been won.

If we can but divorce ourselves from fear of a fatal outcome should cancer be recognized, we can study and attack the problem with renewed vigor. Cancer is curable if detected early.

Cancer never begins as a general disease of the whole body. It starts as a tiny area of cell growth at some point in the body. For days, weeks, or even months the growth may be so small that it cannot be recognized. There comes a time, however, when positive symptoms call attention to the condition and if these symptoms are properly interpreted and if early removal of the growth is undertaken a high percentage of patients will be saved.

Fearing cancer will get us nowhere. We too often delay examination because we fear that cancer may be present. Rather should we say, "I have some symptoms. They may or may not be due to cancer. If my symptoms are caused by cancer the sooner I seek skilled counsel the better will be my chances. If they are not caused by cancer—O, what a relief!"

As far as is known cancer is not contagious, although there may be a hereditary tendency toward tumor growths. Diets cannot cause cancer, neither can they relieve it, and the disease affects impartially the vegetarian and the meat eater. It occurs in the lower animals and in fish.

Education as to the ordinary symptoms so that early diagnosis may be made and treatment instituted is of the highest importance. What if some of us needlessly visit our family physicians? It is their responsibility to help safeguard the health of the family—not alone to cure existing disease. Experts now hold that if individuals can be correctly informed as to early symptoms 60 per cent of all cancer can be cured.

The gravity of the cancer situation cannot be too strongly stressed. Although the cause of cancer has so far defied detection, enough is known of its character, its method of growth, and its dissemination through the body to lead to the adoption of precautions and preventive measures. Prevention requires coöperation of the physician and the public and research as to the cause must go forward with energy.

We must all recognize that persistent and continuous irritation of certain cells of the body, from any cause, may bring about an abnormal growth that is cancerous in character. Professor Huxley says: "Nature never forgives and never forgets," and many of us have to relearn one of the simple rules of body hygiene that epithelial cells of skin and mucous membrane will not endure irritation for long.

The public must learn to identify certain conditions that are called pre-cancerous and, as far as possible, remove them. Among these may be mentioned dark colored moles, growths on the skin, particularly in older people; chronic ulcers, gallstones, ulcers of the stomach, ulcers and tears of the cervix of the uterus, and chronic infections wherever they may exist.

ACID FOR ANEMIA.

A physician's widow writes that she has been anemic since the age of 16 years. She was always tired and had terrific headaches until four years ago when her physician discovered she had no free hydrochloric acid in the stomach. She has been taking hydrochloric acid before each meal since then and has had no recurrence of her former type of headache. Her blood is now normal as to red cells and hemoglobin. She suggests that physicians, in seeking the cause of anemia, do not overlook this possibility.

MEAT INSPECTION.

C. W. M. writes: In reference to your article on milk-borne disease, isn't your warning of danger of developing tuberculosis by drinking milk from untested cows a contradiction when, at the same time, diseased cattle are used for food?

REPLY.

Diseased cattle are not used for food. The finding by inspectors of tuberculosis in an animal carcass means that the meat is disqualified for human consumption. The United States Bureau of Animal Industry order, No. 211, includes the regulations under which meat for shipment is inspected and approved for food. Inspectors are supplied by the bureau and are trained veterinary pathologists. They not only inspect the carcasses but regulate the sanitary conditions under which meat is prepared.

All of this pertains to meat that is shipped from one state to another. The bureau does not inspect meat that is prepared only for local sale or is shipped within the state in which it is prepared. Most cities and states have some form of meat inspection regulations that govern locally consumed meat.

According to reliable figures, approximately 60 per cent of the meat and meat products consumed in the United States is U. S. government inspected. The balance is subject to state and local regulations. In the absence of adequate state inspection municipalities should assume jurisdiction.

MAY BE CLOGGED GLANDS.

Mrs. J. R. writes: A few years ago I noticed a puffiness in my armpits. This is growing larger all the time. It does not hurt. I am 45 years old.

REPLY.

This condition may be caused by clogged-up sweat glands, due to solutions used for cosmetic purposes. Numerous lymph glands lie in the space beneath the arm, and these become enlarged in certain diseases and in the presence of infection. If infection exists the swollen glands under the arm are usually sore.

TESTS NEGATIVE.

E. N. R. writes: If a Wasserman and spinal fluid test show negative is there still a chance that syphilis is present?

REPLY.

Probably not, although the test should be repeated at six month or yearly intervals for three or four years.

ENTRY LEGALIZATION.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—[Friend of the People.]—I recall having read an article in your column saying that an individual who came from Canada before 1925 could become a naturalized citizen through a federal law to be passed in 1933. It is my recollection that the above information was given through the immigration office here. I would be glad if you would confirm the same if it is correct. M. S.

Presently existing legislation permits legalization of the residence of aliens who entered the United States without legal admission prior to June 3, 1921. Legislation to permit such legalization for entry without legal admission before July 1, 1924, has been considered, but has not been enacted into law as yet.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,

PROBATE OF ESTATE.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A resident of Illinois for four years has all of his estate in Ohio—bonds, stocks, bank accounts, real estate, etc. 1. Would his heir pay state inheritance tax in Ohio or Illinois, or in both states? 2. Could the estate be administered in Ohio by his heir who has been named executor but who is a resident of Illinois? In case of a will leaving entire estate to one's only grandchild and the income of estate to the testator's only child for life [3] would the child have to pay an inheritance tax?

J. C. W.

1. Depends on the nature, extent and location of the assets.
2. In general, the principal probate should be where the deceased resided at the time of his death.
3. Yes, if the value was sufficiently large.

FIVE DAY NOTICE.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is it necessary for a landlord to personally give a five day notice to the tenant, or can he tack it on the door? H. L.

Section 10 of the landlord and tenant act provides that the five day notice may be served by delivering a copy to the tenant or leaving the same with some person above the age of 12, residing on or in possession of the premises "and in case no one is in the actual possession of said premises, then by posting the same on the premises."

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JUDGMENT NOTE.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am holding a $500 second mortgage which expired in 1931. The owner of the building did not pay off the mortgage nor did he pay any interest. I brought suit against him for judgment, but the judge thought it best to settle out of court and ordered him to pay interest to Dec. 29, 1934, at which time the case will come up again. In your opinion, is a judgment note better than holding the second mortgage?

F. A. S.

You already have a note. The only advantage of a judgment note would be that you could enter judgment without serving summons on the defendant. As we understand it, you have already served such a summons. Hence, we see no important advantage of the judgment note over the second mortgage and the latter has the advantage of being secured by a present lien.

The so-called "horns" of the rhinoceros are not horns, but are a modified form of the animal's hair. They are of epidermal origin and are formed by the bristles becoming united into a solid mass. These hard tufts are located on the nose of the animal and are useful in uprooting vegetation and in attacking enemies.

SPEAKING OF WAR PROFITS.

Chicago, Dec. 25.—"Taking the profits out of war" is just a catch phrase, and will be just as difficult of attainment as "taking men out of war except those who want to fight," and it is my belief that we should try the latter.

Man kind should certainly never again be drafted for conflict. All should be trained in time of peace to be prepared for attack, but just the moment war is declared those who desire should be demobilized and the army recruited for the period of the war by volunteers only. Let those who want to fight enlist. Let those who don't, whether they be cowards or just too proud to fight, be allowed to use their own judgment as to whether they want to get in or stay out.

"War to end war" and "make the world safe for democracy" were good slogans, and if true were perhaps good reasons for volunteer enlistment, but not for draft.

The nations of the world in solemn compact have agreed not to use soft nosed bullets, but it is humanitarian to take a poor devil of a coward who is yellow clean through and can't help it and order him over the top.

An agreement among the nations of the world to end conscription of man power is just as possible of attainment as one to end profits in war. Let America be attacked and the real manhood of the nation would spring to arms over night, but any other kind of war would have to be darn popular to win support.

JESSE H. HARLOW,

INTOLERANCE IN RUSSIA.

Austin, Minn., Dec. 26.—In reply to the letter of "Truth Seeker" in today's paper regarding freedom of worship in soviet Russia:

The soviet authorities talk in a most righteous manner about any Russian being free to worship God, but this is only true in so far as it is the case that no one is actually put in jail on avowedly religious grounds. However, consider such facts as these:

1. The government controls all church property and any church may be closed at any time "on demand of the people." The government is absolute and is the sole judge of what that "demand" shall be.

2. No one may hold office or teach in the public schools who does not belong to the communist party, and no believer in any form of religion may belong to the communist party.

3. The teaching of atheism is compulsory in the public schools; on the other hand religion may not be taught outside the home to any person under eighteen.

4. The clergy may not vote and are also cut off from the many social and economic privileges offered by the soviet government.

5. The Society of the Godless, subsidized by the government, carries out all manner of atheistic propaganda, including the famous Christmas and Easter demonstrations in front of the churches. Religious parades or demonstrations are forbidden by law. The fact that, by the admission of the government, this godless propaganda has had little success does not affect the fact that government funds are used for this purpose.

When Russian church people, stung to the limit of endurance by this injustice, dare to protest the government raises the cry of "capitalist counter-revolution," and wholesale imprisonment and executions take place. If they are not enthusiastic supporters of the government under these conditions who shall blame them?

This may be "Truth Seeker's" idea of freedom of worship, but if that is religious tolerance give me tyranny. It is interesting to notice that those who are most active in condemning alleged intolerance on the part of Christian people are equally active in excusing the same thing on the other side.

THE ORDINANCE OF 1787.

Kankakee, Ill., Dec. 24.—I observed the query dated Dec. 17, "Can Illinois Be Divided?" by Leroy L. Hunter in the Voice of the People, wherein he states the ordinance of 1787 limits the division of the Northwest Territory into not more than five states and stating: "Therefore, it is not legally possible to divide Illinois into two separate states."

May I call his attention to the case of People vs. Thompson, 155 Ill., 451, decided by our Supreme court April 2, 1895, wherein the court states at page 472:

> The Supreme court of the United States has on numerous occasions decided that the ordinance of 1787 has become inoperative, and quoting from Sands vs. Manistee River Improvement company, 123 U. S. 288, wherein the Supreme court of the United States said:

> Yet from the very condition on which the states formed out of that territory were admitted to the Union the provisions of the ordinance became inoperative except as adopted by them.

Our Supreme court also cites Escanaba, etc., County vs. City of Chicago, 107 U. S. 678, holding that the ordinance of 1787 ceased to have any operative force except as voluntarily adopted after Illinois became a state of the Union.

This, I think, answers Mr. Hunter's criticism.

LANDING FIELD DANGERS.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—Upon reading opinions recently quoted in your columns regarding the proposed establishment of a landing harbor for planes adjacent to Grant park for the convenience of passengers I was very unfavorably impressed. Perhaps the hotel and business men of the city quite naturally favor this project as a means of placing their business before the public in a more favorable way, but to a person who is not airminded, nor possibly ever will be, it takes on the aspect of a very foolish adventure, a sort of "take a chance" proposition in which safety to users of Mother Earth becomes secondary to business.

Last week a large ten passenger transport plane passed over my home after dark and in a heavy snowstorm at an altitude so low that vibrations of the one motor which was working very poorly at that time rattled the windows, and upon traveling two blocks farther the plane crashed to the ground in ruins. Very fortunately, through no fault of the pilot, the plane did not land on the roof of a home or crash into its walls, but landed against parkway trees and settled to the ground in the street. Do we have any air rights over our property? Nothing prevents me from building skywards to infinity nor digging to China, but if I do not choose to use that privilege then the airplane usurps my rights and uses it for me without permission and should therefore be called a trespasser. It is a proposition which takes on an entirely different aspect when it comes close to home and peace.

MACCARTIE ON RACIAL ORIGINS.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—This is a heck of a burg. With thousands of Americans out of work we find in the suburban slum of Morton Grove a fire-eating English royalist, calling himself Nordheimer, sounding off for the Scotch whisky general, Haig of Haig & Haig, and I am a Swede named MACCARTIE.

Miss Wendell Will Be Bride of Soule Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

A BRIDE takes precedence today over the debutantes, who have been holding the center of the social stage this last week, for one of the most important weddings of the winter takes place this afternoon. It is that of Miss Barbara Wendell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell Jr., and Horace H. Soule Jr. of Boston. There will be a number of Bostonians among the 250 who will assemble in St. Chrysostom's church this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock to hear the rector, the Rev. Dudley Stark, read the service, for the bride's family, as well as the bridegroom's, is prominent in the Massachusetts city.

Miss Dorothy Ranney is to serve Miss Wendell as maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be the bridegroom's sister, Miss Elizabeth Soule; Mrs. Sargent Collier of Walpole, Mass., the former Eleanor McCormick of Chicago; Miss Griselda Higginson and Miss Alida Goodwin, both of Boston and both cousins of the bride.

Arthur Grannis Jr. has come from Boston to act as best man for Mr. Soule, and ushering will be Mr. Collier, Barrett Wendell III. and F. Lee H. Wendell, brothers of the bride, and John C. Soule, the bridegroom's brother. Also Thomas G. Wheelock of Chicago and Sumner Pingree, John E. Yerxa, Lincoln Davis Jr., and John D. W. Morrill, all of Boston. Following the ceremony there will be a reception at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell, 1260 Astor street.

Luncheon Today for Wedding Guests.

The luncheon that the George A. Ranneys, Miss Dorothy's parents, were to give today at the Casino for the wedding party and the out-of-town guests was canceled owing to Mrs. Ranney's recent accident, and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick is entertaining them at luncheon today at her residence, 1260 Astor street, instead. It was at Mrs. McCormick's that Mrs. Ranney fell the other day and broke her arm.

The Bostonians who are here for the wedding are Mrs. Soule Sr., Mrs. Charles G. Weld, Mrs. Sumner Pingree, Mrs. Graham T. Winslow, Mrs. Frederick S. Goodwin, Mrs. Barrett Wendell Sr., and Mrs. Phillip S. Sears. Mr. Wendell's sister, Mrs. Charles D. Osborne, and Mr. Osborne, who live in Auburn, N. Y., also are here.

Mr. Soule and his bride, who met last summer at the McCormick-Collier wedding in June at Bar Harbor, will live in Boston.

Debutante Ball for Ethel Johnston.

Tonight most of the dinner parties in town will end up at the Johnston ball which Hulburd and Hugh McBirney Johnston are giving for their debutante sister, Miss Ethel Johnston, one of the most attractive and popular of this season's debs, in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. The three young people will receive together from 11 o'clock on. The debutante's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted, and her aunt and uncle, the Morris L. Johnstons, will be present.

Miss Johnston, who was graduated from the Concord academy last June, is one of the most fêted of this year's belles. Mr. and Mrs. Johnston gave a large luncheon for her to meet their friends at the Casino; another aunt and uncle, the De Forest Hulburds, gave a dinner-dance for her last summer, and Mrs. George A. Richardson and her daughter, Mrs. Rodman Lent Hooker, then Nancy Morse, gave a dinner-dance for her and Miss Betty Brooks, who also bows to society tonight, last July. The Olmsteds also entertained at a dinner-dance for her.

This noon the Potter Palmers are giving a breakfast for Miss Johnston and Miss Caryl Ely. The party will be attended by a mixed crowd, for, in addition to the debutantes and their beaux, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer have invited some of the young married people including their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, III., and the former Bertha Palmer and her husband, Oakleigh L. Thorne; also a few of subdebutante Miss Pauline Palmer's friends, and Gordon Palmer will have several of his Harvard classmates at the breakfast also.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Wilson Jr. are giving a dinner for some of the young married set tonight at the Racquet club and taking them on to the Johnston dance. There will be numerous other small dinners for those not in the debutante crowd.

Dinner-Dance Tonight for Betty Brooks.

Most of the debutantes and their beaux will dine and dance before the ball at the Casino as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps, who are presenting their daughter, Miss Betty Brooks, to society. Miss Brooks is another belle of the season, tall and blonde, and she, too, has been widely entertained. She finished her schooling by traveling abroad with Miss Stout's school for six months last winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Phelps have invited about 60 of their own friends to dine in an adjoining room at the Casino.

A third debut today is the tea Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. de Peyster are giving in their Winnetka home for their daughter, Miss Jane de Peyster, who attended the North Shore Country Day school and now is a sophomore at Smith. The De Peysters will receive between 4 and 7 o'clock in the living room of their Willow street house. Several of the debutante's sister debs from Winnetka and a few from town will assist at the tea.

There will not be much opportunity

Parties Keep Debs Dancing Until Daylight

After a night of dancing, unbroken save for a trip from the Blackstone to the Casino, the debutantes and the college boys are due to arrive at home between 5 and 7 o'clock this morning. Miss Nancy Knode, Miss Muriel Picher, Miss Caryl Ely, and Miss Ellen Wacker were the debutantes fêted last night.

The younger daughters of Mrs. Oliver S. Picher and of the Oliver Morton Knodes bowed at a dinner dance in the ballroom of the Blackstone hotel, and later in the evening Mrs. C. Morse Ely and the Frederick G. Wackers entertained for their granddaughter and daughter, respectively, at a ball at the Casino.

The crystal ballroom looked lovely with its decorations of silver Christmas trees lighted by red lamps, and silver leaves and red carnations on the tables. Still more lovely were the debutantes. Miss Knode, for whom the dinner dance was a formal presentation, wore quilted silver cloth covered with stiffened silver lace. Both she and Miss Picher, who was presented to society earlier in the season at a tea, carried colonial bouquets of sweetheart roses, gardenias, and lilies of the valley. Miss Picher wore figured lamé with a silver background, full skirted. Flowers of the same material were the only decoration on the gown.

Mrs. Knode and Mrs. Picher received with the debutantes. Mrs. Knode chose chartreuse and gold lamé and orchids, and Mrs. Picher wore a simple gown of white and silver lace with a train and deep purple orchids.

The gayety of the dinner dance carried over to the Wacker-Ely party at the Casino, which also was decorated appropriately for Christmas. Miss Ely was presented to society by her mother, Mrs. J. Morse Ely, last September at a tea, but the dance last night was Miss Wacker's formal introduction. Miss Wacker looked like a picture of a debutante of many years ago, in a dainty white gown made with a taffeta bodice and a skirt of tulle ruffles stitched with silver, and white violets.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—A children's party was given in the White House this afternoon for the President's grandchildren, Sistie and Buzzie Dall and Sarah Delano Roosevelt, children of Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall and James Roosevelt II.

Supper was served to the seventy youngsters at five in the state dining room while tea was served to the grownups of their families in the red room, with Mrs. Roosevelt presiding. Sistie, Buzzie and Sarah each presided at one of the small tables laid in the state dining room where the little guests were served cereal, creamed chicken, string beans, ice cream, cake and milk. Mrs. Dall acted as the principal hostess, although Mrs. Roosevelt received all the little guests. The President greeted them during their supper.

Fill Auditorium for Benefit of the Bohemians

Marquise d'Ivanrey Guest of Carpenters.

The Bohemians may have been a bit upset at having "The Fire Bird" revived for the first time the night before their benefit instead of at the performance of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe that they were sponsoring, but when they saw the size of the audience in the Auditorium last night surely they felt nothing but delight and pleasure, for it was as large and as gala an appearing crowd as that which greeted the Russian ballet troupe upon their return to Chicago Wednesday night. Society turned out en masse for it and every seat was occupied.

Holding court in the intermissions was one of the most famous beauties of which Chicago society has boasted, the Marquise d'Ivanrey, formerly Italia Blair. She arrived yesterday morning for a visit with her old friend, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, whose guest she was last night in a lower tier back box. As lovely as in the days when she was a belle in Chicago, she was kept busy during the entr'actes greeting old friends.

A black velvet gown with dropped shoulders, elbow length sleeves, and a modified bustle effect was her becoming costume, and in her jet black hair she wore an exquisite gold and pearl coronet. Her only other jewels were pearl button earrings.

Her hostess was smart in black velvet also, and in her hair she wore a narrow black velvet band. Around her shoulders was a wide velvet scarf edged with sable tails. Also in the box were Mr. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, and Frank McNair. Mrs. Kirk, Mrs. Francis Johnson until recently, wore pale gold lame, very lovely with her golden hair.

Among others who attended the performance were Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne and her parents, the Henry Bartholomays; Mrs. Otto Teegen of New York and her mother, Mrs. Frederick M. Schmidt; Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock, the Charles B. Goodspeeds, Miss Helen Bell, escorted by John Cromelin; the Ernest R. Grahams, Miss Emily Larned, Baron and Baroness Wrangel, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Russell Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Ganz, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Noyes, the Charles H. Swifts, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, and Mrs. Clyde M. Carr.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter have invited about 100 friends to tea at their residence on Lake Shore drive tomorrow afternoon to meet the marquise.

OFFER COMIC WORK

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Adding "Scuola di Ballo" to their repertoire yesterday afternoon and appearing under the auspices of The Bohemians of Chicago for the benefit of that organization's charity fund in the evening, the lovely Russians from Monte Carlo continued to put Chicago into their debt in respect to the art of the dance done in beautiful manner.

"Scuola di Ballo" perhaps does not rank among the most startling productions of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, but it is a diverting and comic piece, tending to gladden the hearts of those who go to the Auditorium these days.

It is a story of a dancing academy where some of the pupils dance well and some misbehave, where love affairs go on, an impresario comes to engage talent and gets into a squabble with the proprietor, who on his part comes to an ending of undeserved bad luck. All this goes to antique but sprightly music by Boccherini.

Both the afternoon and evening audiences saw "Aurora's Wedding," the piece with which the company opened its series, and which, plotless though it may be, by the sheer force of its color, vivacity, and exquisite performance is just about as much of a hit in the dancing world as Frederick Stock's arrangement of Paganini's "Moto Perpetuo" is in that of the symphony orchestra. The evening audience likewise saw Stravinsky's "Fire Bird," a glorious work that grows more fascinating with repetition.

"Contes Russes" will be seen for the first time in Chicago in this afternoon's performance, likewise "Boutique Fantasque" and "Prince Igor." The evening schedules "Union Pacific," "Aurora's Wedding," and "Beau Danube."

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

ANTAL DORATI, the gray-eyed young Hungarian conductor of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, finished eating his hot apricot soufflé at the Arts club, expressed his relish of that delicious dessert, and commented that he had been told in Europe he would not be able to find anything fit to eat in America. He added that he had found American food very much to his taste. And especially the hot toasted sandwiches one got at a luncheonette when one was in a hurry.

Conductor—Painter.

M. DORATI has frequently been in a hurry since he has been in America with the ballet Russe. Last Monday morning he was in a hurry to get back to Milwaukee from Chicago for the matinée performance he was conducting. The train which he had been told would get him there in record time was late. He was counting the minutes until curtain time and the miles yet to go when a man got on at a north shore station and sat down in the seat beside him. Pulling a ballet program out of his pocket he began to look it over. Noticing his companion's interest, he addressed him.

"I'm going to Milwaukee to see the Russian ballet," he confided to Mr. Dorati. Then he pulled out his watch. "I'm worried though," he added. "The train's late and I don't know that I'm going to get there for the opening."

"You are worried?" queried M. Dorati politely. "I beg your pardon. It is I who am worried."

Arrived in Milwaukee, they took a taxicab together and arrived on the dot at 2:15, matinée time.

THEN there was the occasion when the ballet gave one performance in Utica, N. Y. The performance was given in a cinema with a large stage, and as evening approached and the afternoon's picture was still running the company manager began to worry because the time left for setting the stage was growing inadequate. Hunting up the house manager he begged that, since there were only some thirty people left in the audience, the movies be stopped. The house manager voiced his regret that he was unable to do that.

"They have paid to see the picture, and it must all be shown," he said.

After another half hour, during which the ballet technicians fumed with impatience, the picture was finished and the lights went up in the house. Then, and only then, was it discovered that the handful of audience was made up exclusively of ballet members.

* *

JEAN LURCAT, the French painter, also was a guest with the Doratis at luncheon and afterward took us to see his paintings of costumes and sets for the new ballet to be produced this year, "Le Jardin Publique," for which Vladimir Dukelski has written the music. The table in his room at the Auditorium hotel was covered with paint pots and brushes, as Lurcat does not depend upon a studio in which to paint any more than he does upon models or subjects. His painting is entirely imaginative, and in rapid French, and addressing his explanations particularly to Ruth Page, ballet director of the Chicago opera, he displayed the vivid water colors he is doing for the new ballet.

Smooth Hand Shows Person Is Adaptable

Adaptable people are popular. Why not? They have a quality that is the foundation of popularity. They blend smoothly and mix easily with any group or with any individual. They have true poise. They also have a suavity that makes others feel at ease.

The most noticeable thing in an adaptable handwriting is a complete lack of self-consciousness. The letters never look "squeezed." They flow along smoothly and widely.

An odd thing about adaptability is that you may find it in warmly emotional handwriting or in one that reflects a cold or repressed nature. The result is that, if you are truly adaptable, people are inclined to like and admire your personality whether you really care anything about them or not. On the other hand, if you lack this quality you may often be affectionate and responsive at heart without the ability to express yourself or to mix with others as you would like to do.

I shall tell you an infallible indication of the truly adaptable. If a person makes his small m's like w's and his n's like u's you may be sure that he has the gift of adaptability.

What is my personality?

Here is a typical handwriting of the type I have mentioned. The writer has a good sized handwriting, and the letters seem to flow from the pen. The u-shaped n and the w-shaped m are very noticeable This particular writer is adaptable because of a love of others, according to the forward slant and the light pressure used. If she wrote a black, heavy backhand, the adaptability might have been developed for practical reasons.

Satin to Lead in New Year's Eve Parades

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Properly festive gowns for the New Year's eve celebrations are going out fast. All of them are long, clinging, and most revealing as to silhouette; nearly all them are made with slit skirts, and the skirt lines that do not boast slits are the swirling full models with circular flounces and intricate inset sections from the knee line to the floor.

If you value your reputation as a well dressed fashionable you'll spend your last cent on smooth foundation garments, for these midwinter party gowns have the most revealing contours of the season. The slightest bulge will betray your added poundage unless you are smoothly foundationed in the clever models of lastex and satin, subtly cut, and made expressly for all these new clothes.

Satin rates first place, with some very lovely pastel printed satins coming in second. These printed satins can be packed in southbound vacation trunks for evening duty along with all the gleaming, shimmering beauties in white, colors, and black.

Eyelet embroidery is used for some effective costumes in white and soft pastels. They are made with tiny puffed sleeves, separate jackets, and pastel tinted chiffon sashes.

Starched lace in picturesque models of powder blue, a dusty pink, and lots of pale chartreuse green are favorites with the college crowd. These are cut with full skirts, fitted bodices, and with detachable jackets.

Very romantic taffetas still create plenty of interest, especially the wide skirted black numbers and the solid colors in white and a stunning green-blue. Old-fashioned long sleeved jackets that fit snugly and button demurely down the front with innumerable small buttons usually top these flaring, rustling black and colored silks.

The rest of the popular models have some of the best looking capes of the hour, double tiered affairs of matching or contrasting net or tulle, tied snugly around the neckline in a bow and long ends under the chin.

Good Morning!

Well, well, MISTER Robert Montgomery!

NEVER did we think we'd find you all dressed up in a ruffled gown! OR falling into mud puddles. Or, tch, tch, TCH!—forsaking your bride-to-be at the altar . . . !

Well, life is like that—full of surprises.

It's becoming the mode for our handsome male screen stars to play duennas to attractive feminine ones. In "Desirable" we discovered George Brent paying judicial attention to the welfare of Jean Muir. [Loving her madly in the back of his heart the while.] In "Forsaking All Others" Clark Gable is Joan Crawford's Rock of Gibraltar, quiet harbor, and confessional, until—well—until——

Through most of the action Joan is in love with Mr. Montgomery, who also cares for her. But he is a soul easily swayed by present influences. SO—when, on the eve of his marriage a lady who had once made Paris beautiful for him, appears desiring champagne and attention, he trusts her too far—with disastrous results. . . .

Mr. Gable, just arrived home from Spain, where he has a highly remunerative job of some sort or other, is all set to ask Joan, whom he's adored since skinned knees' days, to wed him. And finds himself picked by Joan's Aunt Paula [Billie Burke—just too buttery for anything!] to give the bride away . . . ! He can take it. And so, agrees smilingly to the proposition. Only, when the times comes—how give bride when no bridegroom to give to?

Of course, Robert [now married to his Parisian flower] repents. And, if you think Joan doesn't gallop right back to him when he crooks a finger, your psychology's all wrong. In fact, so sure is she that he and she are one another's destinty, that she almost. Well . . . !!!

This is the sort of fast moving, dressy, superficial movie fare that the majority of Crawford-Gable fans like. It won't go so hotcha with the Montgomery addicts on account of Robert's not cutting a very commendable figure.

Miss Crawford performs with her usual enthusiasm and sincerity. Mr. Gable, very thin, and wearing a mustache that doesn't help him, is nice as the big bulwark. Charles Butterworth delights with his popular brand of passive whimsy. Frances Drake does a thorough job as the altar robber.

Smart settings and considerable slapstick lend wham to the production.

Dr. Houghton Avers Restoration of Bible Will End World Ills

Restoration of the Bible to its former place is seen as the remedy for the ills of the world by Dr. Will H. Houghton, new president of the Moody Bible institute. Dr. Houghton spoke last night at a dinner in his honor given at Marshall Field's grill by the Chicago Fellowship of the Alumni association of the institute. Many former students and alumni attended the dinner.

"In our land and throughout the world the Bible for the last two or three decades has been ignored by some, denied by others and mutilated by still others," Dr. Houghton said. "Now we need to restore it to its proper place, urge the people to read it in their homes, preach it from our pulpits and live it in our lives."

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

[Posed by June Lang.]

An eyebrow and eyelash cosmetic inspired by a mustache wax of old and established fame proves one of the best for darkening and highlighting.

Strange as it may seem, one of the best of the modern cosmetics for eyebrows and eyelashes evolved from an old and honored wax that was in the best seller class back in the days when the stronger sex thought stiffly twirled handlebar mustachios were the last word in masculine adornment.

The creamy paste has changed somewhat in texture and is thereby better adapted to its new purpose in life because it isn't so stiff. It is now available in small tubes—very, very inexpensive—and is simply a jim-dandy lash and brow beautifier.

Personally we don't like to use it in the form the manufacturers had in mind when they designed the tube. Squeezing it out onto a brush just doesn't seem to work well for us because we inevitably get too much on both brow and lashes and the ultimate success of the operation leaves much to be desired.

A woman who's been using it and swears by it showed us her trick, which works like a charm. Slit the bottom of the tube the least little bit until you have a flat surface of the dark paste, then touch a most moderately moistened brush across it and get to work.

It doesn't smudge, is doesn't "spike" the lashes in the horrible fashion that makes a woman look dreadfully theatrical and it has really got a luster. It comes in brown and black and a chestnut shade and is infinitely becoming.

We like it immensely for eyebrows, too. We've never been one for the emaciated brow line that always makes a woman look as though some one had screamed "Boo!" at her—but brows of any natural width do get rumpled looking. This brow and lash cosmetic holds them in precise order—and darkens and highlights them, too.

You can now buy this paste in several places about town.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Miss Caroline McIlvaine, who for many years was associated with the Chicago Historical society, has installed a most interesting exhibit of prints of early Chicago in the lobby of the Chicago Motor club. It is an exhibition which every one, child or adult, should see.

The Chicago of 1871, the Chicago of 1865, was a fascinating place. The motto of the city's builders was "A City and a Garden," and from that promise they never diverged no matter what building was under discussion for erection.

It is, probably, due in great part to the influence of that thought, coming down from father to son, that today Chicago has its beautiful chain of parks and its glorious lake front. It is thrilling to follow the growth of the city through its early beginning. We find one print depicting the classic City Square of 1865 where Lincoln gave his campaign speeches in the courthouse which later gave his body sanctuary.

In another beautifully colored print we find Michigan avenue looking south from Adams street, the Honoré residence where today rises the Peoples Gas building. The Chicago public library stands now on what was Dearborn park, enclosing the last vestige of the Fort Dearborn Military reservation. Fifty-three acres changed hands for the sum of $106,000, an amusing sum considered in the light of property values today.

Crosby's Opera house which opened in 1865 is another landmark of those early days. It was built by Uranus Crosby for a "temple of art, painting, sculpture and the drama." The old Park Row of 1851 shows a line of impressive houses. This was the Gold Coast of two generations ago.

No one would recognize the busy corner of State and Washington streets in the garb of 1863, with horse cars, buggies, and fashionably dressed ladies and gentlemen going about their business in a quiet manner. The Central Music hall, where Prof. David Swing preached, is now the north end of Marshall Field's.

The exhibit proves the good taste of the builders of that time. Many of the buildings are classic in treatment, dignified and beautiful. Chicago has a past which should not be forgotten. Such exhibits as this should be retained for the instruction and satisfaction of future generations.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, is escaping out of Russia, where he is known as Stefan Ivangvitch. He rescues homeless Elizabeth Radin from freezing to death and takes her with him. He had seen her before and admired her. She is the widow of an executed engineer. Though English her husband was half Russian. She ran off to escape the advances of Commissar Petroff.

Stephen tells her his history, while they are traveling in a cart, driven by an old man named Yuri. As a boy Stephen lived on the large Russian estate of his stepfather and grew up with a large peasant family, until his mother got him an English tutor. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian, Robert Carey, in England. After the revolution in Russia he became a "secret observer" for England. He went to the town where old Yuri, Mrs. Darensky's father, lived, and made him believe he was one of his many grandchildren. He became a veterinarian and adopted various peasant rôles to help hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and is anxious to quit his hazardous work.

They reach the home of Yuri and his wife, Akulina. Stephen tells them Elizabeth is his wife and her name is Varvara. She is very ill for several days and Stephen takes care of her. Akulina dislikes the frail woman, as she does Irina, a friend of Stephen's in the village. Irina is a communist missionary. Elizabeth tells Stephen that Petroff had tried to learn from her a secret formula of her husband's. She grows stronger and attends a communist meeting in the village with Stephen, which Irina addresses.

INSTALMENT XII.

A BEAUTIFUL COMMUNIST.

Irina was tall and well made. She wore the blouse and skirt of a peasant woman, but she wore them with ease and grace. A scarlet 'kerchief was knotted at her breast, but her head was bare. It was a well shaped head, covered with thick, glossy black hair. Elizabeth, gazing at her curiously, received an odd sense of shock. Stephen had said that Irina was good looking. Good looking? She was beautiful. She was perhaps the most beautiful person that Elizabeth had ever seen. From that dingy ill lit platform her beauty bloomed like a flame. That was what she reminded Elizabeth of—a dark and vivid flame. She had a lovely oval face with regular features and large dark eyes. But the burning and the beauty came from within. It shone through her and seemed to light the hall.

"If we cannot hear Voroshiloff, we can hear Lenin. We can hear the voice of the revolution speaking in our own hearts and being echoed back from millions of other hearts, not only in the Union of Soviet Republic but from the world outside, where a million million workers hail the rising of our red star and lift up their right hands to join with us in the overthrow of the bloody monster of capitalism."

Her voice had a singular dominant quality. Elizabeth saw all the faces in the hall lifted. People who had been fidgeting and whispering now stared in the direction of the platform.

"The bourgeoisie," declaimed Irina—"the bourgeoisie resorts to every means of violence and terror to safeguard its predatory property. Hence the violence of the bourgeoisie can be suppressed only by the stern violence of the proletariat. The conquest of power by the proletariat is the violent overthrow of bourgeois power and the destruction of the capitalist state."

The long words rolled over the listeners' heads. Except for a few of the younger ones—little Octobrists of eight or nine, adolescent Pioneers, young communists, and Consomols—they neither understood nor wished to understand what Irina was saying. It all sounded very fine and grand, and it was doubtless pleasing to them. In the old days you had to stand well with the land owners, the people up at the big house. Now they were gone, but there were new masters. The peasant always has a master. Whether you use two flat stones, which is the oldest way of all, or a piece of noisy machinery, which is the very newest, it matters little to the grain which is in process of being ground.

Irina's voice was mesmeric. She talked about the agricultural front, about the Five Year plan, about the necessity for communizing everything—the collectivized farm was essential—resistanec to collectivization must cease—only by way of the collective farm could true Socialism be established and the needs of the proletariat satisfied. At the mention of the collective farm a slight glaze filmed the eyes of the listeners. Elizabeth was aware that Irina no longer held them spellbound. Some deep, instinctive resistance made itself felt.

As Irina paused on a period, Akulina said in a bitter whisper, "Cock-a-doodle-doo! When a hen takes to crowing she's ready for a pot!"

Her neighbor on the bench, a little bent old woman, gave a brief cackle of laughter. She stared inquisitively past Akulina and Yuri at Stefan and the new wife he had brought home. She chuckled again and poked Akulina with her elbow.

"Those crowing ones don't always catch the men," she said.

Akulina snorted. Whatever else Varvara was, she was at least quiet in the house. She said so, not troubling whether her words traveled beyond old Masha or not.

The little old woman giggled.

"To have that one in the house would be like having an earthquake there!" She indicated Irina with a jerk of her chin.

A boy with a wild, thin face had jumped upon a bench in the front of the hall and was talking fervently but not very audibly about the young communist movement. The fidgeting had begun again, and a buzz of talk. The two old ladies continued their conversation with a good deal of enjoyment.

Irina remained upon the platform. Standing beneath the portrait of Lenin she surveyed the inattentive audience with an air of disdainful impatience.

"Looks at us as if we weren't good enough to tread on!" was Akulina's comment.

Masha nodded.

"She'd have had your Stefan fast enough if she could have got him. It wasn't for want of trying if she didn't. What's this girl like that he's married? She looks a quiet one, as you say."

"O, she's quiet." Akulina's tone was disparaging in the extreme.

Yuri had gone to sleep. From across him Stephen caught enough of the women's conversation to make him uneasy. Masha was the most inquisitive old woman in the village, and would undoubtedly pass on all she could glean to her six daughters-in-law and all her neighbors. The gleaning would be well garnished.

The young communist was still addressing a completely inattentive room. Stephen thought it was time to make a diversion. He jumped on the bench and began to sing "The Red Flag" in a fine rolling baritone. At the first note Irina's expression changed. Exaltation replaced disdain. Springing to the front of the platform she joined in the song. It was immediately taken up by all the younger part of the audience.

The trivial nursery rhyme tune went with a swing. Elizabeth's fancy gave it its original German words. The deserted lover naively addresses a fir tree:

"O fir tree, O fir tree,
How green are your leaves——"

She looked up at Stephen towering above her, and thought how strange it was to see him swinging his arms in time to the rhythm and throwing a world of revolutionary fervor into his fine voice.

When the song was finished there were cries of "More!" and "Go on, Stefan!" A girl of about seventeen began to sing but she was hushed down. Stefan was evidently a popular performer, and there were demands for favorite songs. In response to one of these he gave a highly dramatic rendering of a folksong about a man who was hunted down by a wolf. It was rather a blood-curdling performance, and old Yuri woke up to mutter and mumble disapproval.

When the last "Yoi-hoi!" had died away, Stephen jumped down from the bench, to find Irina at his elbow. Elizabeth had seen her leave her place on the platform and make her way towards them with an uneasy sense of danger. When she saw her standing by Stephen, the thought of how well matched they were passed through her mind like a draught of cold air. She was as finely made for a woman as he for a man. Her head rose above his shoulder, while her dark hair and eyes and warm, vivid pallor were in perfect contrast to his blue eyes and ruddy coloring.

Irina addressed him at once with an air of intimacy.

"That was well sung! We have missed you here—I have missed you. There are many things which I would like to discuss with you. You have not been in Moscow?"

He shook his head.

"O no. Have you?"

Irina dropped her voice.

"Yes—and there is much to tell you."

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—In filming a shot for "One More Spring" at Fox studio, Janet Gaynor was caught by the camera and the microphone strolling over the bridge in a park. It was the fifth time the take had been made, and everybody's nerves were vibrating because the mechanics of the scene were very complicated, requiring a rubber tired "dolly" with mike and camera, to accompany the actress as she strolled, and catch every expression of her feature and voice.

When it had been shot the fifth time, Henry King, the director, heaved a big sigh of satisfaction and relief, but the sound expert interrupted. "Afraid you'll have to shoot it again," he apologized. "There was a bit of airplane hum in that last take."

King glared. "Put a couple of honks in the sound track and it will sound like autos driving through the park," he said, and called it a day.

Farina [Allen Hoskins], the colored boy who used to play a girl's part in Hal Roach's "Our Gang" comedies, is partly grown up now and plays a colored jocky in the Harlow-Powell romantic adventure film, "Reckless" at M-G-M.

Miss Wendell Will Be Bride of Soule Today

for rest for the debutantes tomorrow, for, weary tho' they will be after staying out until what is usually called "all hours," they will have to rise early to attend various luncheons and eggnog parties in the country. The evening will be filled with dinner and hocky parties.

The Donald F. McPhersons and their debutante, Miss Fanny McPherson, are giving a luncheon and sleigh ride [they hope] for Miss Susan and Miss Betsy Ballard and Miss Louise Forgan tomorrow at their Winnetka home. In case the snow is all melted the guests will move over to the Laird Bells' eggnog party earlier than if they go for the ride.

Mrs. James R. Offield and Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler are entertaining at an early dinner at the Casino tomorrow evening for Miss Nancy Doering, Miss Frances Jeffery, and Miss Louise Parsons and then taking their young guests on to the Chicago Stadium. Also giving a dinner and hocky party is Mrs. Arthur Cable, who is entertaining for Miss McPherson and Miss Deborah Butler. Mrs. Louise de Koven Phelps has invited a dozen young people to dine at home and later watch the Blackhawks at a party she is giving for her nephew, Edward McCormick Blair, and her son, Hubbard Phelps. Bowen Blair, Edward's younger brother, was to have been an especial guest, but he is going east instead to visit in Philadelphia for a few days.

Dance at Fortnightly for Subdeb Group.

The subdebs are not being left out of the gayety that is prevalent tonight, for the annual Christmas dance of the Fortnightly dance series is being held at the Fortnightly club. Preceding the dance there will be several dinners, the largest of which is one Mrs. Wayne Wills will give at the Fortnightly for her daughter Julia and her son Jere, who is a freshman at Princeton; and her niece, Marjorie Moore. About seventy-five guests have been invited.

Mrs. Cyrus G. Hill and Mrs. I. Newton Perry will entertain two dozen or so young people at dinner in the polo room of the Ambassador East for their daughters, Mary Hill and Sally Perry, before the Fortnightly.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Field McLallen III. of Lake Forest are receiving congratulations upon the birth of their second son yesterday at noon at St. Luke's hospital. Mrs. McLallen is the former Ghita Watson, daughter of Mrs. Walter B. Wolf and Hathaway Watson.

Miss Dawes Flies to Attend Wedding.

Miss Helen Dawes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, took her first airplane trip Wednesday when she flew to Dallas, Tex., to act as maid of honor at the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Manget and Cyrus R. Smith of Chicago tonight. The wedding will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Manget. Miss Dawes and Miss Manget roomed together for four years at Vassar. Miss Dawes plans to fly home tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Marston II. of New York are arriving in Chicago today to spend a week with the former Florence Carr's father, Robert F. Carr, at 209 Lake Shore drive.

An engagement of interest here will be announced tomorrow night in Montclair, N. J., by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Slocum Williams of Montclair. The engagement is that of their daughter, Janet Fox, to Eugene William Goodwillie of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perley Mahlon Goodwillie of Chicago. Miss Williams was graduated from Wells college and is a member of the Junior league of Montclair.

Mr. Goodwillie is a graduate of Cornell, class of 1927, and received a degree from Oxford university in 1931, where he was a Rhodes scholar. He is a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity and the Cornell club of New York and is practicing law. Miss Williams has visited Miss Honor Merrell in Chicago and also Miss Louise Warren, who now is Mrs. Arthur Tremaine of Ithaca.

Buffet Supper for Miss Valerie Haight.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims will entertain at a buffet supper tomorrow night for Miss Valerie Haight and Edward Allen Haight, who will be married Tuesday. Mrs. John Ford Evans, the former Priscilla Sims, will be one of Miss Haight's two matrons of honor.

The John A. Prossers of Lake Forest have planned an afternoon of fun for a dozen youngsters today—taking them on a sleigh ride. Diana Prosser, a student at the Bell school, is the young hostess. After the ride they will have supper at the Prosser home.

In celebration of their silver wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson have invited about 60 of their friends to dinner tonight in their Astor street home. The Chicago room will be the setting of the party. The same number of friends will come in after dinner to join the gay party.

Mrs. C. Morse Ely and Mrs. George Butler Magoun are giving an eggnog party in Mrs. Ely's apartment at 1301 Astor street tomorrow noon. Miss Florence Sargent and her brother, John Sargent, will be at home between 4 and 6 o'clock this afternoon in their apartment, 2440 Lake View avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin N. Veeder and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Huszagh will be hosts and hostesses at a dinner-dance tonight at the Deerpath inn. The party is not being given for any especial reason—just Christmas cheer and New Year gayety.

At Home Parties on North Shore.

Between 4:30 and 7 o'clock tomorrow afternoon Durand Smith will be at home to several dozen of his friends. Mr. Smith, who is the son of Franklin P. Smith, is inviting his guests to the Smith home at 815 East Deerpath road in Lake Forest.

At the same hours Mr. and Mrs. Guy A. Osborn are going to have a housewarming in their new home at 1000 Vine street in Winnetka. Before her marriage Mrs. Osborn was Theodora Wagner.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon in the living room of her mother's house Miss Jean Andrews, daughter of Mrs. John James Andrews and the late Dr. Andrews, will become the bride of Kenneth Grant of Montreal, Canada, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Grant of Montreal. The Rev. Father Horty of St. Ambrose church will read the ceremony and a reception will follow at 5 o'clock at the South Shore Country club.

Miss Margaret Jane Grant, a sister of the bridegroom, will be maid of honor, and Miss Royce de Campi and Mrs. Gordon Heany will be bridesmaids. Thomas Ancliffe of Montreal will serve Mr. Grant as best man.

Mr. Grant and his bride will live in Montreal.

The Chicago Smith College club and the Evanston North Shore Smith club have planned an interesting program for their Christmas luncheon to be held at 1 o'clock today at the Union League club.

Girls' Shirtwaist Dress

GIRL'S DRESS.

This attractive looking school dress is one that is generally becoming and it's easy to make. The season's rage for shirtwaist dresses includes ones for young and older girls, as well as mothers. This is a tailored looking little dress, with straight yoke, back and front, and interesting plaited treatment. The sleeves are full length and gathered into fitted wristbands.

Sparkle 'n' Pep Needed to Complete Beauty Picture

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Look alive, sisters, or you'll be run over and completely washed out of the picture by fair competitors with pep! Don't be one of those toneless beings about whom people say: "If she'd only show a little more life, she'd be attractive!"

Of course, you don't have to go on any fire engine tear to contribute what is wanted. But to go around looking half dead simply because you let yourself get that way, not because there is anything radically wrong with you, is all out of the picture of the modern charmer. That woman with the monotonous, flat, toneless voice gets on your nerves. If she wears dull, drab clothes and can't ever see the sunshine for the rain you run from her as if she were Scarlet Fever Mary.

One of our better psychiatrists warns us that if we go around masquerading as living corpses, people "will treat us as if we were already dead."

From the beauty angle there's nothing charming about the woman whose body has a sort of collapsed look about it, as if there weren't enough life to hold it up. No, you must have a little spark to your being, a sparkle in your eyes, an uplift to the mouth corners. Things are never so bad that you need masquerade as one to whom existence offers nothing.

Or if you ever get to feeling that way, do you know what the doctor orders? That you bust right out on a shopping orgy in which is included a flaming red hat and dress. Anything to look alive. Perhaps all you need is a new parmanent, or to color your cheeks from the rouge jar.

"Baking the Perfect Cake," a 56 page booklet containing directions and recipes for forty-eight cakes, frostings, and fillings, along with causes and remedies for cake failures, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 20 cents. By mail, twenty-three cents, stamps or coin. Address requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

The bright lads who think up uses for adhesive tape have been evolving ideas again. Result, new tricks for the lady who cooks. They've discovered that by using the modern water-resistant adhesive tape now on the market a most effective seal may be made for loosely covered tins and jars. Thus fruit cake, spices, tea, and coffee, as well as other products which we wish to keep airtight may be sealed away from moisture and air by the simple application of the tape about the joining of cover and container. What's more, the same tape can be used over and over on tin or glass, all of which helps with the budget. The name of the contents, the date of sealing, and other information may be written easily on the tape.

Now we're on a still hunt for a suet pudding which will measure up to Reader H. M.'s specifications and blueprints. It seems that Mrs. M.'s grandn other used to make one of these wonderful affairs which contained suet cut fine and mixed with the flour, admitted no raisins or any spices, was baked a "long time" in an angel food pan and, when done, had a crisp, luscious crust outside and an interior which was creamy white and fluffy. Over her suet pudding grandmother spread a rich sauce. Any of your hoarded recipe books boast such an item?

Have you R. O.? Or, to be cruelly frank, have you "refrigerator odor"? Lots of good cooks do, you know, and can't seem to help it. Cabbage, and onion, and fish perfumes insist upon going traveling now and then and paying unwelcome calls upon the gentle flavors of butter, broth, and ice cubes. We've mentioned various gadgets come to market lately which sit smugly on the refrigerator shelf, gobbling up the miscreant odors and even helping to control the moisture of the air.

Still another has now arrived—this time in the form of a neat little package which takes no more room on the top shelf of your icebox or refrigerator than would a glass of milk. Just to give it a cruelizing test last month we parked sauerkraut and butter, uncovered, side by each, then slipped the little odor-gobbler on the upper shelf. And would you believe it, at the end of three days the butter still was butter and the kraut was kraut! The magic contained in the small carton is "activated carbon," the type used in gas masks during the war.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

THE THREE-BID.

You must be very strict with yourself in counting the losers, not only in your hand, but in your main suit. Count them on the assumption that you may never get into dummy and so must lead away from that suit repeatedly. This applies in exactly the same manner to both a two-bid and a three-bid. For instance, if you have a suit holding of A Q 10 9 8 7, you must positively count two losers in that suit.

Do not temporize and say "surely I must be frightfully unlucky to lose to both the king and the jack; I am sure one of them will be on my right, so that I can finesse against it and capture it." The point is that you may never be able to finesse, as you may never get into dummy. In that case it will not help you if K J x are held by your right-hand opponent. You will sooner or later have to lead away from that suit yourself, and your only hope will be if one or other of these honors is not guarded and drops early. With such a suit as the above, if it were a major suit, you could not make a forcing opening bid unless the rest of your hand contained not more than one other loser, judged with equal strictness, while if such suit were a minor, you could not force with your opening bid if there were any other loser in the hand. Unless, of course, the suit were of nine or more cards, so that you could expect to lose only one trick in it even if you had to lead out the ace and then the queen.

The Responding Hand's First Duty.

Since the opening three-bidder is seeking information for slam and not for game, plainly he is at this point concerned only with the matter of aces—the responder, at any rate, must assume this until informed otherwise. Consequently the partner's sole duty at this stage is to show or deny aces and his first response is concerned with no other factor, no other cards. His function is entirely automatic. The probing has begun, his duty is solely to answer the questions which are put to him. The three-bid is in itself a question. It says, "Have you any aces; if so, which?" The answers are as follows:

First, having no ace, responding hand bids three no trumps. This says only one thing: "I have no ace in my hand." It neither confirms nor denies trump support or the possession of a long, strong suit not headed by its ace; nor does it affirm or deny the holding of any primary values other than aces.

Second, if he holds the ace of the trump suit [this is rare, but it does happen], he raises to four in the trump suit to show that ace; it does not matter whether he holds it as a singleton or with several small ones. The trump ace is always shown first; consequently any other response denies the trump ace.

Third, lacking the trump ace, he bids whatever other ace he holds. Remember that with more than one ace the highest ranking of your aces is always shown first except only if you have the trump ace, and that is lower ranking than the other or others. The trump ace always takes precedence over any other. Thus if the bidding is three clubs, three diamonds, the responder has denied the aces of clubs [the trump ace], hearts and spades; he can have no second ace in his hand. If it went three clubs, three hearts, he has denied the aces of spades and clubs [trumps] but may still hold the ace of diamonds in addition to the ace of hearts which he showed by his response. You will see that whenever a three-bid is made in spades, hearts, or diamonds, and the response is four clubs, the opening bidder is immediately informed that the responder has bid his only ace. The responder also knows that the opener knows this; and the bidding may now take another turn if the opener so directs it, since the matter of aces has now been cleared up. Next week you will learn the subsequent bidding procedure whereby, after a three-bid, the bidding for small or grand slams, or the keeping out of an impossible slam, is made a matter of 99 per cent certainty.

Lengthy Wait Perils the Date of Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

They have had a joint bank account ever since they started going around together seven years ago. There is more than $3,000 in the account now. She and he have contributed equal amounts weekly since the date of the original arrangement.

Now there has been a cooling off between the pair. Each is over 26 year old. The girl wants her money back. There is no question about the man trying to hold out on her. Nor could he, apparently, if there were any such intention. She is simply tired of waiting for the wedding day to be named.

It is the man who presents the enigma. Gosh, but men are so dumb at times we would like to shake them out of their stupidity! Here's the young woman doing everything but shouting: "Why the heck can't you name the wedding day!"

What would come over a girl who has been waiting seven long years for the word? The wonder is she hasn't taken the bull by the horns and gone ahead making the wedding day arrangements herself. It probably would have been exactly what the chap wanted.

There's but one thing to do now, young man, and that is to telephone the girl at once. Tell her you want her to accompany you somewhere. Lead her down to the license bureau and get the business of taking out the license over with quickly.

Father's Love for Older Child Valuable Asset

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"John never pays much attention to the children while they're babies," admitted a woman in quite dispassionate fashion the other day. "O, he loves them all right, but you never see him hovering over them, or changing their diapers, or vying with me jealously on Sunday mornings for the privilege of pushing the perambulator proudly around the park. You know how some men are—they're so clever with their babies and quite crazy about them?

"Well, John isn't like that. But when they get older he just has a grand time with them. Everything's all 'hunky dorey' between them then. They talk and play and go places and do things together."

If I had to make a choice I'd rather see a father like this than like those we were talking about last week—the ones who lose interest as soon as their babies turn into people.

The tendency of John is much better for the long pull. And, after all, a mother has to have most of the care of the baby anyhow, with the man of the family away from early morning until dinner time. She expects to meet the matters of feeding and bathing and sleeping and habit training of various kinds alone, because during babyhood most of the baby's waking hours occur while his father is away from home.

The mother can handle that period quite competently alone and usually expects to do so. This isn't to say that a father doesn't miss something if he has little part in the baby days of his son or daughter, but it is to say that a mother can easily cope alone with the simpler matter of babyhood, while she may need help and coöperation in dealing with the children when they are older. If she must choose, she is better off if her husband is like the John of this conversation—whose interest awakens a little late but lasts all the way through.

If you are puzzled about any of the childhood days and ways, we have written-in-full material on the 5 year old, the 6 to 12 (or the In Betweens, as we call them), and the adolescents. In sending your stamped, self-addressed envelope, please state your child's age.

Quilt Takes a Design from the Barnyard

BY NANCY CABOT.

Again the barnyard is represented in the quilt world. "Goose in Pond," one of the older pieced quilt patterns, was widely used for "everyday"; first because it was easy to piece, and second because dark colors and prints could be successfully combined, thereby utilizing old scraps. Present day materials allow a colorful and varied selection of materials.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

SMITH REYNOLDS' ESTATE VALUED AT 30 MILLIONS

New Legal Tilt Reveals Increased Worth.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Dec. 28.—(AP)—The value of the Smith Reynolds estate, subject of a complicated legal battle looking to final settlement, was revealed as apparently much larger than usually estimated as its custodian today added its contentions to the welter of conflicting claims.

The Safe Deposit and Trust company of Baltimore, trustee under the will of the late R. J. Reynolds, filed in Superior court a statement that the share of young Reynolds, who died of a bullet wound in 1932, was $19,500,000 from his father's estate alone at the time of his death.

Mother's Legacy Undisclosed.

No figure was given for the young man's quarter portion of his mother's estate, also held in trust by the Baltimore concern, but it is understood to be several million dollars. Since Reynolds Tobacco stock constitutes the bulk of the trust, and it is selling at $50 a share now as compared with about $30 when the valuation was made, it appears that the total estate may be well over $30,000,000.

The Safe Deposit and Trust company made this disclosure in filing its response to a plea by Christopher Smith Reynolds, posthumous son of the tobacco heir and Libby Holman Reynolds, who through his "next friend" some time ago filed an interplea in pending litigation setting forth that he is entitled to the whole estate.

Acceptance Is Filed.

Only yesterday, however, the baby's attorney filed an acceptance of a proposal to settle the estate by giving him approximately $7,000,000 against $9,000,000 for his half sister, Anne Cannon Reynolds II.

The tentative family settlement, reported to have been accepted by all interests except Reynolds' first wife, provided that Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds should receive $750,000, her son a 25 per cent share in the estate, Anne Cannon Reynolds II., a 37½ per cent share, and the remainder should go to Reynolds' brother and two sisters to be used for a memorial foundation.

Arraign Three as Fences for Ring of Shoplifters

Frank Wilson, 42 years old; his wife, June, 40 years old, both of 6631 Ottawa street, and Isadore Silverman, 45 years old, proprietor of a general merchandise store at 4719 Sheridan road, were arraigned yesterday before Judge Matthew Hartigan in the Felony court on charges of receiving stolen goods. They were arrested Thursday as alleged fences for a ring of shoplifters operating in the central west. The case was continued until Jan. 15 to allow store representatives time to identify rugs and other goods found in the Wilson home.

BOUQUET FOR 'RED ROSA' SENDS NAZI GIRLS TO PRISON

Pair Caught Honoring Mme. Luxemburg.

BERLIN, Dec. 28.—(AP)—An innocent gesture of respect at the grave of Rosa Luxemburg, famous as a German communist leader until her death in 1919, landed two young German girls in a Nazi concentration camp today.

The girls, Lisleotte Rieck, 20, and Isle, 18, were arrested as they placed a bouquet of flowers on "Red Rosa's" grave.

Mother a Socialist.

They said they had heard many stories from their mother concerning Mme. Luxemburg's nobility of character. Their mother, they related, although a Socialist, had told them she and the noted communist agreed on cultural and humanitarian questions and were fast personal friends despite political differences.

During their mother's absence, they said, they decided, impulsively, and without any thought of political significance, to give expression of their esteem for the woman of whom they had heard so much.

Held Eight Days.

After their arrests they were taken to police headquarters and detained for eight days. Lisleotte observed her 20th birthday while she was in custody.

Now both girls have been taken to a concentration camp at Moringen, near Hanover. Their mother's pleas for their release, she said, met with a curt reply at secret police headquarters. The absence of higher officials during the holiday season has prevented her from making further efforts to free her daughters.

Mme. Luxemburg in association with Karl Liebknecht was one of the leading figures in the 1918 revolution which resulted in the overthrow of the German monarchy.

GIVE CHRISTMAS SHOW TOMORROW IN GRANT PARK

The three final performances of "Shadows of the Manger" will be given tomorrow in Grant park at Congress street and Michigan avenue under the auspices of the Chicago park district.

At 5 p. m. the cast which has already given performances in parks on the west side will enact ten scenes from the story of Christ's life. The south side parks cast will give its performance at 6:30 p. m. and the north side cast will stage the closing performance at 8 p. m.

Several large choirs will furnish the music, under direction of Carl Craven. Guest soloists and stage and radio stars also will appear at each performance. Alfred Stury is the originator of the spectacle and designer of the stage and lighting effects.

DIES IN FIRE ON SOUTH SIDE.

Leroy Hamilton, 29 years old, colored, was burned to death yesterday in a fire which caused $400 damage to a three story building at 207 East 54th street. Chief Thomas Logan of the 16th fire battalion expressed the belief that a carelessly tossed match started the blaze.

N.C.A.A. ADOPTS CODE OF ETHICS ON RECRUITING

Coaches Pass Rule Changes.

New York, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—College football coaches and athletic directors meeting here in annual conclave underwent the busiest day of their three day session today. Major developments of the prolonged discussions were:

MAJ. JOHN L. GRIFFITH.

1. Adoption of a Code of Ethics on recruiting, subsidizing and proselyting of athletes and voting down of a suggestion that the code be made a rule of the American Football Coaches association.

2. A warning that the practice of drinking among spectators and the evil of betting were threatening the welfare of the game and a suggestion that fans under influence of liquor be barred from stadia.

3. Adoption of drastic changes in rules to be suggested to the national football rules committee for the purpose of opening up the game, despite predominant sentiment among coaches against tampering with the rules.

4. Announcement by Walter Okeson, chairman of the national rules committee, that the committee's primary purpose will continue to be safeguarding the players despite outside pressure to make the game more spectacular.

5. Report by a committee on public relations attacking the practice of author-coaches doping results of games, publication of "wolf and bear" stories, and criticisms of the ability or shortcomings of colleagues in the public press.

6. Election and installation of new officers by the American Coaches association and the National Collegiate Athletic association, headed by Bernie Bierman, of Minnesota, and Maj. John L. Griffith, respectively, as presidents.

7. Presentation of a six-point program for the reduction of injuries and fatalities among high and preparatory school players by Prof. Floyd H. Easterwood, of New York university.

Author-Coaches Scored.

The warning against drinking and betting was sounded by Gus Dorais, head coach in the University of Detroit, chairman of the committee on public relations. Dorais recommended that one means of eliminating, or at least minimizing them was refusal by the colleges to admit to games persons under the influence of intoxicants.

The report termed the activities of coaches who pick football winners in the newspapers "a breach of good taste and ethics." The same was said of coaches who alibi defeat by criticizing the ability or shortcomings of other coaches in published articles.

Publication of "wolf and bear" stories was termed unethical and the committee recommended that coaches discontinue the practice of issuing misleading statements.

Suggest Rule Changes.

A list of nine rule changes which Joe McKenney of Boston college prepared for submission to the association was allowed to go to the national rules body. It includes proposals to move goal posts back to the goal line, to permit forward passing from any point behind the line of scrimmage, and to allow the team on defense to advance a recovered fumble. These are features of the professional rules, frankly aimed at providing more spectacular play.

Other changes suggested are permitting substitutes to communicate immediately with teammates, clarify the rule on when forward progress of player in possession of the ball is stopped, compel the umpire to notify each coach when the legal number of timeouts expires, allow any forward pass into end zone, except on fourth down, to be ruled as an incompleted pass, and inflict the penalty for the second forward pass during same play at the spot of foul and not at the spot of preceding down.

Safety Comes First.

Okeson, in submitting his report to the National Collegiate Athletic association, made it clear that the rules committee would continue to sacrifice the spectacular for safety. He intimated some minor tinkering might be done, but that he did not expect the committee to pay much attention to the outside pressure for the colorful and sensational.

Okeson intimated that the rules committee is primarily interested in the development of the lateral pass and that any changes that will be made will have to do with the liberalization of restrictions tending to abort the play's use as an offensive weapon. Chief among the changes under consideration is the one having to do with an attempted lateral which goes forward. Under the present rule, unless the play can qualify as a forward pass under existing limitations, it is penalized by the loss of a down and the ball is returned to the spot of the preceding down. It is suggested that

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THEY tell this one about John Drebinger, baseball writer for the New York Times, and Dazzy Vance, who suffers more aches and pains than any ball player in America when work threatens. . . . Vance told Drebinger at a training camp in Florida last spring that he had severely hurt himself covering first base. . . . "I already have the headline for that one," said Drebinger. . . . "Dazzler Stumbles Over First Base: Out for Season: Plans for 1935." . . . This story on the laziness theme has no moral, for Vance was with the tail-end Cincinnati Reds at the time, but finished the season with the world champion Cardinals. . . . Max Schmeling hit Max Baer harder than any man, the champion says. . . . Temple university never has lost a night football game. . . . Walter Friedman, one of Primo Carnera's managers, is a survivor of the Tuscania troopship disaster. . . . A South American newspaper recently announced that Ford Frick had been appointed head of the league of nations. . . . King Levinsky probably regrets this morning that he stood in the center of the ring urging Max Baer to come out of his corner for the second round. . . . When Baer came up Levinsky went down. . . .

Frank Carideo, who recently resigned as football coach at Missouri, has been sought as an assistant to Stub Allison by California. . . . He also is reported to be negotiating with St. Louis university. . . . The Rev. Charles Coughlin, radio lecturer, was a handball champion in college. . . . George Marshall, owner of the Boston professional football club, is casting an occasional glance at Eddie Casey, who has been relieved as Harvard coach. . . . Howard Jones and Robert Zuppke have agreed to exchange plays before the Southern California-Illinois game next fall. . . . The one and only quotation about football in the new "Home Book of Quotations" [2,269 pages] is the following from Shakespeare's "King Lear": "You base football player." . . . Two Alabama football players, Boozer and Francis, are so near sighted they have to wear thick lenses. . . . It isn't often that three decisions are given in one boxing bout, but it happened in the Mike McTigue-Young Stribling match at Columbus, Ga., ten years ago. . . . Harry Ertle, imported by McTigue, who held the 175 pound title at the time, first gave it to Stribling, then to McTigue, and finally called it a draw. . . .

When Jack Dempsey fought John Lester Johnson, colored, in his New York debut he got $47 and three broken ribs. . . . That was at Billy Gibson's old Fairmount club. . . . A little later Gene Tunney appeared in a preliminary in the same arena for $15. . . . It wasn't long until both were involved in million dollar gates. . . . An Oshkosh, Wis., reader writes in to correct a report that Joe Falcaro of New York set a world bowling record for five games with his score of 1,405. . . . It seems that William Frey of Oshkosh rolled up a score of 1,410 in 1916 in a five game series with games of 267, 300, 265, 278, and 300. . . . Joe Louis, the 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves graduate who is on his way to the front rank of heavyweight boxing, was en route to a violin lesson the day he became interested in fisticuffs. . . . Max Baer will leave for Florida after his bout with Dick Madden in Pittsburgh on Jan. 11. . . . He plans a fishing trip with George Getz, member of the Illinois athletic commission. . . .

Hughie Devore, 1933 Notre Dame co-captain and last fall an assistant freshman coach, is being considered for the head coaching position at Niagara university. . . . Broadway claims Col. Jake Ruppert has a piece of Jack Dempsey's café. . . . Moe Berg of the Cleveland Indians, baseball's champion linguist, who accompanied the American league all-stars to the orient, has added Japanese to the list of languages he is able to speak. . . . That makes eight. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today.—Ad McCoy, middleweight boxer, was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to one to ten years. . . . Red Grange of Illinois, Harry Stuhldreher of Notre Dame, Butch Slaughter of Michigan, and E. Weir of Nebraska were the midwestern football players Walter Camp picked on his All-American team. . . . The Navy basketball team arrived in Chicago to play the Maroons. . . . Eddie Collins, new White Sox manager, arrived in Chicago to confer with Charley Comiskey.

Temple Quintet Takes 28-24 Battle from Ohio State

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 28.—(AP)—A 12 point last half bombardment gave Temple university's basketball team a 28 to 24 victory over Ohio State tonight. It was the Philadelphians' fourth straight triumph of the season and the second at the expense of a Western conference quintet.

Held to a 16 to 16 tie at the end of the half and battled to a standstill well into the second, Temple went ahead on field goals by Red Rosan and Ernie Messikomer, and then fought off an Ohio State rally in the closing moments.

Messikomer, leader of the Temple offensive, piled up 11 points while the only Ohioan able to make any dent in the Owl's defense was Laybourne, who tossed in three field goals. Lineup:

MARQUETTE WINS, 39-26

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Marquette university tonight defeated the touring Stanford basketball team, 39 to 26, in a game in which Capt. Ray Morstadt of the winners scored 23 points on nine baskets and five free throws.

The Hilltoppers took a big early lead, but were hard pressed to hold an advantage of 18 to 13 at the half. Morstadt began clicking shortly after the second period opened, and Marquette assumed a comfortable lead which easily was held to the finish.

Stanford now has lost all three games of its midwestern tour, Notre Dame and Michigan State previously having accounted for victories. The game tonight was played according to Pacific coast style, with the scoring team getting the ball out of bounds without a center jump.

SILVER SKATES OPEN PATHS TO NATIONAL FAME

The Champions

Boys' midget—Marvin Thomson, Avondale playground.

Boys' junior—Robert Sherman, Olympic Skating club.

Girls' junior—Genevieve Swierkos, Palmer park.

Girls' senior—Priscilla Richey, Brekke Skating club.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Who will win Silver Skates this year?

This is the question which absorbs thousands of Chicago's skaters, all of whom are eligible for the seven Derbies which THE TRIBUNE will sponsor Jan. 12 and 13 at the Waveland arena, one block north of Addison street and east of Sheridan road. These races will be the eighteenth in the series begun in 1917.

From the list of champions, all are eligible to compete this year except the winners in the senior divisions for men and girls. The rules permit continued competition if the champions move to the next higher age class. This regulation clears the way for other promising skaters.

Edwin Stundl, who shared last year's senior title with Al Kucera, holds the all time mark of four Silver Skates victories, a record which only can be eclipsed if some youngster begins with a triumph in the boys' midget class [for those under 12 years] and continues with successive victories in all other classes.

He Wins Five Years Later.

Stundl won the boys' juvenile title in 1927, followed with a victory in the junior class in 1929, won the intermediate title in 1929 and then, five years later, earned a tie in the senior Derby. When Stundl began competing in THE TRIBUNE'S races there was no midget division.

Four girls have scored double victories in the two Derbies in which girls have competed. They are Lois Littlejohn, 1923 and 1926; Elizabeth Dubois, 1927 and 1929; Mabel Swanson, 1930 and 1933, and Priscilla Richey, 1929 and 1934. All have won national recognition and at least two have represented the United States in Olympic competition.

However, every boy and girl may look forward to the Silver Skates Derbies. Perhaps they can not win first place in their age division, but in each class there are five prizes. In addition to a pair of silver skates, there are skates for the second and third place winners and silver and bronze medals for those finishing fourth and fifth. Each contestant will receive a souvenir bronze button upon reporting for his or her racing number.

Preliminaries on Saturday.

All that is required is formal entry prior to the deadline, which is midnight, Jan. 6. Entry may be made on the blank which is printed daily in these columns, or the coach, captain, or manager of a team may send in the names of his contestants if he separates them according to classes and attests their ages.

Preliminaries in the Boys' Midget, Juvenile, and Junior divisions will be held on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 12, at 2 o'clock. These contestants must report at the Waveland avenue field house between 12 and 1:30 for their racing numbers. All other contestants must report between 10 o'clock and 1 o'clock on Sunday, Jan. 13, at the same place. Other preliminaries and all championships will be held that afternoon, starting at 1:30.

There is no residential requirement and no entry fee. Those 16 years of age and over must be members of the Western Skating association, the governing body for the sport in the central states, under whose sanction the races are held. The membership costs 25 cents for one year and the card may be taken out on the day of the races.

THE FINISH OF KINGFISH LEVINSKY

Loyola Wins Game of Fouls from Beloit

Loyola university defeated Beloit college last night at Loyola, 37 to 30, in a game in which 43 personal fouls were committed. The Loyolans won the game on free throws, making 19 against 8 for Beloit.

Thirteen of the 25 points scored by Loyola in the first half were made from free throw line while Beloit's 7 points in the first period came on three baskets and a free throw by J. Samuel.

Fouls Are Numerous.

Before the half ended three were sent to the showers on fouls. J. Samuel and Gibson left the game for Beloit while Ash was discharged for Loyola. In the second half Stevens, Milford, and Kellogg of Beloit were dismissed from the game along with Hletko of Loyola.

DE PAUL FACES BELOIT

De Paul university's basketball team will sally forth tonight in quest of its twenty-third consecutive victory, meeting Beloit college at the De Paul gymnasium. The start is scheduled for 8:15 o'clock.

Coach Jim Kelly will start the same lineup that swept over the Missouri State Teachers, 47 to 18, last week. While not overlooking Beloit, the De Paul squad has been pointing for its contest with Purdue's Big Ten champions New Year's night.

Linskey to Lead Demons.

Capt. Frank Linskey will lead the Demons from his guard position. He will be paired with Bill Wendt, sophomore. Ray Adams, scoring leader, and Bob Sand, another crack shot, will appear at the forwards.

Thomas Beats Capablanca in Chess Tournament

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HASTINGS, Eng., Dec. 28. — Sir George Thomas, British champion, today upset Jose Capablanca of Cuba in 53 moves of the second round of the international chess masters' tourney.

In the Wake of the News

CURIOSITY UNSATISFIED.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 28.—The Wake, as previously mentioned, has wondered at the large number of eastbound cars bearing California license numbers. The nearer one gets to California, the greater the number of cars going in the opposite direction, or toward Florida. It actually was getting on our nerves.

So, at Desert Divide, half way through the stretch of marvelous roadway across the waste country, a California car drew up to replenish fuel just as we were doing. It was occupied by a nice looking chap of about middle age. Here was our opportunity to acquire information and to satisfy our curiosity.

So with great affability and that easy familiarity one acquires in touring, we asked "Can you tell me why so many California cars are heading east and south? Going to Florida to spend the cold months?"

Never on the face of any individual have we seen such a look of venom and hate. In ice water tones, he replied, "I have been back and forth to Texas several times and am bound there again, because in God's country we had moisture and sunshine to produce bounteous crops of hay, more than we can possibly use, and we are willing to share it for a fair consideration with residents of less fortunate sections like the drouth stricken areas of Texas, which need fodder."

"Yes," he answered in a tone of acidity which indicated our visit was over.

But surely all those cars we passed couldn't have been selling hay in Texas. Possibly we'll never know the real reason, but we'll keep on trying to find out just like a good reporter should do for the answer might make a human interest story.

Gasoline Taxes.

Gasoline taxes in the states through which we've passed are Illinois, 4 cents a gallon; Arkansas, 7½ cents; Texas, 5 cents; New Mexico, 6 cents; Arizona, 6 cents; California, 4 cents. Of course, those figures include the federal tax of 1 cent a gallon.

Sales taxes are general, and there is a great pro and con argument concerning a state income tax in California. In New Mexico the sales tax applies to hotel charges also. I asked the innkeeper what it was for, thinking it to be for relief. He replied, "It's supposed to be for the schools, because people can't pay their real estate taxes, but of course, politicians get the most of it."

Friends Along Road.

Just outside of Deming, N. M., we bumped into an Illinoisian—no, we didn't bump into him but another car did, and we stopped to see if we could be of any help. It contained C. L. Persons, assistant chief engineer of the Burlington Route with headquarters in Chicago, on his way to Phoenix, then to California. Damage was financial rather than physical, a crushed fender and running board. He was able to proceed on his own power and stopped at the same hotel we did. Inquired for him next morning but found he had left a 4:15 call—imagine it!—and had departed, proving he knew something about the mountains which we later covered in the gloaming at a snail's pace.

Strange thing, the chap who bumped into this car from a side road originated in Terre Haute, Ind., just 16 miles from The Wake birthplace. So that divided our sympathy a little.

Another Disappointment.

Daughter Wake was so disappointed at the Mississippi river that we kept telling her, "Just wait until we cross the Rio Grande." We did that 46 miles out of El Paso on the way to Lordsburg, N. M.

Unfortunately for The Wake, the Rio Grande wasn't roaring at this season, if ever, and Daughter Wake sarcastically remarked, "Just another sickly creek and back in geography days I supposed they were so wonderful."

* *

Tourist Camps.

Tourist camps abound on the route to California. They become more pretentious from El Paso west. At Deming and Lordsburg, they looked particularly attractive, new apparently modern cottages with light, heat, baths, and hot water, and garage at side of cottage. They were extensively used in preference to hotels by many tourists. We stuck to the inns but probably were foolish to do so in at least one or two spots.

LEVINSKY GOES DOWN UNDER RIGHT SMASHES

14,000 Pay $29,715 to See Bout.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Max Baer last night plumb forgot that he was appearing at the Chicago Stadium in a scheduled four round exhibition with King Levinsky and proceeded to knock out the Kingfish in 53 seconds of the second round. It was the first time in his career, and it's been a big time career, that the Chicago heavyweight was knocked stiff and the second time in history that he'd ever been knocked off his feet.

Fourteen thousand and fifteen persons paid $29,715.76 to see the surprising outcome of the exciting spectacle.

Are Their Faces Red!

A four round exhibition, with officials and scenery, but with no decision and bargain prices with the champ working against one of the leading title contenders. That's the way the show was billed and there were skeptics who were apprehensive. They thought they scented phonus bolognus. Perhaps there was to be polka.

How wrong were these cynics. If the show had been a twenty round championship fight, with a million dollar gate, winner take all, Baer could not have proceeded more impressively. He could not have unleashed harder lefts to weaken his adversary. He could not have launched more vicious rights than those which made Kingfish, the slugger and the braggart, wallow in the rosin for the first time in his life.

Most fans went patiently through stories of how Max, the debonair, disliked Kingfish, the uncouth, and how Kingfish, the rough and ready, cared little for a man who wears a slave bracelet, even though that man be the champ. "The old grudge gag," said the cynics.

Even Kingfish Catches On.

Then, two days ago, Max went before the Illinois boxing commission. Somebody brought in some eight ounce gloves.

"Take those pillows away," quoth the champ. "Bring in six ouncers or there'll be no fight!"

That was the tipoff that the champ intended to "level," as the prizefight folks say. And even the slow thinking Kingfish caught on. He had seemed just a little paler from the time Maxie demanded fightin' gloves; exhibition or no exhibition.

There's not a whole lot to tell about the actual fisticuffs, except that the Kingfish was willing and had at least a 7 to 3 edge in the first round. He had a better left jab than usual and he was not afraid to cut loose with those long ones he starts from the floor. Midway in the round he burned Max with four real rockers.

Max Serves Warning.

These wallops sent Max into his well known satanical leers. But he didn't scare King much until shortly before the end of the round. Then he whanged a left to the fishmonger's midriff that brought a startled as well as pained expression to the Chicagoan's face.

Max apparently had decided to knock out the Kingfish in the first minute of the second round. He went after Levinsky with a somewhat calmer but none the less wicked attack than he used in his first half dozen knockdowns of Primo Carnera. He put King against the ropes with lefts and rights to the body, then switched to the head.

It was evident 10 or 12 seconds before the King went down that he was hearing the birdies sing. And while they sang Max ripped across four fateful rights to the chin. It was estimated that these four punches knocked Levinsky out of anticipated earnings for 1935-'36 totaling more than $100,000.

Max Gives King Chance.

The champion, who received $9,503 for his efforts, resorted to little of his famed clowning before and during the early seconds of the brief encounter. He left that to Levinsky, who was to get $3,565. The Kingfish in an effort at jaunty coolness and contempt, sat in his corner waiting for the start with his legs crossed, like he might sit in Sister Lena's parlor smoking a perfecto. Then he arose and went over to Max's corner. He was clowning as he grasped for the champ's hand. Max slapped away his proffered clasp.

"Fancy that fellow laughing at ME!"

Battaglia Stops Leonard.

Frank Battaglia, Chicago middleweight, stopped Kid Leonard of East Moline, Ill., in the fourth round of the semi-windup. The contest matched in thrills their previous engagement, which was won by Leonard in ten rounds. They kept on even terms in the first round, but shortly after the second opened Battaglia scored two

BROTHERS BAER WILL BATTLE IN DETROIT FRIDAY

Max Baer, heavyweight champion, and his brother Buddy will move to Detroit next week to appear in four round engagements there Friday. The champion is to spar with Babe Hunt of Ponca City, Okla., and Buddy will clash with Jack O'Dowd, Detroit heavyweight.

The next program at the Stadium is carded for Jan. 11. . . . Promoter Joe Foley is due back from a visit at his home in Louisville, Ky., Tuesday. . . . King Levinsky plans to go to Florida for a week if he doesn't accept an offer from Madison Square Garden. . . . Davey Day, west side lightweight, started drills yesterday for pending combats.

A windup bout between Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, Ill., welterweight, and Billy Miller of Milwaukee, Wis., at Marigold Gardens, Jan. 7, is being sought by Matchmaker Johnny Broderick. . . . Miller scored a four round technical knockout over Tonelli in a previous meeting at the Coliseum, Nov. 30. . . . Tonelli, who was leading on points up to the knockout, will hook up with Puggy Weinert instead of Chuck Woods on the card headed by Tait Littman and Al Diamond at Milwaukee Tuesday afternoon.

Tom Andrews, Cream City athletic club matchmaker, hopes to be able to offer his next show at Milwaukee the middle of January. . . . Andrews, who has put out a boxing record book for 32 consecutive years, fears he will be unable to have the records published in 1935. . . . Negotiations are under way for a four round tussle between Max Baer and Tony Cancela, stablemate of Levinsky, at Tampa, Fla., Jan. 21. . . . Lou Jallos, Cleveland lightweight, has placed himself under the direction of Harold Steinman. . . . Jallos will make his first Chicago appearance since he lost an eight round decision to Champion Barney Ross, Nov. 4, 1931, when he faces Frank Sagilio for ten rounds or less at Cicero stadium next Friday.

Everett [Young] Rightmire, Sioux City, Ia., featherweight, will remain idle until Jan. 15. . . . Reddy Mason, manager of the late middleweight titleholder, Harry Greb, is suffering from an attack of carbuncles. . . . Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois Athletic commission is making arrangements to go to Miami, Fla., and join George Getz' party on a deep sea fishing trip which will get under way about Jan. 12. . . . Getz has been a deep sea fisherman for the last 20 years. . . .

Jackie Sharkey, former Minneapolis, Minn., junior lightweight, will retire after ten years of competition with some of the best boxers in the country as soon as he obtains employment in Chicago. . . . Young Firpo, Burke, Idaho, light heavyweight, now is being managed by J. R. Basco of Barberton, O. F. M.

COLLEGES ADOPT CODE OF ETHICS ON PROSELYTING

Pass Rule Changes On to Committee.

Adopt Recruiting Code.

The National Collegiate Athletic association adopted its first code of ethics, which, it is hoped, will help solve the vexing problem of recruiting and subsidizing. The code was completed by a special five man committee, and contains nine articles, attempting to make clear to all college athletic associations what is justifiable and unjustifiable.

Z. G. Clevenger of Indiana university, chairman of the committee, pointed out that these issues were the greatest problems confronting the college athletic system today. He emphasized there was no enforcement clause in the code, and that the N. C. A. A. was not trying to act as a policeman. Prof. Herman Diederichs of Cornell university, had asked that it be made a rule and not merely a code, but this was voted down.

Clevenger said the committee felt subsidizing and recruiting go hand in hand and involve "so many things and institutions, their ramifications so far reaching, inside and out of institutions, that complete solution is a long way in the future."

Lists Seven "Don'ts."

The code approved only two means of encouraging athletes—work for the institution at the same rate paid any other student, and permission for athletic authorities to point out in response to direct queries or in speeches "what they believe to be the educational advantages of the institutions they represent."

Seven points referred to "unjustifiable" practices. These included out and out subsidies for athletes, pay for work at higher rates than are paid other students; employment before matriculation or payment in advance for work; loaning money for remitting fees because a student is an athlete; arranging interviews or corresponding with prospective athletes; promising employment, loans, scholarships and other inducements than those available to other students; urging athletes to transfer from other institutions, and the giving of financial aid by alumni, club, or fraternity groups.

Casey Is Elected.

A slate of new officers, headed by Bierman of Minnesota as successor to President Dana X. Bible, included Eddie Casey, former Harvard coach, who withdrew his name previously from the list of nominations but was persuaded to remain as second vice president. D. O. [Tuss] McLaughry of Brown and Harry G. Kipke of Michigan were selected for first and third vice presidents, respectively, with a fourth vice president to be named later by the Pacific Coast Coaches' association. William H. Cowell of New Hampshire was renamed secretary-treasurer, a position he has filled for years.

Election of officers closed the 1934 meeting of the National Collegiate A. A. Maj. Griffith was reëlected president for the third time, and Dean L. M. Nicholson of Wesleyan was reëlected secretary-treasurer for the twenty-ninth time. Four new vice presidents —President Tyler Gennett of Williams, Prof. H. H. King of Kansas State, Prof. E. W. McDiarmid of Texas Christian, and Prof. J. C. Fitterer of Colorado School of Mines—were named.

MOSTLY about DOGS

By Bob Becker

Obedient Dogs

In driving to the loop Sunday mornings I have made a point of noticing not only the different kinds of dogs on the street, but also whether they are running loose or out walking with their masters. One of the most interesting things to be observed in connection with these dogs is their training in obedience, so that they will not run wild and get into trouble with a passing automobile.

On recent Sundays I have seen quiet little cockers out walking with nurses wheeling babies; a Dobermann Pinscher getting its training lessons in a big school yard on Foster avenue [I have failed to see this dog and master just once in seven weeks—always in the same school yard]; several Boston terriers, smartly rigged out in sweaters; Scotties being walked on leashes, and other pure bred dogs as well as a number of just plain dogs.

But two Sundays ago I saw a German shepherd that quickly demonstrated the value of obedience in the city dog—the one that has to be exercised on the street or in the park.

This shepherd was romping in the snow while its master was slowly approaching a street crossing in Lincoln park. Suddenly it was given the command to "come here." The dog ran over to its master and heeled. I couldn't hear the command to that effect, but the way the animal came up and stood obediently at its master's side indicated that here was a dog under control.

Both master and dog waited for a few seconds at the curb. Then the command was given to the dog to go ahead and both hustled across the street. Of course, the canine was first across the street to the curb. Looking back from my car I saw that the German shepherd waited until its master came up to get its next command.

One of the big steps toward having more dogs taught along the lines of obedience has been the establishment of classes to teach dog owners how to train their own dogs. As a matter of fact, most American dog owners need instructions on how to make good citizens out of our canine pets, even more urgently than the dogs in many cases.

There are a number of training classes being conducted here in Chicago this year. They are operated not for profit, the nominal charge to join and continue as a member being used to defray expenses of rentals of halls where members can meet and learn how to train their dogs to heel, sit and execute other simple commands, all important in developing a dog as a more desirable companion.

If you are interested in one of these classes, I suggest you get in touch with William Shafer, 3025 North Harlem avenue, Chicago, the German dog authority who has been instrumental in the formation of these training classes.

INTERSECTIONAL GAMES PLANNED FOR SOUTHWEST

New York, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Dr. R. N. Blackwell, member of the Texas Centennial athletic committee, today pursued negotiations for an elaborate intersectional football program for the Southwest conference in 1936 when the Texas centennial will be held.

Dr. Blackwell indicated that plans called for Southwest conference teams to play games with two representatives from the Western conference, Notre Dame, two outstanding eastern teams, and one from the Pacific coast, all games to be played in the southwest.

The list of possible eastern rivals included Pittsburgh and Army, although it is unlikely Army will take on the game, which Blackwell suggested be played during the Christmas season. No definite arrangements have been made for the Pitt game.

Just when it appeared he couldn't absorb much more punishment, Leonard lashed out with a vicious attack to stop momentarily Battaglia's offensive. In the third round Leonard was weakened from rights below the heart. Seconds after the fourth round opened he was dropped again and when he tried to rise at eight Referee Tommy Thomas stopped the bout.

Buddy Baer, 236 pound brother of the champion, knocked out Gene Stanton, 216 pounds, Cleveland, in the first round of the bout that preceded the knockout of Levinsky.

Jacquette Elverillo, Chicago welterweight, beat Phil McQuillan, also of Chicago, in the six round bout which opened the card. The second bout brought together Young Joe Gans, a little middleweight from Detroit, and Eddie Stiegal, a welterweight product of Chicago. Gans won the decision at the end of six rounds.

Hirsch, Hyde Park and Lane Also Win.

Tourney Facts

Hirsch, 26; Deerfield-Shields, 22.
Riverside-Brookfield, 36; Lindblom, 29.
Marshall, 34; Bowen, 22.
Lane, 25; Tilden, 24.
Crane, 26; Calumet, 18.
Hyde Park, 28; Senn, 21.
Tuley, 29; Parker, 17.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS.
3 p. m.—Hirsch vs. Riverside-Brookfield.
4 p. m.—Marshall vs. Lane.
7 p. m.—Crane vs. Roosevelt.
8 p. m.—Hyde Park vs. Tuley.

The tide of success in the University of Chicago's prep basketball tournament veered to the west yesterday as four teams from that section, Marshall, Crane, Roosevelt, and Tuley, the only four teams from that section to survive the first round, fought through second round matches to emerge as quarter-finalists. Of eight south side teams which played in as many different games yesterday, only two, Hirsch and Hyde Park, were victorious. The bracket for today's quarter-final games was completed with the victories of Lane Tech and Riverside-Brookfield.

Call 190 Personals.

So closely fought were yesterday's games that the average difference between the winner and loser in all the eight games was 6½ points; so hard fought were they that 190 personal fouls were called during day's play, seventeen players were ejected for too many fouls and one boy was put out for challenging the referee to mortal combat.

Feature games of the second round were Lane's victory over Tilden, 25 to 24, and Roosevelt's victory over Morgan Park, 33 to 30. Two games classified as upsets, in which the winners had been upset victors in the first round also, were Hirsch's win over Deerfield-Shields, 26 to 22, and Crane's defeat of Calumet, 26 to 18.

Annel, Lane Hero.

Lane, defending titleholder, can thank Ted Annel, veteran forward, for its victory over Tilden, one of the neat teams in the tourney, in the most awaited game of the day. Annel, who led his team in scoring, dropped in a free throw for the final and winning point of the game, and then with 10 seconds to play and Tilden on the rampage, grabbed the ball and threw it to the far end of the court to prevent further scoring before the gun ended the game.

Lane led at the end of the first period, 9 to 2, but the Murphy twins of Tilden went into action and Bill Murphy scored 13 points before the game was over. Walter Black, Tilden's colored player, tied the score at 24 all in the fourth period, at which point Annel came through with his free throw.

Roosevelt Wins, 33-30.

Roosevelt's persistence, coupled with a last minute rally, gave it a win over the strong Morgan Park five, 33 to 30. Roosevelt had been behind for 15 minutes, and Morgan Park was leading 28 to 22 when Roland Young, back in the game for Roosevelt, scored two quick baskets. Ruben Katzen tied the count with a Roosevelt goal and the west siders then went ahead on free throws as Morgan Park began to scramble for possession.

Crane's sparkling little team, with two spectacular scorers in Quinto Valentino and Ben Willerman, defeated the much taller Calumet team, 26 to 18, by virtue of some dazzling ball handling.

Marshall 34-22 Victor.

Marshall had little trouble beating Bowen, 34 to 22, and held a 24 to 5 lead at half time. Marshall is emerging as one the meet's strong teams.

ABEL ARRIVES TO START TRAINING

Hawk Holdout Confers with Team Officials.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Among the other boys and girls who got in a bit of tardy Christmas shopping in the loop yesterday was a large gent who had just climbed off a train out of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. He would have made a perfect Santa Claus for any family in the land last Monday night, but yesterday he was just Clarence [Taffy] Abel, a young man looking for a new pair of hocky skates.

TAFFY ABEL.

Having finally satisfied himself with the right kind of shoes and blades, Taffy hied himself over to the offices of the Chicago Blackhawks, for whom he was indeed a belated Yule gift. When the Blackhawks sat down to write their annual note to Santa Claus, Taffy headed the list of items they craved most, and his arrival yesterday was hailed with glee by one and all — Owner McLaughlin, Manager Loughlin, and the entire playing personnel.

There Were Tales Told.

Since way back there in October, long before the current National Hocky league season, Taffy had been one of the first holdouts in the organization. Other parties originally reluctant to sign had finally come into the fold, but not Taffy. There were tales that he was too well satisfied with his job in a brewery back home in northern Michigan, that he was too heavy, and worse yet, that he wasn't any too interested in continuing his hocky career, which happens to have carried one of the most brilliant defensive records in the league.

No sooner had the eager Hawk officials unwound the wrapping from their overdue Christmas present yesterday than he leaped up and began getting real mad. It is a sight to see the huge Taffy peeved, for it is known that he is a very hard gent to irk, on the ice or off. The reason for his rage was the report that he was getting too fat for hocky. He immediately challenged his bosses to put him on a scale. They did, and it registered 248 pounds. Taffy then muttered that he weighed more than 237 at the end of last season, that he was feeling as great as he looked, and that he would get right down to the job of trimming a few pounds off his 6 foot 1 inch frame.

Taffy Starts in Earnest.

Just to make his threat complete, Taffy hopped over to Trafton's gymnasium, and began his training program immediately, one which he'll continue today with the Hawks at the Stadium in their workout for tomorrow night's game with the now up and coming St. Louis Eagles. He plans to continue his gymnasium exercise at an even more strenuous pace until he has convinced Maj. McLaughlin and Manager Loughlin that they can sign him up.

The latter promised that they will do everything possible to help Abel get into playing shape, and there's every possibility that Taffy's public, one of the most enthusiastic in the league, will see him on Stadium ice by the time the Hawks meet Detroit Jan. 8. Despite their present position as leaders of the American section, the Hawks realize that Art Coulter, Marty Burke and young Art Wiebe cannot go on carrying the defensive burden indefinitly without help, and Taffy would be more than ideal help.

The Hawks, for instance, could use him nicely tomorrow night against the Eagles, or against the Montreal Maroons in the New Year's game, which will start at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Eagles have become particularly ornery since their last appearance here, when the Hawks beat them, 1 to 0. They have collected themselves ten league points and only Thursday night took a 5 to 2 revenge game from the Detroit Red Wings, who previously had embarrassed them, 11 to 2.

SHAUGHNESSY IS MENTIONED FOR JOB AT HARVARD

Along with Shaughnessy, Dick Harlow, coach of highly successful western Maryland teams, was mentioned as a possible Harvard coach. Crimson officials indicated it will be at least two weeks before any definite announcement will be made. It appears, however, that the Crimson may make a clean sweep of its graduate coaching staf in favor of outsiders.

BLACK HORSE VS. HORNETS

Two games, one of which will unravel the tie between the 124th Field Artillery Hornets and the Black Horse troop in the latter's league, are in store for followers of polo at the Chicago Riding club, 333 East Erie street, this evening.

Tonight's action will begin with a game between the Lincolnshire Country club and the Riding club Seniors.

CHICAGO PLAYERS WIN IN JUNIOR TENNIS TOURNEY

New York, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Chicago district players advanced today in both the national indoor boys' and junior tennis tournaments. Arthur C. Nielsen Jr. of Winnetka, Ill., advanced to the quarter final round of the boys' event with a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Harry Marsh of Glen Ridge, N. J. Other winners in the boys' fourth round were Robert A. Low of the Choate school, the defending champion; Malcolm Weinstein of Baltimore, Gilbert A. Hunt of Washington D. C., and Henry Daniels of the Choate school.

In the juuior tournament, Donald Leavens of Northwestern university defeated A. A. Barrow Jr., Providence, and Russell Ball, also of Northwestern, won from Herbert Abrams of New York university.

LONBORG ILL AS N. U. WORKS FOR BUTLER CONTEST

Dutch Lonborg, basketball coach at Northwestern university, was confined to his bed yesterday with an attack of influenza. The illness will force him to forego directing the team in its preparation for the New Year's eve game with Butler.

During Lonborg's absence the Wildcats will be in charge of Assistant Coach Ted Payseur. The team has been holding double workouts daily since the resumption of practice on Thursday.

Austin Bears, Artillery Elevens Play Tomorrow

The Austin Bears will play the undefeated Armory football team tomorrow at the 124th Field artillery. The artillery team has not permitted an opponent to score a point during the last three years. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

GARDEN SHOWS A 31% INCREASE

Gain May Bring Warring Bosses Together.

New York, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Attendance at Madison Square Garden's sports events has increased 31 per cent in the last six months as compared to the same period last year, according to Col. John R. Kilpatrick, Garden president. And while this optimistic announcement did not concern itself with any mention of dollars and cents, indicating whether or not the big sports arena was emerging from the red, there were those who read into the statement a suggestion that the warring colonels—Kilpatrick and John S. Hammond, the latter chairman of the Garden's board of directors—might effect an armistice in the common cause of increased business at the box office.

Boxing, professional and amateur hocky, the six day bike race, the rodeo, the horse show—in fact, everything but wrestling—were actively on the upbeat. The customers have found their way back to the athletic amphitheater, and stockholders may soon find dividend checks in their mail, Kilpatrick's compilation of statistics indicated.

The boxing business soared 56 per cent above its 1933 status. Thus it appeared that Col. Kilpatrick and Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston, who were reported likely to be deposed by Hammond and his associates for failing to make their fistic enterprises yield important profits, may get a reprieve when the Garden's executive directorate meets to consider their case on Jan. 15.

The total attendance at 58 events was 627,655 in the latter half of 1934, according to Kilpatrick, as contrasted to 479,126 at a similar number of happenings in the 1933 summer and fall.

ROSS MUST MEET AMBERS, BOXING OFFICIALS RULE

New York, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—In its attempt to compel Barney Ross to defend his lightweight title against a recognized challenger, the state athletic commission today ruled that unless Ross consents to meet Lou Ambers, Herkimer, N. Y., challenger, before undertaking any other match, the titleholder will be suspended here. Any licensed boxer who engages in a match against Ross until he defends his crown, will suffer similar punishment, Chairman John J. Phelan announced.

The commission served notice on Frankie Klick, California boxer, that he would court suspension by fighting Ross in a bout proposed for Miami next month. Ross has until Jan. 11 to accept a challenge from Ambers or be automatically suspended here. A proposal from the Illinois boxing commission that an elimination tournament be held was vetoed.

SQUASH TEAMS CONTINUE PLAY IN TOURNEY TODAY

Competition in classes A and B will mark play today in the annual squash tournament, sponsored by the Chicago District Squash Racquets association. Six teams will compete in the A class, while ten will meet in the B section.

John Marshall and the Chicago Town and Tennis club are tied with two victories and no defeats in club matches. Today's games:

CLASS B—C. A. A. vs. John Marshall at the C. A. A.; University club vs. Chicago Dearborn club at University club; Chicago Town and Tennis vs. Lake Shore at Tennis club; Lawson "Y" vs. Interfraternity club at the latter gymnasium; Evanston "Y" vs. the Union league at Evanston.

DEFER ORIENTAL PARK OPENING UNTIL TUESDAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Dec. 28.—Oriental Park, scheduled to begin a 72 day racing program at nearby Mindanao tomorrow, will not open until New Year's day, according to an announcement by Albert Sabath, Chicago racing man who has been in charge of arrangements at the track.

The postponement was necessitated by the falling through of negotiations among Cuban, Paraguayan, and American interests for the sale of an interest in the track.

Star Elevens of East and West in Long Drills

At Palo Alto western players climaxed a long drill with a rousing scrimmage. The squad was divided into two teams and the boys charged into each other for the better part of an hour. Coaches Percy Locey and Orin Hollingbery tried out several back field combinations, but a starting unit will not be decided upon before game time.

Olympic Skate Trials Stars to Drill Today

Champion skaters entered in the United States Olympic trials at Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue, Monday and Tuesday, will go into final training today on the Spencer ice rink, a replica of the 1936 Olympic track to be used in the races at Garmisch-Partenkirken, Germany.

On Monday afternoon Olaf O. Gullang, chairman of the Sleipner club, announces the 500 and 10,000 meter events will be held, while on New Year's day the 1,500 and 5,000 meter races will be decided.

Innovations will be the starting of the races, to begin with the drop of a flag as in auto racing, and in the fact that only two skaters will compete at the same time instead of groups of six or more. A lane, 400 meters around, will serve as each skater's course.

At the end of the two-day meet the skater having the best time in the 500, 1,500, 5,000, and 10,000 meters will be captain of the Chicago squad which will travel to Minneapolis to compete in the national Olympic trials.

TEAMS IN ROSE BOWL GAME PASS

But It Seems a Ruse on Stanford's Part.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 28.—Judging by workouts held today by Stanford and Alabama, the Rose bowl football game next Tuesday will have basketball instead of football aspects. Both westerners and southerners spent the greater part of their practice sessions zipping forward passes and laterals until assembled fans became slightly dizzy trying to keep track of the flying ball.

From a Stanford standpoint this was nothing more than a ruse, for the Redskins hope to beat Alabama by sheer power rather than through the air. Coach Tiny Thornhill has habitually called for a flock of passing plays in pre-game workouts, only to have the Indians go to work on the opposing line and rarely take the chance of losing the ball by throwing it away. Alabama, however, seems to mean business about an overhead attack.

It appears now that the Tide has a distinct edge in passing and kicking, while Stanford is better equipped for a strong running attack.

Stanford worked both morning and afternoon at Brookside park, scene of the Chicago White Sox spring baseball workouts. In the morning Thornhill sent his charges through a fast signal drill, featuring his best running plays. In the afternoon Tiny switched to passes and had his boys throwing the ball for the better part of an hour.

Tulane, Temple Stars in Shape for Bowl Game

New Orleans, La., Dec. 28.—(AP)—With prospects that his first string back field will take the field intact against Tulane New Year's day in the sugar bowl game, Coach Pop Warner and his Temple Owls arrived in New Orleans tonight.

Horace Mowrey, left half back and one of the leaders in the team's offense, appeared certain to start, despite an injured wrist that has been worrying Warner and the team trainer for the last week. Mowrey was able to use his hand more freely in the last workout the team engaged in on the Louisiana State university campus before leaving for New Orleans.

Tulane likely will have its full force ready, with its star ball carrier, Monk Simons, injured in the L. S. U. game Dec. 1, sufficiently recovered to insure his participation.

Temple will be guest of the Loyola University Athletic association until Tuesday.

Rains of the last week have seriously handicapped outdoor practice sessions for both teams, with Tulane working indoors two afternoons. A bright sun today greatly helped the field, which was little more than a mudpatch yesterday.

MARSHALL AND COLEMAN SEEK LONDOS MATCHES

Everett Marshall will arrive in Chicago today to request the same consideration Able Coleman is getting from Jim Londos prior to their 90 minute one fall match at the Coliseum next Wednesday night. Coleman has been promised a match with the heavyweight wrestling champion later in January if he can beat Marshall. Marshall wants the same promise from Londos if he beats the Jewish star.

Collins Beats Schaap for City Amateur 18.2 Crown

Percy Collins of the Illinois Athletic club won the city amateur 18.2 balk line championship last night by defeating Arie Schaap of the Midwest A. C., 300 to 215, in 21 innings, at the Hudson Billiard academy.

WISCONSIN AND PITT QUINTETS CLASH TONIGHT

Touring Stanford Five at Iowa.

Games Tonight

Ohio State at Maryland.
Illinois at Butler.
Stanford at Iowa.
Minnesota at Nebraska.
Pittsburgh at Wisconsin.
Notre Dame at New York university.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's basketball team will attempt to get back into the victory column here tomorrow night when it meets a reputedly strong Pittsburgh quintet in the fieldhouse.

The Badgers had piled up four straight victories before losing to Marquette a week ago in Milwaukee. Despite indications he might alter the lineup, Coach Bud Foster will start an entirely veteran team against the Panthers, who rely principally on a fast breaking offense.

Pittsburgh will be led by a pair of great forwards, Co-Capts. Hughes and Cribbs, both playing their third season. They are considered two of the best defensive forwards in the game.

STANFORD MEETS IOWA

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa basketball team will resume its tuneup campaign before the start of the Western conference season in the first of four vacation games tomorrow night, with Stanford university as the opposition. The Hawkeyes will attempt to even the series against intersectional opponents. They lost to Pittsburgh two weeks ago.

The home team is conceded an advantage over the Stanford quintet, since the visitors are apparently road weary from playing seven games in ten days.

NOTRE DAME IN EAST

New York, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—The New York university basketball team, with nineteen straight victories to its credit over a two year span, will attempt to increase its string at the expense of Notre Dame, annually one of the best quintets in the middle west, at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. The initial appearance here of Notre Dame will mark the first time, in recent years at least, that a top notch midwestern quintet will show in New York. Notre Dame also will play Holy Cross in Boston Monday.

TRAIN KILLS TWO AUTOISTS, NINE IN THREE DAYS

Officials of Blue Island and Harvey planned yesterday to appeal to the interstate commerce commission for elevated grade crossings as the result of the deaths of nine persons in train-automobile accidents during the last three days.

Two persons were killed and a third critically injured in a crash yesterday morning at 127th street and the Grand Trunk railway crossing in Blue Island. This accident followed the crash in which seven persons were killed at the Halsted street crossing of the railroad in Harvey on Wednesday.

Two Mayors Seek Action.

Mayors Frank Bruggeman of Harvey and Frank Kasten of Blue Island said the commerce commission will be asked to order installation of elevated crossings throughout the southern part of the county or to limit the speed of trains to 25 miles an hour in the towns.

Yesterday's crash occurred when the International limited of the Grand Trunk Western railroad, speeding into Chicago several minutes late, crashed into a sedan at the Blue Island crossing. It was the same train, manned by a different crew, which killed seven employés of the relief commission Wednesday morning in Harvey, three miles from the scene of yesterday's crash.

College Dean Seriously Hurt.

Yesterday's dead were Mrs. Marie Metzinger, 45 years old, of Fargo, N. D., and her daughter, Leona, 19 years old, a student in the North Dakota State college at Fargo. Dr. Leon Metzinger, 52 years old, dean of modern languages at the college, husband and father of the dead women, was critically injured. He was taken to the St. Francis hospital in Blue Island, where physicians feared that he would die.

An old superstition of railroad men that accidents run in "threes" was borne out by the Blue Island accident. The train wreck Christmas night near London, Ont., claimed 15 lives. The Harvey accident was the second and the Blue Island crash rounded out the cycle.

The Metzingers were homeward bound after a week's Christmas visit at the home of Mrs. Metzinger's step-father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Martzel, 13044 Gregory avenue, Blue Island. Saturday night they had attended the wedding of their daughter and sister, George Metzinger, a student of the University of Chicago medical school, to Dr. Arthur Burt.

Crossing Signals in Order.

Their sedan laden with Christmas presents, the Metzingers set out for home yesterday morning after buying a new set of automobile chains to guard against accidents. Witnesses said that Mrs. Metzinger, who was driving, hesitated at the crossing and then attempted to drive across the tracks. Flash light and bell signals were said to be working at the time.

French Judge Who Devoted His Career to Children Dies

PARIS, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Henri Rollet, noted as judge of the Children's court, died today. Judge Rollet's first case was the defense of a delinquent girl. His sympathies were so aroused by what he regarded as the ruthlessness of man-made laws that he devoted his life to juvenile legislation.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

ORDERED HELD TO GRAND JURY IN AUTO DEATH

Steven Brestic, 21 years old, 5204 South Richmond street, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter by a coroner's jury yesterday as the result of an automobile accident which caused the death of Dr. William J. Lyon, 7343 Madison street, Forest Park.

On Nov. 18 the doctor halted his car at 58th street and Western avenue and went to the aid of persons in an overturned automobile which had struck a safety island. As he walked toward the wreck Brestic's car struck and crushed him between the two machines.

A verdict of manslaughter was also returned by a coroner's jury investigating the death of John Kien, 40 years old, 509 North Union avenue, who was killed by a hit and run driver on Dec. 22.

Miss Helen J. Schieve, 24 years old, 6343 Komensky avenue, died in her home yesterday of injuries incurred in an automobile accident Sept. 21 near Baraboo, Wis.

Edward Dawson, 28 years old, of Berkeley, was killed late last night when an automobile which he was driving skidded and overturned at Roosevelt road and 25th avenue, Broadview. Donald Barnes, 19 years old, 211 Evergreen street, Wheaton, a passenger in the car, was injured.

Elmer Fender, 64 years old, 1759 West 95th street, died in the Little Company of Mary hospital last night, supposedly of injuries suffered in an automobile collision in Grant Park on Nov. 18. He was the driver of one car and W. W. Cowen of Paducah, Ky., of the other. At the time Fender did not appear to have been injured.

These deaths, with two others due to a crossing accident in Blue Island, reported elsewhere in this edition, increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 1,251.

JUDGE MANGAN'S FUNERAL SERVICE HELD IN AURORA

Members of the bench and bar from all parts of the state attended the funeral in Aurora yesterday for Judge Edward Mangan of the Aurora City court, who died on Christmas day. Services were held in the home at 819 Downer place and later in Holy Angels' church. Courts of Aurora and Elgin and of the 16th judicial circuit were adjourned in respect to Judge Mangan, who sat in the Aurora court for 27 years. Burial was in Mount Olivet cemetery.

A large group of Chicagoans attended the services. These included Judges Edmund K. Jarecki, William J. Lindsay, John P. McGoorty and Harry A. Lewis.

Judge Frank Shopen of the Elgin City court has been named as Judge Mangan's successor until a new judge is elected.

WRIGLEY ESTATE CLAIMS U. S. TAX BILL IS TOO HIGH

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Charging the bureau of internal revenue with overassessing the value of stock in the William Wrigley Jr. company and the Chicago National League Baseball club, executors of the estate of the late William Wrigley Jr. today petitioned the board of tax appeals for a redetermination of an estate tax claim of $2,266,000.

Executors of the estate of the Chicago chewing gum magnate, who died Jan. 26, 1932, are his son, Philip K. Wrigley, and the First National bank of Chicago.

They claimed that 456,462 shares of stock in the Wrigley company, estimated by the bureau of internal revenue at $22,651,926, was worth only $30 a share, or $13,693,860. They also asserted that 5,728 shares of stock in the Chicago Cubs ball team held by the estate are worth only $64 a share, or $372,320, instead of $160 per share, or $916,480, as valued by the internal revenue department.

The executors further asked a deduction from the gross estate of three million dollars claimed in a suit brought in the Cook county Probate court by Charles A. Anderson. The bureau of internal revenue had refused to allow the deduction.

125 MILLIONS APPORTIONED FOR HIGHWAY AID

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today apportioned 125 million dollars for federal aid to the states in highway construction.

The funds are to be available at the beginning of the fiscal year July 1, 1935, when the old policy of federal highway aid is resumed.

Of the sum, $5,160,696 will go to Illinois, $3,087,613 to Indiana, $3,231,718 to Iowa, $3,837,292 to Michigan, and $3,045,557 to Wisconsin.

Morgenthau Puts In Kansas City Man.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Nugent R. Oberwortmann, assistant federal reserve agent at Kansas City, was today appointed chief national bank examiner for the Seventh federal reserve district, with headquarters in Chicago. Controler of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor announced the appointment, explaining that it was made with the approval of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, as is required by law.

NUGENT R. OBERWORTMANN.

W. T. Kemper, Democratic national committeeman from Missouri and a leading banker in that state and in Kansas, is understood to have sponsored Mr. Oberwortmann's appointment. Mr. Kemper is Controler O'Connor's political creditor in that he has supported the controler against all attempts to oust him.

Holds Post Since 1927.

Mr. Oberwortmann has held his present post as assistant federal reserve agent in Kansas City continuously since 1927 with the exception of about three months in 1933. Prior to 1927 he was in the Kansas state banking department and in private banking.

For approximately the last three months of 1933, however, Mr. Oberwortmann obtained leave of absence from his Kansas City federal reserve post in order to come to Washington as chief examiner for the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, which was then being organized. O'Connor, who is a director of the FDIC, as well as controler, secured this temporary appointment for Oberwortmann. Walter J. Cummings, now chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, was then chairman of the FDIC, and was Oberwortmann's immediate superior.

Position Vacant Nine Months.

Appointment of Mr. Oberwortmann to the post of chief national bank examiner in Chicago fills that position after it had remained vacant for almost nine months. William Taylor resigned last spring to go into private banking in Milwaukee. Mr. Taylor had succeeded Alfred Leyburn, who was transferred from Chicago to Cleveland as chief national bank examiner there.

Irwin Wright, chief national bank examiner in Kansas City, was for a long time slated to be promoted to Chicago. Mr. Oberwortmann was mentioned as a possible successor for Wright at Kansas City. Why this arrangement was not carried through was not clear here today, except that to make Oberwortmann chief national bank examiner in a region where his sponsor, Mr. Kemper, has substantial banking interests was not considered politic.

Sponsor Heads Kansas Bank.

Mr. Kemper, beside being the Democratic national committeeman for Missouri, is head of the Commerce Trust company in Kansas City. His son is head of the City National bank, also in Kansas City. The Kemper interests also include a chain of small banks in Kansas, in one of which Mr. Oberwortmann is reported to have started his career.

Upon accepting the position of assistant reserve agent in 1927, Mr. Oberwortmann resigned his position as first special assistant banking commissioner in Kansas. He had worked up to that position after joining the state banking department as an examiner in 1922. From 1917 to 1922 he had been employed by the Farmers and Merchants State bank of Chetopa, Kas.

APPOINTMENT IS SURPRISE.

Appointment of Nugent R. Oberwortmann as chief national bank examiner in the Chicago district came as something of a surprise in banking circles here. It is understood that several Chicago bankers would like to have seen the appointment of R. S. Beatty, who has been acting head of the office since William Taylor's resignation.

Such vacancies are usually filled immediately, and the long delay in making an appointment was said to have been caused by political maneuvering of various groups who had candidates for the office.

CANADA ORDERS OCTOBER WHEAT TRADE DELAYED

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Listing of the October wheat future was deferred by the Winnipeg Grain exchange today to prevent speculation in a crop not yet sown. The action was taken on instructions of the dominion government.

The exchange's policy change, third step in the Canadian government's effort to regulate the marketing of the dominion's grain crop, follows pegging of wheat futures prices and limiting of flax price fluctuations.

Deferring of the October future, which is usually listed for trading early in January, left traders with the May and July options for hedging purposes. The December option, although still on the board, expires Monday.

Insurance Firms Ordered to Pay for Burned Ship

PARIS, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The American, British, French, and German insurance companies concerned were ordered today by the French Court of Appeals to pay the full 174,200,000 francs [about $11,497,200] insurance on the steamer Atlantique which was destroyed by fire last year.

Stocks Spurt; Year-End Tax Sales Taper

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 28.—Relieved of its burden of year-end tax selling, the stock market sprang forward today in the most impressive rally in weeks. Net gains in some cases ran as high as 5 points, and the volume mounted to around 1,276,000 shares.

High grade industrials set the pace, being stimulated by statistical reports of growing business improvement in various directions and predictions from high sources of a substantial upswing in the new year. The action of General Electric in retiring its special stock and bonds due in 1942 was a bullish factor of considerable importance.

An effort was made to read something cheerful into Washington dispatches with respect to employment and relief.

All Groups Join Upturn.

All sections of the list shared in the improvement, even the "orphan" utilities trailing along with the procession. American Can was an outstanding leader, rising more than 4 points and such other big league stocks as United States Steel, Allied Chemical, du Pont, and Westinghouse were turned over in fairly heavy volume at prices 1 to 2 points or more higher. Sharper gains among the more volatile descriptions included Spiegel-May-Stern with a rise of 5¼ points, McKeesport Tin up 4½, Endicott Johnson up 3½, and Libby Owens Glass and Monsanto Chemical, up about 3 points each.

Some further tax selling was reported here and there but such sales were made on a cash basis and had little effect on the general advance.

Oil shares were well in the van of the movement, a phenomenon not witnessed before in many months. Settlement of the recent prolonged gasoline price war in the east relieved the group of its major trouble.

General Electric Spurts.

Motors joined with steels and other industrials in leading the advance as traders heeded reports of preparations for a busy January at motor centers and for further expansion in steel operations. Chrysler spurted more than 2 points and General Motors 1½. Inland Steel moved up nearly 2 points to a new peak within a fraction of 55.

Tobacco issues became active in the late trading, with Liggett & Myers stocks setting the pace with gains of 1 to 3 points.

In the utility group Consolidated Gas, Public Service and other issues recently on the defensive advanced for good sized fractions.

PERMIT RESERVE MEMBER BANKS TO BUY NEW ISSUES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—As another step to facilitate sale of new capital issues, the controler of the currency has promulgated regulations under which federal reserve member banks, either state or national, may hereafter buy for their own account and direct from the issuers, new issues of investment securities when the issuer has other securities outstanding with a broad market, and the new securities are registered under the securities act of 1933.

The action, taken in coöperation with the securities and exchange commission, is based on a theory that the marketability and intrinsic value of a new offering which an issuer may wish to sell without public distribution are sufficiently demonstrated by the fact that earlier offerings of the same issuer have been distributed and have a ready market.

Chicago Board of Trade Studies Extending Hours

Peter B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, yesterday named J. A. White of Lamson Bros. & Co. as chairman of a committee to study the proposal for extension of the exchange's present trading hours. Trading now opens at 9 a. m. and closes at 1:15 p. m. on week days, while on Saturday the market closes at noon. It has been proposed that the trading period on week days be extended to 1:30 p. m., or an additional 15 minutes.

J. M. BARKER, OFFICIAL OF SEARS-ROEBUCK, IS ALSO MADE TREASURER

James M. Barker, vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., in charge of retail administration, has been appointed vice president and treasurer of the company, Gen. R. E. Wood, president, announced yesterday. It was stated Mr. Barker will continue as chairman of the retail policy committee, with most retail stores being supervised by five field officers, who will report directly to the policy committee. The responsibilities of the treasurership have been increased in recent years through the company's banking and insurance activities.

J. M. BARKER.

At the same time it was announced that E. H. Powell, secretary and treasurer of the company since 1930, is resigning to devote his full time to his position as president of Encyclopedia Britannica. F. B. McConnell, assistant to Mr. Barker, becomes assistant to Gen. Wood and secretary of the company. All appointments are effective Jan. 30.

DOLLAR WEAKER AGAINST FOREIGN GOLD CURRENCIES

New York, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—The dollar developed a slightly weaker tone against foreign gold currencies today, but was improved against pound sterling dealings, were on a reduced basis.

Offerings cased the British currency to $4.93⅝, a decline of ⅝, while French francs gain ⅜ point over the previous close to 6.60¾ cents.

At the closing price on the franc the dollar was worth 59.28 cents, based on the old par of the franc, compared with 59.32 cents yesterday. Calculated on the old par of the franc the dollar was valued at $1.0037 against $1.0043.

Belgas gained 1 point at 23.49 cents, Swiss francs 2 points at 32.43 cents, and guilders 3 points at 67.72 cents. Scandinavian currencies eased 1 point. The Italian lire was unchanged at 8.56½ cents and the German mark steady at 30¼ cents. Canadian funds lost 6¼ points to close at $1.00½.

Currencies of the silver countries maintained an upward trend reflecting the further advance of ½ cent in silver. Shanghai dollars rose 30 points to 34.90 cents and Hongkong dollars 15 points to 42.95 cents.

Bullion brokers in London sold gold at an unchanged price, 140 shillings 10½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.79, based on the opening of sterling at 4.93⅝. Bars valued at $1,022,311 were purchased.

Receipt of $2,514,400 gold from Canada was announced by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The engagement of an additional $3,000,000 gold in India for shipment here was reported, bringing to $17,000,000 the amount of gold now on its way here from that country.

REDISCOUNT RATE HELD AT 2½% BY CHICAGO "FED"

Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago decided yesterday to make no change in the present rediscount rate of 2½ per cent. The present rate is the lowest in the history of the reserve bank here and has been in effect since October, 1933.

Reductions in rates were recently voted by the federal reserve banks of Atlanta and Kansas City, and led to the supposition that a cut might be voted here. Although the national banking authorities have embarked on an easy money policy a cut in the Chicago rate would be of little significance at the present time. The bank is now rediscounting only $50,000 for member banks.

Government's Short Term Borrowing Costs Less

A further slight decline in the cost to the government in borrowing short terms funds was shown in its report yesterday on an offering of 182 day treasury bills, dated Jan. 2, 1935. The average price was 99.949 and the average rates .10 per cent annually on a bank discount basis. A week ago the rate was 0.12 per cent. Applications totaled $214,130,000 of which $75,150,000 was accepted.

Wheat Back to $1 Mark; Corn Also Up

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Wheat again reached the dollar mark on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday and corn prices advanced up to 1¼ cents a bushel on a comparatively light volume of trading. It took only a small buying demand in the thin pre-holiday market to send prices up. Some buying was credited to millers, but the business done for the most part apparently represented maneuvering by professional traders.

The market action was somewhat contradictory in that news was not of a character to inspire bull traders. Cold weather over the grain belt failed to materialize and foreign markets were reactionary, with wheat in Liverpool closing about ½ cent lower. There has been no indication that the recent cold spell brought material damage to the winter wheat crop, as had been feared.

Cite Market's Basic Strength.

The interpretation placed on the market's action by those who look for rising prices is that the inherent strength of underlying conditions is forcing prices up. If the advance had been accompanied by a material volume of trading, such an interpretation might carry more weight. As it was, the actual volume of business done was small, and markets take queer turns in the absence of a fairly steady flow of trading.

The advance in May wheat amounted to ⅞ cent a bushel, which lifted this future a fraction over a dollar a bushel. Corn rose ⅝ to 1¼ cents a bushel. Closing prices on the May futures were:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Wk Ago.
Wheat	$1.00⅛	$.99⅝	$.98⅝
Corn	.90⅝	.89⅝	.86⅝
Oats	.53¼	.53	.51½
Rye	.76⅝	.75⅛	.75⅛

Trading Volume Shrinks.

The volume of trading on the Board of Trade in the last week in all grains fell sharply below that of the preceding week. The reduction was accounted for only in part by the Christmas holiday last Tuesday. Total transactions in wheat in the week ended Thursday involved 50,864,000 bushels, compared with 92,554,000 in the preceding week and 72,592,000 in the corresponding period of 1933. In a more active trading season a turnover of 50,000,000 bushels in one day is not uncommon.

The trade in corn futures aggregated 40,763,000 bushels, compared with 60,666,000 in the preceding week and 27,551,000 last year. The increase in corn trading over last year has been maintained for several weeks, and is evidence of the speculation that has shifted to this grain as a result of the unprecedented shortage.

GASOLINE, OIL FUTURES TRADE STARTS ON FEB. 5

New York, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Trading in gasoline and crude oil futures will be started Feb. 5 on the New York Commodity exchange, it was learned tonight from authorities in the petroleum market. The plan has been under study for several months with details as to the form of contract, points of delivery, and other technical questions under consideration of a committee from the exchange.

The New York market with the inauguration of trading will be the first in the race with Chicago, San Francisco, and Tulsa to start the new form of commodity business. Final details of the new market are expected to be revealed by officials of the commodity exchange next week.

CROWLEY ADMITS BANK INTEREST CUT ORDER IS ILLEGAL

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 28.—(AP)—After a long conference here today with Senator Carter Glass, Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, said he agrees with Senator Glass that the bank act of 1933 does not authorize the recent action of FDIC ordering nonmember state banks to reduce interest payments on time and savings deposits.

Chairman Crowley said in an authorized statement that the corporation will not proceed under the order until and unless the law is amended by congress so as to give the corporation specific authority.

He added that Senator Glass signified a willingness to propose certain amendments to the existing statute which would strengthen the system of insuring deposits.

TREASURY SEEKS VAST CHANGE IN BANKING SYSTEM

Morgenthau Drafts Bill for Congress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—An omnibus banking bill, embracing revisions of the Federal Reserve system, the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation and other agencies, is being prepared under the direction of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, it was learned today.

At President Roosevelt's insistence all banking changes are to be consolidated in one bill, which will be sent to congress some time shortly after its opening. The bill is expected to have four or five subdivisions, one on the reserve system, one on the FDIC, another on the Reconstruction Finance corporation, a fourth on the Home Owners' Loan corporation, and perhaps others.

Important Changes Planned.

Some of the banking changes which the bill will suggest are fundamental and of farreaching importance, while others are merely necessary routine.

These facts were learned today after Marriner S. Eccles, governor of the Federal Reserve board, had announced that in his opinion there would be banking legislation enacted by the next congress. His stand and the fact that the omnibus bill is being prepared vary sharply from the plans of congressional leaders who are declaring that bank legislation will not be necessary this coming year.

It was also learned in reserve board circles that all legislation on banking has to be cleared through Secretary Morgenthau, who is heard of a special interdepartmental lending committee. This committee, including the heads of all federal credit and banking bureaus, is whipping together the omnibus bill.

Deposit Insurance Foremost.

The deposit insurance legislation is believed to be agreed upon already and to be slated as section one of the omnibus measure. Leo T. Crowley for some time has had worked out the changes he desires. They include power for the FDIC to examine and otherwise regulate all banks under it, permanent restriction of the insurance to $5,000 on each account, limitation on the assessments which the FDIC can make on banks through a regular premium plan, and merging of the controlership of the currency into the FDIC.

Due to his inability to oust J. F. T. O'Connor, the present controler, Crowley may have to abandon this last point. A knock-down fight between Crowley and O'Connor is in prospect over Crowley's desire to extend the authority of the FDIC partially at the expense of the controler.

Eccles Seeks Reserve Control.

Gov. Eccles, although he refused to say so today, is also believed to have his proposed legislation pretty well worked out. Most important is his desire to centralize control over the reserve system in the hands of the Federa Reserve board. He wants especially to control the reserve purchase of government bonds, a function now managed by the governors of the 12 federal reserve banks.

One of Eccles' chief proposals, therefore, will be for appointment of the 12 reserve bank governors from Washington and, possibly, the merging of the governorships and chairmanships in the reserve banks. The governors are now elected by the directors of the individual reserve banks and are the most powerful officials. The chairmen are appointed by the reserve board.

Several Means to Same End.

Eccles may modify this proposal in one of several ways, all of which would achieve the same end. Instead of appointing the governors, he may, for instance, ask that the reserve board merely be given power to veto governors elected by the banks. He might also ask that the open market bond buying policy be put in the hands of the reserve board itself.

Other sections of the omnibus bill will provide for continuation of the RFC and for additional funds for the Home Owners Loan corporation.

WHEAT BRINGS $1.44 IN FRENCH FREE MARKET

PARIS, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Wheat sold for $1.44 a bushel today on the newly created free market established under the government's program to reduce the crop surplus. The price compared with a pegged price of $2.01, which generally has been disregarded for some time, but still has been used as a basis for the price of bread.

The government will remove a surplus of 60,000,000 bushels from the market in the next six months. Part will be denatured to be used as cattle feed and the rest exported at the world price. It is estimated the government will receive from its export business about two-fifths the price it pays for wheat in the free market.

PREDICTS RECORD YEAR FOR ABBOTT LABORATORIESCO.

Abbott Laboratories, North Chicago pharmaceutical manufacturers, this year will have the best year in its history, according to Frank B. Kriby, director of research, who spoke at the company's sectional sales convention at the Edgewater Beach hotel yesterday. Earnings in the first half of 1934 were $375,815. For all of 1933 they totaled $549,578.

"The constant growth of the company," said Mr. Kriby, "is in large part due to research by a staf of 40 which has enabled us to bring out new and improved products."

Plymouth of the New Year

This is the first picture of the 1935 Plymouth that will be announced formally within the next few days. The manufacturer is dubbing it the "high speed safety" model. This four door sedan shows the torpedo shaped all steel body that fits over the frame in a new type of construction.

Gen. Electric Calls Special Stock, Bonds

New York, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Directors of the General Electric company voted today to redeem bonds and special stock of the par value of $44,976,630, paying premiums that will require the distribution of close to $50,000,000, mostly to private investors.

The company will call for redemption on April 15 at $11 a share the entire issue of special stock, which was given to common stock holders a few years ago in the form of regular stock dividends, in addition to cash distributions. There are 4,252,963½ shares of this stock outstanding, with a par value of $10 a share. The stock has been receiving dividends regularly since issuance at the rate of 60 cents a share per year, making the rate 6 per cent. Under the issuing agreement the stock was made callable at a premium of 10 per cent on par.

Will Eliminate Bonded Debt.

In addition to the special stock the company will call for redemption on Aug. 1, 1935, its only bonded debt, consisting of $2,047,000 of 3½ per cent bonds maturing in 1942, in the redemption of these bonds the company must pay 105. The bonds have been selling around 105 recently.

In announcing its decision to retire these bonds and the stock, the company did not state what would be the source from which it would draw the funds. However, it is believed that the company's cash position is strong enough to warant financing the whole operation without the aid of bank loans. On Dec. 31, 1933, the date of the last published balance sheet, General Electric had $60,901,644 cash and $50,276,864 marketable securities. These quick assets are more than twice the amount necessary to retire the bonds and stock that have been called.

Follows Other Companies.

This action on the part of the General Electric directors is in line with the course that has been taken by numerous large corporations recently. The motive for bond redemptions is the existence in corporate treasuries of more working capital than changed business operations demand, coupled with the fact that the temporary investments in which cash can be placed yield a negligible return.

Among the major corporations that have called in large bond issues to save interest charges are the Standard Oil Company of New York, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, Shell Union Oil company and Humble Oil company.

PARKER RUST PROOF WILL PAY STOCK DIVIDEND

Directors of Parker Rust Proof company yesterday voted to pay a dividend of one share of preferred stock to the Parker-Wolverine company on each share of Parker Rust Proof common stock, payable on or about Jan. 15 to stock of record Jan. 2. The regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on Parker Rust Proof common also was declared, payable Feb. 20 to stock of record Feb. 10.

General Alliance corporation yesterday resumed dividends on the common stock with the declaration of 15 cents a share, payable Jan. 21 to stock of record Jan. 10. The last previous payment was 15 cents a share on Nov. 16, 1931.

Fireman's Fund Insurance company declared a quarterly payment of $1 a share, placing the stock on an annual basis of $4, compared with $2 since the payment on July 15, 1932.

FEDERAL PRICE INDEX IS STEADY FOR THIRD WEEK

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Wholesale commodity prices in the week ended Dec. 22 remained unchanged for the third consecutive week, Commissioner Lubin of the bureau of labor statistics reported today, the index staying at 76.7. For the corresponding week of 1933 the index was 79.4, two years ago it was 62.5. The 1926 average is used as 100.

"The general level is higher by five-tenths of 1 per cent than for the corresponding week one month ago," Mr. Lubin said. "The present average remains at 1.4 per cent below the high for the year, the week ended Sept. 8, when the price index was 77.8, and 8 per cent above the low point of 1934, 71 for Jan. 6.

Exchanges Open Monday, but Will Close Tuesday

The New York Stock exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade and most of the other principal security and commodity markets will hold regular trading sessions next Monday, Dec. 31. All markets will be closed Tuesday, Jan. 1, and will resume operations Wednesday morning.

Profits Equal $1.27 Per Common Share.

Wilson & Co.'s net income of $3,833,461, or $1.27 per common share, for the year ended Oct. 27, 1934, was one of the best in the company's history and was almost one-third more than in the preceding fiscal year, according to the annual report released yesterday. In the year ended Oct. 28, 1933, this third largest meat packer reported net income of $2,935,564 before profit on retirement of bonds.

The increased income reflected the 28 per cent increase in sales to $180,000,000 from the $140,000,000 reported for the Oct. 28, 1933, year.

Prices and Costs Higher.

Higher meat prices are reflected in the company's Oct. 27, 1934, balance sheet. Although net working capital of $26,029,227 increased about half a million dollars during the fiscal year, cash dropped to $3,090,589 from $5,306,381 on Oct. 28, 1933, while inventories increased to $21,444,675 from $16,239,290.

Costs of raw material and labor as well as prices of finished products advanced steadily during the year. During the Oct. 27, 1934, year the company paid out about $20,000,000 more in processing taxes than in the preceding year, while the cost of live hogs alone, including the processing tax, jumped 50 per cent a pound.

Current assets on Oct. 27, 1934, totaled $34,289,841 and current liabilities were $8,260,614. Notes payable were $1,100,000. There were no notes payable last year.

During 1934 the company put into operation its $750,000 power plant which, according to the management, "is showing savings in producing power, steam and refrigeration beyond our best expectations at the time we decided on this capital expenditure."

On Dec. 14 the directors approved a recapitalization plan under which each share of 7 per cent preferred, on which accumulated dividends of $26.25 a share have accrued, would receive in exchange 1.42 shares of new no par $6 preferred. Class A $5 dividend cumulative shares, on which accumulated unpaid dividends totaled $20 a share on Nov. 1, 1934, would receive five shares of new common, and the present common would be exchangeable share for share for new common. Stockholders are scheduled to vote on the plan Feb. 19.

SUMMARY OF DAY'S TRADE NEWS SHOWS MANY CHEERY SPOTS

Business news and reports that became available yesterday contained many items indicative of buiness and industrial improvement.

Wheat again reached the dollar mark on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The last year ended was one of the most profitable in the history of Wilson & Co., packers. Net income was $3,833,461, against $2,935,564 in 1933.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube will start another blast furnace next week. Steel output is the best for the season since 1929.

Dun & Bradstreet reported inventories of holiday goods at the lowest level in years and Christmas sales 25 to 40 per cent higher than 1933. Its business barometer stood the highest in three and a half years.

Employés of the Sioux Falls Paint and Glass company will receive 10 per cent salary increase Jan. 1.

Border Stationery stores yesterday announced that, due to improved business, the company is paying to employés half of the five and ten year service bonuses for 1934 this week.

PONTIAC SHOWS NEW 1935 CARS; BOTH 6S AND 8S

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Pontiac's new line of automobiles for 1935 was today shown to the public. This is the first of the General Motors group of cars for next year to be disclosed and a six cylinder series has been added to the previous series of eights.

The base price of the six cylinder line is $615, with the detailed list on other models not yet announced. There are five body types of the new six, mounted on a 112 inch wheel base. They include two door and four door sedans, two and four door touring sedan, and a standard coupe, all available in both standard and de luxe divisions.

With the exception of the standard six, "knee action" front wheels have been retained for all models. Engines have been moved forward five inches in the chassis. Steel roofs replace wire and fabric construction. Front seats have been widened to give three passengers ample room in the four door models and in the two door model of the "eight." Doors of all models have been widened.

Wheels are smaller and tires larger. New connecting rod bearings have "silver alloy" metal in them to resist heat. The choke of the six is manually controled and that of the eight is automatic.

NEWSPAPER 'ADS' FOR NOVEMBER EXCEED YEAR AGO

Newspaper advertising, generally a reliable index of business conditions, showed a gain of 5.7 per cent in November, 1934, over November, 1933, according to an analysis of the Advertising Age covering lineage figures for 77 leading cities. The total last month was 152,808,000 lines, a gain of 8,158,000 lines over November, 1933.

The sharpest gain was in store copy, reflecting the much improved retail sales volume this year. The total of 92,736,000 lines of store copy in November, 1934, was 11.4 per cent, or 9,625,000 lines, greater than in November, 1933.

Classified advertising scored a gain of 1,407,000 lines, or 7.2 per cent, totaling 21,408,000 lines. General advertisers boosted their newspaper commitments 572,000 lines, or 2.6 per cent, in November of this year over November, 1933, using a total of 27,440,000 lines.

Kansas Fall Pig Production 65 Pct. Under Year Ago

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 28.—(AP)—The Kansas fall pig crop was estimated at 562,000 head today by the United States department and state board of agriculture, 65 per cent less than the 1933 fall crop, and the lowest in many years. The combined fall and spring crops this year totaled 2,024,000 head compared with the 1932-'33 average of 4,040,000. This decrease is twice the reduction required under the federal corn-hog contracts.

Lee Rubber & Tire Corporation

The Board of Directors has this day declared a dividend of Twenty-five Cents (25c) per share on the outstanding capital stock of this Corporation, payable February 1st, 1935, to stockholders of record at the close of business January 15th, 1935. Books will not be closed.

SMALL BUSINESS GAINS IN NOVEMBER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Small business showed a gain in November over October, according to the index of the department of commerce. The index, which takes into account 15 factors, stood at 76.1 in November, against 75.2 in October. The index for November, 1933, was 71.2.

Libby-Owens-Ford Expands on Pickup at Auto Plants

The Libby-Owens-Ford company announced yesterday that operations and employment have shown a marked increase during December, especially in the Toledo, O., district, where 1,200 men will have been added to the pay rolls by the end of the month. The improvement is due almost entirely to the pickup in automobile production. Safety glass represents more than 65 per cent of total footage shipped to automobile manufacturers, compared with about 40 per cent a year ago.

TRUSTEES' FEES TOTALING $45,761 ARE AUTHORIZED

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday authorized payment of fees totaling $45,761 in connection with the equity receivership of Trustees System Discount company. The law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green and Martin was allocated $20,000. Frank O. Birney, former equity receiver, was allowed $10,000 and the estate of Richard L. Stewart, late co-receiver with Birney, was allowed $1,500.

Objections to Referee in Bankruptcy Edmund D. Adcock's scaling down of fees from $77,636 to $44,515 were filed with Judge Woodward, who said he would take the objections under advisement.

"CANADA DRY"

Ginger Ale, Incorporated
A Delaware Corporation

Dividend Notice

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Incorporated, held December 21, 1934, a regular quarterly dividend of twenty-five cents ($.25) per share was declared, payable January 15, 1935, to stockholders of record at the close of business January 2, 1935.

PROPOSES ENDING MARGIN TRADE TO BAR DEPRESSIONS

Dr. Rufus Tucker's Plan Blocks Easy Credit.

Elimination of margin trading by blocking the avenues of easy credit was advocated yesterday by Rufus Tucker of the 20th Century fund in a round table conference on investment banking and securities markets at the American Economic association convention in the Palmer house.

Dr. Tucker contended that limiting speculation to cash savings not only will prevent abuses and mammoth losses to the innocent but will be the means of eliminating all business depressions not caused by war.

With investments and opportunities for huge paper profits so curtailed, losses would create a smaller debt burden more easily liquidated and not of nation-wide business consequence.

"Drains Stagnant Pool."

A mass of commission rules to govern market and security activity was limited to a screen on the window which shuts off the air if it is small enough to keep out all insects. Shutting off credit in the form of brokers' call collateral loans would be like draining a stagnant pool to eliminate mosquitoes effectively, he said, and would avoid any chance of stifling industry.

Dr. Woodlief Thomas of the federal reserve board staf departed from his prepared address to reply that abolition of margin accounts had been given serious consideration but discarded as unnecessary. Only abuse is dangerous, hence regulation, he explained. Abolition was thought too great a strain on the system, and it was considered better to let margin trading "die naturally."

George C. Mathews, securities and exchange commissioner, defended principles of the act, but admitted shortcomings in functioning to date. He admitted that unnecessary burdens have been suffered by legitimate, going concerns, but predicted that this will be changed.

Attack Federal Bank Rule.

"It is not the commercial bankers' business to furnish long term capital to convert capital assets into current purchasing power," declared William F. Gephart, vice president of the First National bank of St. Louis. "The government, by political control and taxation, can take from one group and give to another, but it cannot directly increase the sum total of goods and services, and therefore cannot directly increase or decrease the total volume of commercial bank credits."

Walter Lichtenstein, vice president of the First National bank of Chicago, hit sharply and directly at the recent Viner-Hardy report which advocated the extension of long term loans by commercial banks and less rigid examinations.

View on Viner Report.

"It seems to me that the Viner report recommends that banks do what they did before 1930 and for which they were justly criticized," Mr. Lichtenstein said. "Banks should be interested in examinations being more, not less, strict. And I question the advisability of long term loans as long as we have demand deposits."

Last night Dr. John H. Williams of Harvard university pleaded for common action of the major nations to set fixed rates of exchange and lend stabilizing influence to the rest of the world which might make adjustments to bring it into line.

KUPPENHEIMER REDUCES LOSS TO $25,735 IN 1934

B. Kuppenheimer & Co., Inc., yesterday reported a net loss of $25,735 in the fiscal year ended Nov. 3, compared with a loss of $222,121 in the preceding year and a loss of $776,980 in 1932.

"Shipments for the fiscal year were substantially in excess of those of the preceding year," Bertram J. Cahn, chairman of the board, stated. "Advance sales for the coming spring season continue to reflect considerable improvement, but because of the necessity to respond to the demand for popular prices on quality clothing it has become exceedingly difficult to establish satisfactory margins of profit."

Current assets as of Nov. 3 were $1,392,322, including cash of $50,817, against current liabilities of $183,040.

CREAMERY'S NET PROFITS, SALES RISE IN QUARTER

Substantial gains in sales and earnings were reported for the three months ended by the Beatrice Creamery company. Net profit for the three months ended Nov. 30 was $233,384, equivalent to 12 cents a share on the common stock after preferred dividends, compared with a net loss of $232,487 in the corresponding period of last year.

Sales for the three months were $14,517,562, an increase of 30 per cent over the $11,167,625 reported a year ago, and $13,600,109 in the preceding quarter of this year.

Nine months' net profit was $946,989, equivalent to $1.03 a common share, compared with a loss of 84 cents a share in the corresponding period of last year.

BOOTH, LAUREN ARE SELECTED AS PWA APPRAISERS

Six Public Officials Will Be Realtors' Guests.

BY AL CHASE.

William G. Booth and J. Alton Lauren, of the Chicago Real Estate board, have been appointed principal land appraisers in Chicago for the housing division of the Public Works administration, the board announced last night. The two realtors were named by Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

Six public officials will be guests of honor at the monthly meeting of the Chicago Real Estate board Wednesday evening at 32 West Randolph street. They are: Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board; Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, County Assessor John S. Clark, Fred W. Brummel, and Emmett Whealan, members of the board of tax appeals, and Robert M. Sweitzer, county treasurer.

Will Discuss Taxation.

The monthly meeting will open with a dinner followed by a short business session. The guests will be asked to speak on the various phases of local taxation with which their official duties are chiefly concerned.

Alexander Lamport and Brother, wholesalers and converters of cotton goods, have leased the entire second floor of the Adams street corner section of the Union Terminal building annex, 206 South Market street, with an area of 11,000 square feet, for a term of years beginning Jan. 1.

With the closing of this lease the section is 100 per cent rented, according to Harold H. Egan & Co., renting agents for the Martin A. Ryerson estate. They state that 112,000 square feet in new leass in this building have been negotiated during 1934.

Two Ground Floor Leases.

Two leases have been negotiated on the ground floor of the Garment Center building, 337 South Franklin street, E. M. Bloomberg & Co., wholesalers in wolens, now at 330 South Franklin, have leased two stores at 341-43 South Franklin and will move to their new quarters on Jan. 2.

H. R. Mallinson & Co., Inc., silks, now at 323 South Franklin, have leased the store at 337 South Franklin.

ILLINOIS CROPS BELOW AVERAGE, BUT WORTH MORE

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 28.—(AP)—The combined 1934 yield of all Illinois crops was 38 per cent below the average for the last ten years but the farm income in the state was the highest in four years.

The gross value of this year's crops, the Illinois and federal departments of agriculture announced today, was $216,524,000, compared with $157,445,000 in 1933, $113,000,000 in 1932, $189,814,000 in 1931, and $266,126,000 in 1930. Acreage devoted to the leading field crops, the report said, was the lowest since 1874. This was attributed to drouth, pests, and measures taken by the federal government for production control.

Corn led the state's crops with a total farm value of $114,473,000 for the 146,760,000 bushels produced. The corn crop was 37 per cent less than that of last year and was the smallest in 61 years. Despite this the value of the crop increased 46 per cent over that of 1933. The value of the next three leading crops was given as: hay, $38,095,000; wheat, $26,261,000; and oats, $15,993,000.

RAIL MORTGAGE TRUSTEES ASK GOLD PAYMENT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Two mortgage trustees of the Missouri Pacific, the Guaranty Trust company of New York and Benjamin F. Edwards, served notice on the Supreme court today they would enter the gold clause payment case involving that railroad.

The two, trustees under the first and refunding mortgage of the road, said they would insist that payments be made in gold or its equivalent in currency. The government, by an act of congress and in connection with its gold nationalization program, ruled out all contract clauses requiring the payment of debts in gold.

The trustees told the court that the Missouri Pacific mortgage holders were insisting upon fulfilment of contractual obligations.

SENECA HOTEL COMPANY SEEKS TO REORGANIZE

Reorganization of the Two Hundred East Chestnut Building corporation, owner of the Seneca hotel, was asked yesterday in a voluntary petition filed in the United States District court under section 77b of the amended bankruptcy act. The petition listed the hotel's liabilities in excess of $2,500,000, consisting mainly of funded debt. The assets consist of an undetermined present market value of the property. Foreclosure and state tax receivership litigation is pending against the corporation in state courts.

Fabricated Structural Steel Bookings Increase

New York, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Bookings of fabricated structural steel for November showed a "satisfactory increase," according to the American Institute of Steel Construction. The new business amounted to 66,564 tons, against 50,599 tons in October and 60,896 in November, 1933. Shipments amounted to 83,558 tons, against 94,919 in October and 56,023 in the same month last year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 28.—All classes of bonds closed generally higher today in quiet trading. Transactions on the exchange totaled $10,572,000, as compared with $13,316,000 on the preceding day. United States government issues accounted for $1,578,500 of the total, against $1,560,700 on Thursday.

The United States government obligations rose 1-32 to 5-32 point. Interest was centered chiefly in the treasury 3½s of 1949-52, which gained 3-32 point on a turnover of $342,000. The federal farm mortgage bonds and the three home owners' loan issues were in demand at gains ranging from 2-32 to 5-32 point.

Gains Are Small.

Gains in domestic corporation issues were small, excepting a few issues. The Postal Telegraph and Cable 5s rose more than 2 points in moderate trading and several other utility issues, which have been under pressure recently, recovered substantially on a small turnover. The combined average of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE advanced 22 cents.

The decision of the General Electric company to call for redemption of its 3½ per cent debentures, due Aug. 1, 1942, at 105 was the subject of much comment in bond circles. Although the amount of this issue outstanding at the close of last year was only $2,047,000, the fact that the company is willing to pay a 5 per cent premium to retire an issue bearing such a small rate of interest attests to the current ease in the money market.

Second Grades Strongest.

The upturn in secondary loans was more pronounced. Gains in this class were attributed partly to year-end switching, largely in connection with adjustments for the income tax records.

The foreign list was comparatively quiet although moderately higher. The North German Lloyd 6s new, Tyrol Hydro-Electric 7s, and Bavarian 6½s were up more than a point each. The German 7s and 5½s also were fractionally better.

COPPER TRADE HOLDS GAIN.

The domestic copper market is holding the moderate gain in buying volume which developed earlier in the month, and sales for December up to the Christmas holidays were estimated at more than 14,000 tons, or a greater business than was done in December, 1933.

Community Power and Light.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate receiving a report on the 6 per cent preferred stock of Community Power and Light.—M. D.

Answer: Community Power and Light company is a holding company, controled indirectly by American Commonwealths Power corporation [in receivership]. It is managed by Stone & Webster Service corporation.

Subsidiaries furnish varied utility services, mostly electricity, to 176 communities having a population of 275,000 in Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Texas, and New Mexico. They have during the last year had to contend with rate difficulties and municipal ownership agitation.

Although operating revenues in the twelve months to Sept. 30, 1934, increased more than 6 per cent over the preceding twelve months, net income dropped to $167,000, or $2.42 per share, from $266,000, or $3.86 per share, in the preceding twelve months, reflecting higher taxes, lower rates, and higher operating costs as a result of NRA wage scales and higher costs of goods, mainly fuel.

	Gross revenues.	Net income.	Inc. per pfd. sh.
1933	$3,681,000	$ 205,000	$ 2.97
1932	3,968,000	362,000	5.25
1931	4,436,000	617,000	8.99
1930	4,975,000	1,045,000	15.15

Current assets on June 30, 1934, including $252,000 cash, were $163,000 less than current liabilities of $1,654,000 [including $1,057,000 notes payable].

Funded debt amounts to $14,115,000. Nothing has been paid on the 68,962 shares of $6 dividend no par cumulative preferred since Nov. 1, 1931. The stock is just a speculation.

Kansas City Power and Light.

Investors' Guide: Kindly give me available information as to the rating of Kansas City Power and Light company bonds.—K. M. G.

Answer: This subsidiary of United Light and Power company furnishes utility services in and about Kansas City, Mo., and in Mason City, Ia. About 90 per cent of gross comes from sale of electricity.

Expansion of operations has increased operating costs and funded debt. The margin by which fixed charges are being currently covered, consequently, is somewhat under the ten year average of 3.27 times, although still substantial. For the twelve months to Oct. 31, 1934, they were earned 2.75 times. In 1933 they were earned 2.61 times, against 3.10 times in 1932, 3.95 times in 1931 and 3.66 times in 1930.

The bonds are sound. The B series bonds, due 1957, are callable at 104¾ to Jan. 1, 1955, and the 4½s, due 1961, are callable at 110 to Feb. 1, 1942.

OUTPUT OF MEAT SHRINKS AGAINST SEASONAL TREND

But November Production Is Above Average.

Packing house output in the United States during November was lighter than in October, showing a nonseasonal decline of 6½ per cent, the Chicago Federal Reserve bank announced yesterday. The total, including government tonnage, however, was 11 per cent above the 1924-'33 average for the month and 1 per cent above November, 1933.

Commercial production during the month was 2½ per cent smaller than in October and 7½ per cent under a year ago but 1¼ per cent greater than the average for the month. Average daily production was slightly higher than in October.

Sales Tonnage Declines.

Sales tonnage during November, following a heavy movement in October and reflecting the usual recession during Thanksgiving week, was 10 per cent under a year ago and 5 per cent below the seasonal average.

Trade in bellies was fair with the close unchanged to 10 points higher with May selling at a new high for the season. Cash lard finished at 12½ cents; loose, 11.82 cents; leaf, 12 cents and bellies at 15½ cents per pound. Prices follow:

PRICES OF LARD FUTURES ADVANCE 10 TO 15 POINTS

Profit taking and selling attributed to packers and warehouse interests prevented lard futures from making a full response yesterday to the sharp upturn in hog prices, although the former closed with net gains of 10 to 15 points. At the extreme top the market was slightly under the best figures of the season which were established on Wednesday.

Trade in bellies was fair with the close unchanged to 10 points higher with May selling at a new high for the season. Cash lard finished at 12½ cents; loose, 11.82 cents; leaf, 12 cents and bellies at 15½ cents per pound. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was firmer today and prices for stock for use in January advanced 5 points on a confirmed sale of 18,000 bags of Philippines for early January arrival to an outport refiner at 2.65c per lb. Further advances occurred in futures on a continuation of yesterday's buying movement, but there were partial setbacks from the best with the market closing 1 point to 3 points net higher. Sales were 14,050 tons. There was an extreme rise of 3 points to 6 points on demand from trade and speculative sources. January contracts showed the maximum upturn, selling up from 1.80c to 1.86c.
